GREATER GLENDALE! GREATER PROSPERITY!

City Enters 1924 With Brightest of Prospects

TEN MILLIONS TOTAL FOR BUILDING IN YEAR

Four Times In 1923 Does Monthly Record Exceed
Sum of $1,000,000

Glendale's banner year has passed into history!

When municipal building superintendent H. C. Vandewater turned the key in the door of his office last night at 5 o'clock, after a day spent in careful figure checking, the total of building permits issued in 1923 was announced as $10,047,694.

It is a figure of which the entire city has just reason to be proud. It represents an achievement that has never even been closely approached in a like sized city, and Glendale feels that when this figure is surpassed it will be Glendale that, does it.

Record Figure
The investment in building in Glendale the past year, on a semi-official estimate of 50,000 population, represents a per capita expenditure of $200, a hitherto unheard of figure in building circles. When the announcement was made some time ago that Glendale's per capita figure was $52, an exclamation of astonishment went up from those connected with the financial life of the city, yet the record at the end of the year is nearly four times that amount.

It is almost incomprehensible, yet the figures are available to support the statement.

Four times during 1923 did the monthly total pass the $1,000,000 mark, November holding the banner with $1,132,562. Taken by (Continued on page 5)

Products of Valley Reach Large Amount

Glendale is the capital of an inland empire—the fertile San Fernando valley—that produced during 1923 over $22,000,000 worth of fruits, vegetables and dairy products, and has enjoyed a bumper crop during 1923, that when checked up, experts declare, will exceed even this great total. Glendale is also on the direct line between Los Angeles and the wonderfully picturesque and healthful quarter of thriving communities, Burbank, Montrose, La Canada and La Crescenta. The "green Verdugo hills" reverently hymned by the poet, John Steven McGroarty, are an eternal background at the very doors of this city, offering never-tiring panoramas of delight and reached by superb boulevards in a matter of minutes.

While agriculture still plays an important part in the San Fernando valley and reaches up right to the edges of these green foothills, the homeseekers are gradually bringing the agricultural era of the valley to a close, and it is believed by many that the next few years will see the development of a powerful group of inland cities upon this fertile plain at whose entrance Glendale stands guard. Further particulars of the San Fernando valley and the picturesque towns of the Verdugo hills, "The Switzerland of America," will be found in Section Five of today's issue of The Glendale Evening News.

INVEST IN GLENDALE

Railroads in Glendale are recently investing more than $500,000 in trackage, station facilities, electrification and rolling stock. More than $1,000,000 was invested in schools and churches during 1923.

TWO FLOATS REPRESENT GLENDALE

Artistic Displays In Great Tournament of Roses
Parade Today

The Tournament of Roses at Pasadena today will commemorate the city's fiftieth anniversary.

The parade starts at 10:30 o'clock. It moves from point of formation, Colorado street, and South Orange Grove avenue, proceeding east on Colorado to Hill avenue, north on Hill avenue to East Orange Grove avenue, thence on East Orange Grove to the area of disbanding, between Lake and Los Robles avenues.

There are twenty-one classes for parade entries. Sweepstakes cups are offered for the two most beautiful entries in the line. Besides, there are cups, trophies and banners, the sterling prize numbering sixty-one.

There will be twenty-five bands and other musical bodies marching.

In the afternoon at 2:15 o'clock the United States Navy and the Washington football teams clash in a football game at Rose bowl. The tunnels to the bowl will open at noon.

All roads in Southern California lead today to Pasadena, and hundreds of Glendaleans were among those journeying to the Tournament of Roses.

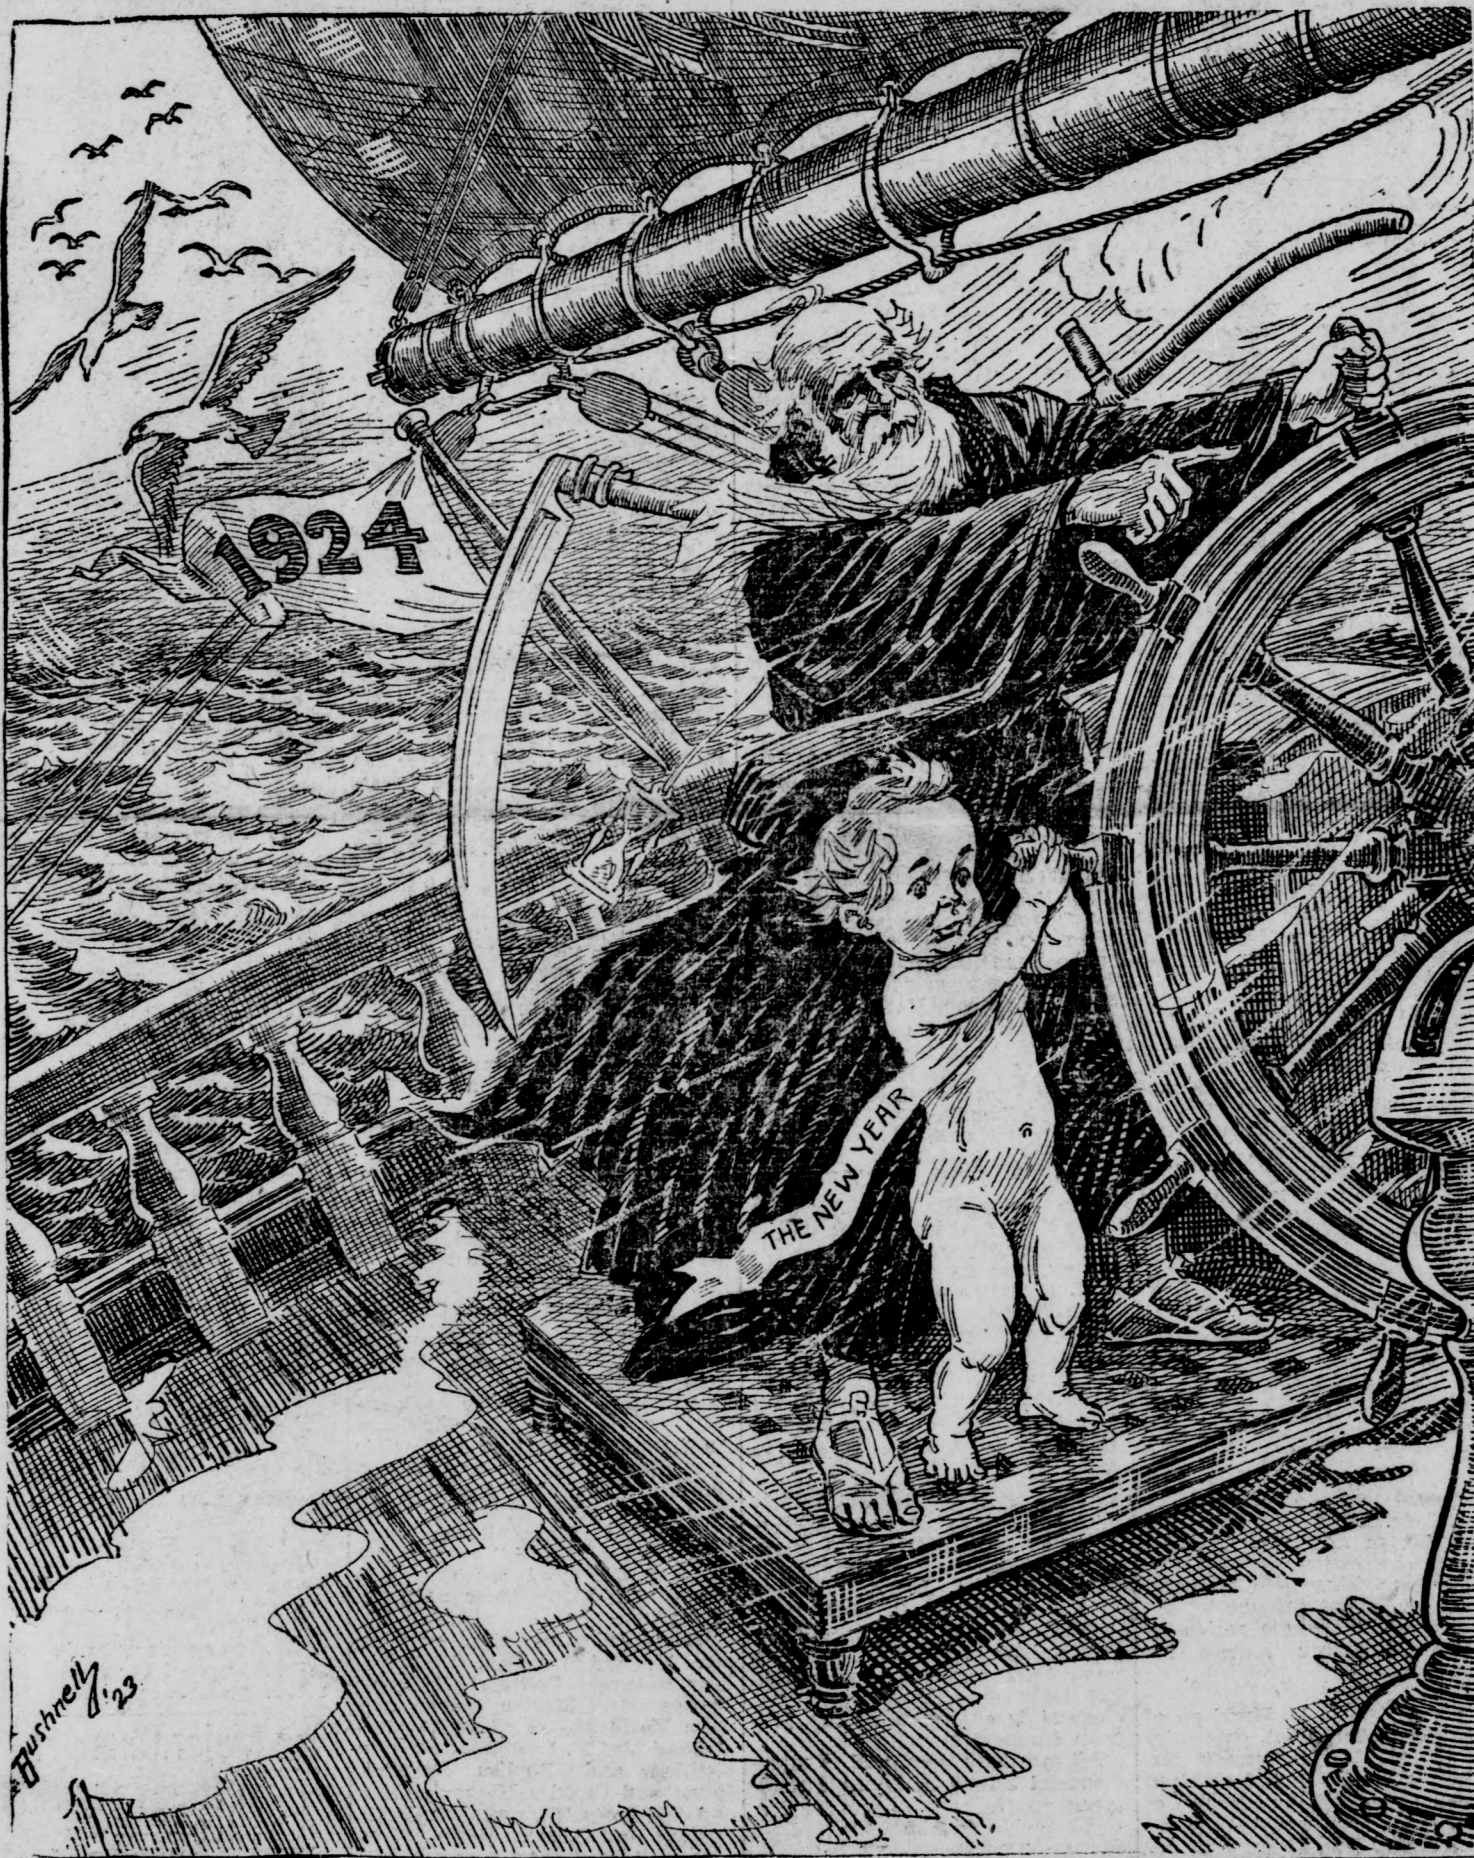

Thronging of motorists left Glendale before daylight this morning in order that they might get good places for the great parade-pageant, in which Glendale was represented by two gorgeously beautiful floats, one for the city and the other for Glendale lodge, No. 1289, B. P. O. E., both designed and decorated by L. W. Chobe, Glendale's wizard decorator, who has won first honors for "The Fastest Growing City in the United States" in the tournaments of 1921, 1922 and 1923.

Watch for Glendale

"Glendale" was heard on every hand among the thousands who crowded Pasadena streets, and all along the line of march of the colorful pageant keen anticipation was expressed for the arrival of Glendale's float.

BREAKING IN THE NEW PILOT

Charter Form Used By City Government

The city of Glendale operates under a charter form of government, the present charter being adopted in 1921 and amended in 1923. Five councilmen at large are elected, two one year, and three the next.

Spencer Robinson, known as "Glendale's Singing Mayor," has been chairman of the council since its first meeting. Under the charter, he is known as the city's mayor.

W. H. Reeves, former Commissioner of Public Works, of Pasadena, occupies the position of city manager.

At the head of the police department is Colonel John D. Fraser, well known in army circles, where he served for thirty years. A. H. Lankford is the chief, as well as the oldest in point of service, of the Glendale Fire Department.

Detailed information as to Glendale's city administration and city officials will be found in Section Three of this issue.

POPULATION INCREASE

Glendale showed a population increase of 393 per cent between 1910 and 1920. It was considered phenomenal. From 1920 to 1923 the increase already amounts to 370 per cent.

Many Subdivisions During Past Year

An insight into Glendale's phenomenal growth record is furnished by the statement of Ben S. Dupuy, city engineer.

The year 1923 has been a very active one. He states that eighty-six tracts, with 5,629 lots have been thrown open during the year, of which have been sold.

Three quarters of a million dollars has been expended for street improvements, of which the city furnished slightly over a half million, and sub-dividers the rest.

It shows that Glendale has 110 miles of improved streets within the city limits, as against fifty-six miles of unimproved streets.

The city engineer, in reviewing the work of the past year, and looking forward into 1924, says, "I can see nothing ahead but prosperity for Glendale." His detailed report and statement will be found in Section Two of this issue.

TELEPHONE FIGURES

Glendale city has 5488 telephones; the local district has 7709; there are 25 private exchanges here; 15 toll stations and 2800 square miles of territory managed by Fred Deal. In 1924 $200,000 will be spent improving Glendale service.

Realty Board Great Community Booster

Since its organization in 1920, the Glendale realty board has become known as one of the real live wires, up to the minute organizations of this city.

Its two past presidents, and present head of the board—Charles B. Guthrie, Cameron D. Thom and Peter Hanson, are all men of great executive ability and have the entire confidence of the residents of the city.

No movement is started for the betterment of the community but what the Glendale realty board plays a very important part in its ultimate consummation, and the members have taken the most active part of the campaign to put over the sewer bond election on January 8.

The board now has 118 members, ranks third in the California Real Estate association in point of numbers, and is the only board in California that subscribed 100 per cent to the national real estate journal. Additional details of the local realty board will be found in Section Four of this issue.

IMPROVE AVENUE

Proceedings are under way to widen Central avenue and as a result property values there are rapidly increasing.

Auto Industry Here Proves Great Asset

With twenty-nine automobile dealers and five accessory dealers doing business in Glendale, representing all the well known makes of cars, and manufacturers of standard equipment, the city is seen to occupy an important place in the automotive industry.

In the aggregate, moreover, many millions of dollars have been contributed to Glendale's assessed valuation by the substantial property investments and improvements these automotive merchants have made, while their various businesses total in the aggregate an imposing payroll, that has been estimated at approximately $20,000 per week.

The mechanics and artisans these motor car and accessory dealers have brought to Glendale have in turn bought property and built homes here, building up the city still further in wealth and population—a never-ending chain of prosperity, such as any sizeable industry develops in a community.

In the Eighth Section of today's issue of The Glendale Evening News will be found a wealth of detail regarding Glendale's thriving automobile industry, together with interesting articles showing why prosperity has come to Glendaleans through owning automobiles.

REMARKABLE POPULATION GAIN; AMAZING RECORD IN CONSTRUCTION WORK

Community Establishes Wonder Mark During Past Twelve Months and Prepares to Set
New One with 1924 Achievements

A greater Glendale, with its golden memories of 1923, today turns the pages of progress to another twelve months of prosperity. Nineteen twenty-four promises not only to be Glendale's greatest year, for that already is assured, but it will see new history in "the fastest growing city in America," such as never before.

Marvelous, unbelievable growth of Glendale in the last few years and particularly in the past year would be cause sufficient for congressional investigation anywhere else than Southern California. Amazing strides in building, as well as increased population and general development, literally surpass human comprehension.

Year of Sensations
Indeed, it has been said that many more years like 1923 will send history to the sanitarium—a year in which the world's greatest catastrophe occurred in Japan, nations went to smash, kings quit, dictators took their jobs, the president of these United States died, and many more events so that Father Time swept by as a fleeting shadow.

Words are but mere blades of grass in their description of the accomplishment here in Glendale. It is utterly impossible to convey to others than residents of this city, or those who have come and have seen for themselves, the growth of Glendale from a "country town" to a most metropolitan suburb of 50,000 souls—all this in the last decade.

Big Population Gain
In 1923 a gain of more than 10,000 population is recorded. The building permits for the year totalled over $10,000,000. The assessed valuation of the city is given at $21,000,000 while the next fiscal year it is estimated at $35,000,000. The local bank resources today total $14,000,000. Yet these figures are only part of the story chronicled in the columns of today's edition of The Glendale Evening News.

Glendale takes its place with Pasadena and San Diego in new construction during the last year with only Los Angeles and Long Beach outstripping this "fastest growing city" of Southern California—the whitest spot of all America, which means the whole wide world.

Remarkable Progress
However, the achievements of Glendale are much the more remarkable for only three years ago (Continued on Page 3)

Church Subscriptions Prosperity Evidence

In no way is the great prosperity of Glendale better exemplified than by what happened at the dedicatory exercises of the new $350,000 Glendale Presbyterian church at Harvard and Louise streets, Sunday, December 30, 1923, when the sum of $239,199 was subscribed then and there by members and friends of the institution, donations running all the way from $5 to $60,000.

In all, approximately 500 separate pledges were made. In that number were represented many in nowise connected with the church but taking that means of expressing their appreciation of its value to the city, while members and pastors of many other churches in this and other cities were among the donors.

This achievement is all the more remarkable when it is considered that over $100,000 had previously been subscribed, in addition to this sum, at the time the church was started. Today the Glendale Presbyterian church stands completed and free from debt, a monument to the deep spiritual earnestness of "the fastest growing city in America."

Postal Facts Show Local Advancement

Measured by the acid test of postoffice receipts, Glendale wins again, holding twelfth place in California, out of 486 offices of the first, second and third class, receipts for 1923 totaling close to $200,000—ahead of Bakersfield, Santa Barbara, Riverside, San Pedro, Santa Ana, Santa Monica and other large cities of the state.

The Glendale postoffice, moreover, serves a population of 50,000 within the city limits at the present time, reports Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson, and now numbers thirty-seven clerks and forty-two carriers, in addition to the executive officers.

So great have been the demands on the Glendale postoffice, in fact, that Washington has approved plans for a new building and construction of new headquarters will be undertaken as soon as the architects can complete their work. The location selected is on East Broadway, near Glendale avenue. Bids will be received in a few days and it is hoped to occupy the new building by April 1.

Additional details of the Glendale postoffice will be found in the Second Section of this edition of The Glendale Evening News.

City's Rapid Growth Sets World Record

Glendale may now be placed in the list of cities having over 50,000 population, as the result of investigation and estimate made by The Glendale Evening News. The information was gathered from four different, reliable sources, and the average of these placed the number of inhabitants of the city at 50,168.

This represents a gain of 18,900 over 1922, or approximately 60 per cent; 27,000 or 85 per cent over 1921; 36,650 or 364 per cent over 1920. In thirteen years, 1910 to 1923, Glendale has grown from a village of 2,742 to a city of over 50,000. This makes the average yearly increase in population 3.494. The greatest periods of increase have been the past four years, when Glendale became famous through the country as "The Fastest Growing City in America."

Although over $10,000,000 was spent in building in 1923, houses and business sites are at a premium, and the city is enjoying a period of unequalled prosperity.

A detailed record and story of Glendale's phenomenal growth will be found in Section Three of this issue.

LARGE ENTERPRISES

Tropico potteries, Los Angeles basket factory, Moreland truck plant, Harrower Laboratory and Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital are local enterprises employing more than 100 people each in Glendale.

REALTY TRANSFERS

Real estate transfers in Southern California increased $506,684,000 in 1923, as compared with 1922. The total for the year just past was $1,367,607,000.

Padelford's girlhood home at Gloucester and Boston. Relatives in Portsmouth, N. H. and in Maine were also visited.
En route home the Padelfords stopped in New York, Washington, D. C., Jacksonville, Fla., New Orleans and other points of interest.
While on their trip Mr. and Mrs. Padelford told everyone of Glendale and they state that nearly everyone they met is planning to come to Glendale some time.
"New York is the only city visited that shows the activity and hustle similar to Los Angeles and Glendale," says Mr. Padelford.
He further says, "New England is beautiful and grand with its dignity and antiquity, which they are preserving at the expense of growth, but California is wonderful with its beauty and the progressive spirit which its people are manifesting."

Birthday Dinner
Henry Clay Brown of 607
Geneva street, father of Dr. Laura Brown and Mrs. M. P. Harrison of Glendale, first saw the light of day back in the year 1832 in Franklin, Ohio, and although the exact date of his birth isn't until January 3, nevertheless in keeping with a custom of the family, the birthday celebration is taking place today at the Geneva street home.
The celebration on the birthday date is to be a social meeting of The Glendale Evening News Sunset club at the home of Mrs. Ellen Plannet and Mrs. E. S. McKee at 130 West Chestnut street.
The affair today however, is strictly a family one and Mr.
Brown is happy in having with him his daughters Dr. Laura Brown, Mrs. M. P. Harrison and family of Glendale; Mrs. M. D.
Andrews and family of Santa Ana.
His son Ed H. Brown and family of Van Nuys, Mr. and Mrs. H. M.
Lennox, Mrs. Martha Franklin and daughter Miss Julia of Los Angeles will complete the company.

Visiting Here
Mr. and Mrs. John Mathis of South Maryland avenue are entertaining as house guests their nephew Devro Mathis and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Algee of Ridgely, Tennessee who will enter Southern California. The guests accompanied Mr. Mathis when he returned a week ago from Tennessee where he spent the autumn months.
The party enjoyed a very pleasant trip coming by a southern route and making stops at Memphis, Tenn., New Orleans and at San Antonio, where they visited relatives. Mr. Algee is a prominent banker of his home city.
Another member of the party was B. Austin of Tiltonville, Tenn., who will visit his son in Los Angeles.
The nephew, Devro Mathis contemplates remaining permanently.
Mr. Mathis reports his cotton crop averaged up a little above that in other parts of the state, but fell short of the usual yield, as was the case over the entire region.

Holiday Hosts
Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Morgan and son Ernest, 1125 South Central were hosts at a Christmas party during the holiday week entertaining relatives and neighbors.
An impressive part of the affair was the singing of carols and Christmas songs by the children around the tree. Accompanied by the victrola the children sang
"Joy to the World," "Come All Ye Faithful" and for the final number "O Little Town of Bethlehem."
Those enjoying the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Geo. P. Shor, Miss Eleanor Collins, Harwood
Collins, Miss Marion Brown and John Kosloski, of Los Angeles,
Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Doggett, Misses
Kathleen and Phyllis Doggett,
Helen and Charles Higgenbotham and the hosts Mr. and Mrs. E. J.
Morgan and Ernest Morgan.

THEATRES

THE GLENDALE
Where was "Rosita" made?
That is the question being asked by many who have seen this Mary Pickford United Artists' production, which is being shown at the Glendale Theatre.
The answer? "It was made in America." The beautiful scenes of picturesque Spain, the gorgeous interiors of the king's palace, the street scenes of the little city of Toledo, the river and bridges, were conceived, designed and built at the Mary Pickford studios on Santa Monica boulevard in Hollywood, by members of the Mary Pickford organization.
It is hardly believable that this beautiful production was not made in Old Spain during the nineteenth century, at the exact time and place where the story is unfolded.
"Our Mary" is seen in one of the best roles of her screen career

THE GATEWAY
An automobile story, "Racing Hearts," written by Byron Morgan for Agnes Ayres, Paramount star, and directed by Paul Powell, now showing at the Gateway Theatre, is declared to be one of the best pictures in which this diminutive little screen artist has yet appeared.
She plays the part of an alternate girl, a firm believer in advertising as a business builder.
Her father's cars, the Granada motors, are in a bad way. Miss Ayres, by a series of clever publicity stunts, saves the firm from bankruptcy, and wins the love of the son of one of her father's competitors by her exploits.
Richard Dix plays opposite Miss Ayres, and Theodora Roberts in his inimitable manner, appears as the automobile manufacturer, the father of the daring Miss Ayres, who displays genius and skill in a number of ways in this picture.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Propo-

Nelson said these proposed changes are:

GLENDALE IS MECCA FOR HEROES OF SPORT WORLD SEEKING SITE FOR HOME

Famous Lights of Diamond, Track and Ring Establish Residences in City After Retirement from Active Labors

By AL DIX
Of The Evening News Staff.

Glendale is rapidly becoming noted as the residence of many celebrities who have been, or are at the present time, famous in the world of sport. Many have purchased homes here, while the rosters of the various organizations playing under the Glendale banner contain the names of many stars who would be included in a "blue book" of sportdom.

Realizing the many advantages which this city has to offer, many of the shining lights, after retirement from the ring, diamond or track, establish themselves in Glendale. Only last November announcement was made that Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion of the world, had purchased a $40,000 residence in Verdugo Woodlands with part of the proceeds of his 1923 comeback. The Kansas oil magnate, will, it is reported, when he has disposed of his holdings in the east, make Glendale his permanent home.

Donlin Is Another
Mike Donlin, captain of the Glendale White Sox in the Triple A, was for years idol of the New York fans, when he led the Giants under McGraw. While Mike is too old to approach his former playing ability, he still has the same scrappy temperament which pleases the fans, and is always arguing for the breaks when the White Sox are playing. Mike is one of the most picturesque characters ever connected with the game of baseball. After his retirement he entered the movies in Hollywood. Recently the announcement was made that he accepted the management of a branch store which the Paulina company confectioeners, of Los Angeles, intended to open in Glendale. When this is a certainty Mike says he will move to Glendale "for keeps."

Mickey O'Brien, catcher for the Philadelphia Nationals, purchased a home here this winter, not as an investment, but a permanent residence. He intends to spend the winters here, and in fact likes the city so well that he has thought seriously of giving up major league baseball and accepting the management of a local semi-pro team.

"Pete" Donahue, star pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds, is spending the winter in Glendale and is loud in his praises of the climate. Howard Ehmke and "Babe" Herman, two major leaguers who are Glendale products, naturally come home to spend their vacations. Jeffries Owens Ranch
Jim Jeffries, who lost the world's championship title to Jack Johnson in Reno in 1910 owns a ranch just north of the city limits and is a frequent visitor here. Many of the major league stars who are wintering in southern California spend much of their time here. The two Meusel brothers, Emil and Robert, world's series stars, are visiting in Glendale every week.

The list might be continued until Glendale could present a glittering array of stars. As those who have established their residence here sing the praises of Glendale to their old friends, many and more of them decide upon this city as the site of their permanent home.

On the diamond Glendale is represented by three teams, the White Sox in the triple A league, the K. C's in the San Fernando valley league, and the Glendale Athletic club, an independent. This city was advertised far and wide by the prowess of the football team of the Glendale Union high school for 1923, which fought its way into the southern California finals against Long Beach.

The Glendale post, American Legion, boasts one of the best basketball teams in Los Angeles county, and has not lost a game this year. Last year, after a bad start, losing the two first games, they went through the season without a defeat. They are endeavoring to keep their record clean this year.

Lots of Golfers
Having access to several of the finest links in California, Glendale golfers are exceptionally fortunate. The Oakmont Country club, in the course of construction, will open another avenue of recreation, relieving the congestion of Annandale and Elmeridge. Glendale has produced her share of boxers and wrestlers. The best of the present bunch is Hackenschmidt, who has defeated all comers, including Bull Montana. At the present time he is barnstorming up north.

This city is known as a good "sport" town. Legitimate entertainment are well patronized, and police supervision is very strict. For those who have outgrown the more violent recreations, there are numerous croquet and horseshoe clubs and bowling greens. Most of these are crowded daily with patrons of the sport.

Tennis of course is generally played. There is a very promising crop of youngsters coming up in this line at the high school. Glendale climate is ideal for outdoor sport, and tennis enthusiasts are able to keep in condition the year around.

There is probably no branch of outdoor sport that does not boast patrons in Glendale, and arrangements to take care of the crowds have been made apace with the growth of the city. The year 1923 saw the completion of one of the finest ball parks in the state on San Fernando road, which is known as "The Glendale Base Ball Park, Home of the White Sox." Frank Kerwin and Grant Leischner, joint owners of the team, have given Glendale a park of which any city might well be proud.

City Reaches High Mark In Achievements; Big Year Is Born Today

It had no independent postoffice; it was not listed on the Southern Pacific railway maps, although on the main line; and it was considered lightly by such well established municipalities as Riverside, Santa Barbara, Pasadena and San Diego—the latter an exposition city in 1915!

This has all been changed in the brief span of months that Glendale has shown its most remarkable growth. The independent postoffice here now is twelfth in volume in the state of California, exceeded only by such cities as Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Long Beach, Sacramento, Fresno, San Jose, Stockton, San Diego, Pasadena and Berkeley.

The Southern Pacific company soon will be stopping all of its trains at a new $100,000 station here while all other transcon-

Citizens Answer Eagerly To Invitation to Enter Greater Glendale Parade

By RALPH A. LYND
Of The Evening News Staff.

Success beyond anything yet hoped for is assured the Greater Glendale Parade that will be held on Saturday, January 5, to celebrate the attainment of the ten million dollar building goal for the year 1923 and to arouse enthusiasm for the sewer bonds that are to be voted on at the election on January 8, according to L. H. Myers, chairman of the parade committee.

The response of every class of citizens in Glendale has been prompt and enthusiastic, he declares, and the parade will see close to 1000 cars and trucks in line, decorated with flags and pennants and banners that will advertise to the world, through motion pictures and by other means, that Glendale is up and coming.

Six big trucks will be in line, bearing immense signs on each side, reading: "Building permits, 1923, $10,000,000. Vote Sewer Bonds and make building permits, 1924, $20,000,000."

Twenty thousand cards bearing the same lettering will be distributed along the line of the parade and 500 pennants with "Vote Sewer Bonds" will also be used to decorate the cars, or they may be waved around any way the owners desire.

It is pointed out by Mr. Myers that any firm in Glendale may decorate its trucks and cars and enter them in the commercial division of the parade, and any citizens who wish to take part in the monster procession will be welcomed in the division allotted to them.

In the commercial division the Crescent Creamery company has agreed to bring out a fleet of its trucks from Los Angeles, together with the company's own band, and share in the celebration.

The engineers and contractors, who will form a part of the city departments division, will have a band of their own in line and will help to spread harmony along the route.

The following information is given by the parade committee for the various organizations that will take part in it:

SWIMMING POOL PROVES POPULAR

Plunge in Patterson Park Conducted By City Meets Approval

"Come on in, the water's fine." And that's just what it is at Glendale's up-to-date municipal outdoor swimming pool in Patterson park. Built in 1921 at a cost of $12,000 to supply an insistent demand for recreation of this sort, it has enjoyed increasing popularity until last season it was filled with happy bathers a great part of the time.

The pool is forty feet wide by 100 feet long, and ranges in depth from two to eight feet. It is fully equipped with spring-boards and all other paraphernalia, and a municipal guard is stationed there when the pool is open to assist any one who might get into difficulties.

In the clubhouse adjoining are twelve showers, with dressing rooms. A charge of 25 cents for adults is made, with a minimum charge of 5 cents for children under 12. Adjoining the main pool is a "baby" pool, one foot in depth, where the kiddies may paddle to their heart's content.

The pool is open during the summer school vacation, the water being heated by the sun's rays. Henry Wendt is in charge of the pool, and his wife acts as municipal nurse for the clubhouse.

TWO BIG FLOATS IN ROSE PARADE

Glendale Has Very Artistic Designs In Pasadena Tournament

section for fraternal orders was reserved in the parade, so an added interest for Glendale was the entry of the Elks lodge.

"Fairylend" and "Charity" express the spirits of Mr. Chobe's floats entered today, and the riot of color and beauty displayed brought out his clever inspirations.

Gets Inspiration

Mr. Chobe got his inspiration from the well-loved childhood tale of the two children, who went in search of the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, and who returned old, weary and unsuccessful, for the pot of gold is to be found only in Fairylend.

In working out his inspiration Mr. Chobe took Glendale to be the real Fairylend, where the pot of gold (symbolic of content) is to be found. The great number of people searching in vain for the pot of gold in all parts of the world have come to Glendale, and here attained the object of their quest, thus making Glendale the fastest growing city in America.

Here's Description

So the Glendale floral float will represent Fairylend, and the following description of it comes from Mr. Chobe.

"In the background are tall, stately mountains, with pine trees silhouetted against a blue sky with sunset clouds. As these mountains slope to the grassy, flower-sprinkled fairy meadow, the subtle shadow of canyons may be seen, and to the left is a mysterious cave, which we may guess is the home of the delightful little brownie, who has filled his pack with gold from the pot of content and is about to wend his way back up the winding trail. Down these mountains rushes a fairy waterfall, which twists and winds until finally it disappears in the flowery meadow.

"Near the base of the mountains are dark pine trees, laden with lacy moss and shrouded in mist, which springs from the waterfall as it jumps from rock to rock. Out of this mist rises a glorious, colorful rainbow forming a graceful arch, at the end of which may be found the pot of gold.

Magic Flowers

"In this enchanted meadow are four quaint fairy trees, whose branches, resplendent with magic flowers of gorgeous hues, droop gracefully toward the waving grass. On the branches of one of these trees a spider has spun its web.

"Perched upon a creamy toadstool, listening to the song of the bluebird of happiness in the orchid tree nearby is a dainty little fairy. Near the center of the fairy meadow the tiny fairy queen is seated upon her frog steed. She is clad in a gown of shimmering white, reflecting the sparkle of her glistening wings, which sway gently back and forth. On her head is a crown of delicate blossoms. In her hand she holds the magic wand with which she generously bestows the gift of happiness upon all who enter her realm.

"The flower-sprinkled meadow forms the skirt, which ends in a border of delicately tinted roses intertwined with strands of smilax and maiden hair fern.

Beautiful Picture

"The lettering is done in pink carnations, F-I-R-E-L-I-G-H-T on the front and back, and G-L-E-N-D-A-L-E on the sides.

"The mountains are decorated with heath, violets, and ferns; the sky is of blue delphinium with clouds of pink and salmon sweet-peas; the rainbow is of sweet-peas in rainbow hues with the pot of gold of cornflowers and marigolds. The toadstools are made of narcissus and white carnations; the frog of Chinese lilies, narcissus and maiden hair fern. The tree on the front of the slope is decorated with orchids, the other trees with roses. In the grass are many varieties of rare flowers and beautiful roses."

Glendale Girls

The fairies will be portrayed by two pretty little Glendale misses, Elizabeth Hoffman of 515 Patterson avenue, and Eleanor Marek of 207 West Garfield street. Little Richard McPhail of 318 Ivy street will be the brownie. All of the children are 6 years of age and pupils of the Pearl Keller School of Dancing and Dramatic Art.

R. E. Dodsworth of the fire department will pilot the community float.

"Charity" is to be the great principal of Elks lodge, expressed in the float of the Glendale Elks lodge. Mr. Chobe gives the following description of it:

"Charity will be represented by a woman in Grecian costume administering aid to a man in distress. These figures, which are made of flowers are placed on the porch of a Grecian temple.

"On the front wall of the temple, in back of the figures, the American flag flanked in graceful folds around an elk's head and clock, symbols of the Elks' order. The flag is made of red and white carnations with blue corn flowers for the field.

Purple and White

"A walk of flowers leads up to the Grecian temple, and on either side of this walk is an expanse of green grass. The design is a classically simple Doric, copied from the Parthenon, the most characteristic Grecian design, the egg and dart decorates the cornice.

"The color scheme of purple and white (the Elks' colors) is broken only by the red, white and blue of the flag, and the green of the foliage.

"The pillars and the cornice are of white Chinese lilies, the egg and dart design is in purple violets. The walls of the temple are of purple violets and greenery, the steps of candytuft. The figures are of white carnations. The walk

EUROPE WATCHES OLDSMOBILE SIX

Baker's Spectacular Drive Is Surprise to Engineers
Of Old World

"Small bores and long strokes are the trend in automobile building now," says C. H. Hunter, 208 West Broadway, local Oldsmobile agent.

"The new Oldsmobile six is the subject of considerable discussion in European automotive engineering circles because of the record recently made by a stock touring car in crossing the American continent from New York to Los Angeles in high gear with all other gears removed from the transmission. 'Cannon-Ball' Baker, the driver, is very well known in Europe because of the many records he established in every country on the globe during the last eighteen years; and his latest and most spectacular feat has opened the eyes of European engineers to the possibilities of the small bore, high speed, high efficiency type of six-cylinder engine.

"Gasoline mileage is a very vital factor in foreign engine design, due in a large measure to the high cost of fuel. The tendency in European design is toward the small, compact, highly efficient and economical engine. The wonderful gasoline mileage record established by Baker on this gear run (28.7 miles per gallon) has demonstrated that a 6-cylinder engine, even with a piston displacement of 170 cu. in., can be built to give such high gasoline mileage and corresponding economy of maintenance and upkeep.

Austrian Judges Are Honest Though Poor

VIENNA, Jan. 1. — Austrian judges are now paid less than the average American office boy and are living in deplorable misery as a result.

The average monthly income of a judge—and many get much below the average—is about $10 out of which he has to buy his own robes and pay his traveling expenses. Thus there are innumerable cases of judges sitting on their benches in old and torn gowns—literally falling to pieces.

Dr. Friedrich Engel, ex-president of the Commercial Court and Union of Judges, in a trenchant article deprecates the prevailing deplorable conditions among such an honorable profession and cites many cases in which, with their wives and families, the judges suffer intense hunger.

It is their greatest pride, says Dr. Engel, that despite all their adversities, they have remained inaccessible to graft.

leading to the temple is made in squares of candytuft and Dresden. The roof and the skirt are of Oregon grape, the lettering in white carnations.

Invent Safety X-Ray, Is Like Searchlight

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 1.—A new X-ray tube that banishes the danger to the operator, invented by Mrs. Holst and Bouwers, two scientists here, is expected to have the greatest influence on future medical progress.

The invention consists of a tube which generates a powerful beam of X-rays, practically like a searchlight.

No rays emerge from the tube except in the beam of light, there thus being absolutely no danger to the operator. Deprived of technicalities, the invention is that a stream of negative electrons is caused by means of a tiny filament heated to incandescence by an electric current, and that this draws rays from the positive anode of the tube in a finely focused pencil.

The tube can be quite safely held in the hand, thus allowing the rays to be directed on any local spot of the flesh for treatment.

Glendalian Has Post On Club's Committee

Glendale was represented recently at the first annual meeting of the Anglo-Canadian club held at the Biltmore hotel, in Los Angeles, featured by the beginning of the membership of the Anglo-Canadian club building and home for all Canadians and Britishers, who might reside hereabouts, or be visitors.

Robert O. Blott, 1439 South Glendale avenue, was named a member of the organization committee.

The committee has already secured 300 life memberships, and the plans of the clubhouse to cost $275,000, are completed and the menu at the banquet were decorated with a picture of the proposed building.

Judge Saw What He Could See In Divorce

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 1. An illustration of the possibilities of judicial short cuts was given in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia by Justice Stafford, who was presiding at the trial of a divorce case.

The co-respondent, who was testifying, asserted no one could see into his bedroom when standing on a railing outside.

"That is not true," interjected the justice. "I went there this morning and looked."

A verdict for the plaintiff for absolute divorce was granted and the co-respondent was ordered to pay the costs.

COMALT PRODUCT GAINS IN FAVOR

Inquiry From South Africa
Shows Wide Interest
In Glendale Drink

That Comalt, the new chocolate malted milk made by the S. W. Brown company of Glendale, is not only gaining a national, but an international reputation, is evidenced in a number of communications received by the manufacturers. Particularly interesting is a letter from Johannesburg, South Africa, making inquiry as to a number of features concerning Comalt.

From the interest manifested in this Glendale product, it is pointed out, its widespread favorability is being made more and more a household article, in addition to its growing popularity as a drink.

While Comalt is only a comparatively new product, it is pointed out, its wide-spread favorable reputation, extending to the other side of the globe, has caused a rapid increase in the demand for it, and already the factory is turning out this article in large quantities. This adds another to Glendale's rapidly growing list of manufacturers, and, as evidenced by its favorable reputation over such a wide territory, the company will be taxed to capacity during the next few months to supply the demand for Comalt.

Following are a few of the many letters being received daily which show the popularity of Comalt:

"Johannesburg, South Africa, Dec. 22, 1923.
Messrs. S. W. Brown Co., Glendale, Calif.

Dear Sirs: We have noted your advertisement in The National Bottlers' Gazette, as also your intimation of the new product you are placing on the market, i. e. COMALT.

We shall be pleased if you will let us have particulars of your product, particularly the strength for transfer into syrup form, so that we can notify our clients how this line will work on the price basis. It will also be necessary for you to intimate the method of packing, and as the export of 'Comalt' to this distant section will mean a fairly heavy expense, we would suggest a concentrated form thereof, in order to reduce the cost to the minimum.

PROGRESS SHOWN IN YEAR'S TRADE

Federal Reserve Bank Report Reveals Activity in Western Business

Sound and substantial economic progress characterized the year 1923 in the Twelfth Federal Reserve district, despite irregularity in a few fields, notably agriculture. Complete returns for eleven months and partial returns for December indicate that the year has been one of record activity in production and business, while bank credit for growing, harvesting, and marketing the district's crops, as well as for financing commerce and industry, has been continuously available at moderate cost.

Production in the major industries of the district attained high levels during the spring months of the year and, except for seasonal declines, was generally maintained during later months.

Employment conditions, on the whole, have been normal or better than normal, and thus far this winter seasonal unemployment has been no greater than usual. The total volume of business transacted in the district is most accurately reflected in figures of checks drawn against individual accounts at commercial banks, which also indicate record activity during 1923. An index of such debits, in the construction of which the 1919 monthly average was taken as 100, has stood above 120 in every month of the present year, except September, and the average for the year was 128.5. The average for the previous year, except September, and the average for the year was 128.5. The average for the previous record year, 1920, was 122.9.

From the southeastern section of the country, comes another letter showing the reception with which Comalt has met:

"Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 19, 1923.
S. W. Brown Co., Inc., Glendale, Calif.

Dear Sir: Judging from the favor with which your Comalt was received at the Providence convention, there is an excellent field for its sale, and it only needs to be vigorously cultivated to produce profitable results.

"We shall be very glad indeed to co-operate with you in this connection, and shall endeavor to make our service thoroughly satisfactory and profitable to you, in which effort we are confident of success.

COMMENT That's All

Happy New Year To All
Resolutions Now In Order
Make It 'Greatest Year'
Send This Number East

By Gil A. Cowan

A happy and prosperous New Year is the wish of everyone, for everyone and by everyone today!

It is the wish of The Glendale Evening News, it is the personal feeling of the writer toward his fellowman.

For, if you will pardon our split sentences and poor choice of language throughout the coming year as you have in the past, there is no reason why we should not be happy, or at least wish that everyone else is happy.

Prosperity is taken for granted if you live in Glendale.

And for those who do not live here we hope you prosper sufficiently to eventually, if not now, make Glendale your homing place.

Happiness and prosperity go hand in hand here.

Resolutions are in order this day. We have written so many resolutions, read so many resolutions, made so many resolutions, some good and effective, some not so good and soon forgotten, that we hate to write around the subject.

First of all, all good people of Glendale are going to resolve to vote the sewer bonds 100 per cent. To the casual reader it may seem incongruous that we place this sanitary resolution before all else, but it is the most important issue we have to face in Glendale.

On January 8 the electors of this city will vote $1,600,000 for mains and laterals. At least we are resolved to do so. And that's that.

The second resolution is to sustain this city's great program of building. Ten million dollars and more in 1923 is only a starter. This next year should see $15,000,000 new construction listed. It is the plan of the city to build, not for today, but tomorrow. The great tide of people coming to California has just begun. And we must build to house these newcomers, at the same time providing for their employment.

Of utmost importance in the way of resolutions is for a group of business men to band themselves together and actually BUILD a hotel. Every year some individual resolves to do so, but as yet the only fruition of all these plans is the rather startling statement in the "Hotel Guide" that we have the Ambrosini hotel of 150 rooms, rates $1.50 a day up. Now if we only had—

But we haven't a hotel of any such magnitude, and the only thing we can do in Glendale is to resolve to GET one. Remember, Glendale gets what it goes after.

And, while we are in a resolving frame of mind, so to speak, why not light up Broadway and Brand boulevard a little better, improve San Fernando road and widen it to 120 feet, make Glendale avenue another great thoroughfare and in other ways make Glendale greater.

Sure, a good slogan for 1924 would be "Greater Glendale's Greatest Year."

As you read these printed pages today, particularly if you are in some far away city or hamlet, let the writer assure you that The Glendale Evening News simply gives you a representation of the city it actually is—not what it may be.

The growth of Glendale is a story unparalleled in the history of suburban development. From 5,000 population ten years ago it has grown to 50,000 happy, prosperous people. This 1000 per cent increase has not been the result of an "oil boom," and, although gold is to be found here in the native sand, there has been no "gold rush," for it is not that kind of pay dirt.

Glendale has grown because it is a most DESIRABLE place in which anyone can wish to reside. It is the LOGICAL location for a city. And it is so ACCESSIBLE that all other suburbs of Los Angeles fade into insignificance, it seems.

However, people in Glendale are not envious of others' prosperity. It has been Glendale money, among that of other places, which has aided in the development of the Signal Hill, and Santa Fe oilfields. It has been Glendale subdividers who have given Burbank and Pasadena and Eagle Rock and Alhambra impetus and vision. It has been Glendale builders who have caused other communities to "look-see" and do likewise.

All of which is good, for the prosperity of Glendale depends on the prosperity of the other sections of the southland as well as the state of California at large.

It is not for today, but tomorrow we are building here. Few fortunes have been made, although many have won a competence through industry and wise investment.

And why should it be otherwise? To live in Glendale, peacefully, happily among 100 per cent American population, that is all any man need ask.

Glendale has schools, churches, theatres, stores and homes; it has factories, laboratories and industries worth while, although it can not be called "an industrial city."

Glendale is closer to institutions of higher education than most of the metropolis in which they are located. Glendale is nearer to the heart of Los Angeles than most of the territory in that city itself.

But why tell all the story here. Read this bulletin from cover to cover. Get the facts. Tell your friends.

Then Glendale will tell itself to the world!

CITY'S OLD FOLK IN SUNSET CLUB

Organization Starts With 11 Members, Each of Whom Is Past 90 Years

The milestones along life's highway are becoming fewer and fewer for Glendale's old folk and past the 90-year mark and it is with pleasure that The Glendale Evening News gives this space today to a greeting to all Glendale's elderly residents, particularly to those enrolled in The Glendale Evening News Sunset Club, an informal organization, which came into being a year and a half ago.

There were eleven charter members of this unique organization, each one past 90 years of age, and during the past year death has taken six of these Mrs. Lucinda Houghtaling, Ezekiel McColl, Mrs. Esther Smith, Mrs. Melissa Otterman, H. W. Myers and Rebecca Morse Bradley.

Of the eleven charter members there remain Mama Nanita Vergado Chobolla, 117 years of age, of Montrose; Mrs. Susanna Hagley, 98 years of age, of 372 Burdett street; Charles Bock, 93 years of age, of 122 North Castle avenue, Eagle Rock; Henry Clay Brown, 91 years of age, of 607 Geneva street; and Charles Mallett, aged 91 years, of 1111 East Lexington drive.

During the past year the age limit of the club was extended to 85 years of age and among the old people enrolled were Mrs. Sarah Stockley Scott, Joseph M. Olmsted, Mrs. Mary Phillips, Jeffrey Wisner Gillette, Mrs. Zilpha A. Parker, A. A. Cleveland, Isaac Pearson, John Hyde Braly (now deceased), Caroline Frances Wilcox, S. D. Newbill, Mrs. A. E. Wallace, J. E. Oldright, Dominic Minale, Mrs. Plannette, George M. Walton, Mrs. Della R. Stone, Mrs. E. B. Murphy, Mrs. Adeline Harter and Mrs. S. J. Lane.

There has only been one meeting of the club, August 28, with Mrs. Zilpha A. Parker at the home of her daughter, Mrs. B. O. Holbrook at 426 West Harvard street. A second meeting of these grand old folks is to be held Thursday, January 3, with Mrs. Plannette at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. S. McKee, 130 West Chestnut street.

Chief of Printing Bureau Quits Post

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—The resignation of Louis A. Hill from the directorship of the bureau of printing and engraving, was announced at the treasury department this afternoon. It is understood the resignation will be accepted by Secretary Mellon.

Affairs at the bureau have been in a complicated state since the discharge of several employees a year ago, under an executive order issued by President Harding.

One Hundred Years Ago!

In 1824—Abraham Lincoln, a lad of 15 years, was working on a ferryboat on the Ohio river for $6 a month.

The Marquis of Lafayette visited America, and was received with tremendous acclaim by crowds of cheering people wherever he went.

Steam ferries were operated for the first time between New York and Brooklyn.

An epidemic of yellow fever was raging in Louisiana.

The manufacture of flannel by water power was first started at Amesbury, Massachusetts.

An English bricklayer named Joseph Aspdin, took out a patent for a material he called "portland cement," naming it "portland" because when it hardened it resembled a gray stone found on the Isle of Portland off the coast of England. The name has stuck ever since and the modern portland cement industry has been developed from Aspdin's discovery.

The Erie canal, connecting the Great Lakes with New York, was rapidly nearing completion. The first steamboat passed through the canal from Rochester to Albany.

Anthracite coal was used for the first time in New York.

The Colorado beetle, commonly known as the potato bug, made its first appearance in Wisconsin.

The first three-story brick house had just been completed in Brooklyn, N. Y. The town had a population of 7000. The houses had just been numbered and some of the streets paved.

M. Nicpce, a Frenchman, working with his countryman, Daguerre, discovered the science that led to the invention of the daguerreotype in 1838.

There was much excitement throughout the country over the presidential election, due to the large number of candidates. John Quincy Adams represented the east, Crawford the south and Clay and Jackson the west.

State Officials Will Probe Broker's Books

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1.—Representatives of the state corporation commissioner's office have seized the books of Roy T. West, a broker who has handled oil stock shares for the C. C. Julian company, and immediately commenced to audit them to ascertain the status of the totals of shares sold by the corporation, and its agents.

The allegation was made by the corporation commissioner's representative, that West refused to permit an inspection of the books in his office on Saturday, and the seizure was thereupon ordered by the court writ. It was reported that the corporation commissioner's office has launched a thorough investigation of the records of the Julian corporation, beginning with the seizure of the books in West's office.

Building Permits Reach Record Mark; Ten Millions Is Total For Year 1923

The last day of 1923 saw the total for the building permits issued during the year mount to $10,047,694. Since the passing of the ten million dollar mark several days ago, business has been rather light. Apparently contractors and individual builders are awaiting the advent of 1924 to obtain permission to assist in creating a new record for Glendale.

So much has been said regarding the year's record that December's share in the glory has been rather unnoticed, yet, with nine permits issued yesterday, the totals for the month reached $800,543, ranking eighth in monthly totals for the year. The total for December of 1923 exceeds that of the corresponding month in 1922 by $312,479, showing a gain of 64 per cent. Four years ago, in 1919, permits for the entire year were but $591,429, over $200,000 less than in December of 1923. This gives some idea of the rapidity with which Glendale has grown.

Our dreams and visions are not "air castles"—they are substantial dreams—made of determination and resolves that this year we will give greater service—in merchandise—in efficient sales forces and in making our store a most desirable and pleasant place to trade.

We wish the name of PENDROY'S to continually stand out before you as an institution representing quality, service and satisfaction.

POSTAL FIGURES SHOW CITY'S EXPANSION

G. M. RAILWAY BIG ASSET TO CITY

Line Helps to Develop Big Territory; Union Pacific Being Electrified

By AL DIX
Of The Evening News Staff.

No more is the Glendale & Montrose railway regarded by any resident of this sector as the somewhat misguided effort of several idealists to provide transportation, that had as its chief recommendation its scenic beauties, to a part of the country considered as tributary to Glendale and the ideal site for a week-end home.

No more is it regarded as a babe in long clothes that must be looked after with diligent care lest the flickering flame of life should become extinct.

Important Factor

It has passed this stage. Today it stands out pre-eminently as one of the great industries of Glendale, an important factor in our civic life, and a very necessary link of inter-communication between the flourishing cities of Eagle Rock, Montrose, La Crescenta and Glendale. In a short time, through the efforts of the directors of this road, the Verdugo section will have direct transportation to Los Angeles.

The Glendale & Montrose railway, according to Preston L. Hatch, general manager, is not only paying operating expenses, but it is creating a revenue that is being put back into the system as fast as it is earned.

The history of this road is very similar to that of any other line that has pioneered any section of the west. It has been a very hard struggle. Built ten years ago to supply Glendale an outlet to Los Angeles via Eagle Rock, the Los Angeles and Arizona Land com-

Central Avenue Section Steadily Advances Into Frontage of High Value

One of the outstanding events of 1923, not only to property owners interested but to the general public, was the institution of proceedings by the City Council for the improvement of Central avenue, thus consummating long-continued efforts to bring this important thoroughfare into its own.

Just as L. H. Wilson is inseparably linked with the development of San Fernando road, Charles B. Guthrie stands at the head of those who have struggled to develop Central avenue. It was he who made the first prediction that Glendale would need more than one main north and south traffic artery, as it was he who, three years ago, predicted that Brand boulevard frontage would bring its present prices, stating that values would reach $100 per front foot from Doran street to Lexington drive, $200 from Lexington drive to California avenue, $300 from California avenue to Wilson avenue, and $400 from Wilson avenue to Broadway.

On the strength of this prediction Mr. Guthrie sold 1073 feet of Brand boulevard frontage in a short time—among these sales 150 feet on the pany soon persuaded the management to run the cars out to Verdugo canyon, where Verdugo Woodlands now flourishes.

Line Extended

Eight years ago, the Walters-Walton company, who placed Montrose on the market, got the line extended to that place, and later it was built through to La Crescenta. This last year the line has been extended from Los Angeles avenue to Pennsylvania avenue, a distance of more than half a mile.

Probably the most important event of the year for the company was the arrival in Glendale on November 9 of the big fifty-ton, 600-volt, 400-horsepower Baldwin Westinghouse electric locomotive, from the factory of the Westingeast side of the boulevard, just north of California avenue, to Nathan Rigdon, for $21,000, and 50 feet between California and Wilson avenues to Philip W. Parker for $36,000. These properties are now worth fortunes.

In the same way Mr. Guthrie has predicted the rise of property values along Central avenue, and believes that present values will double and treble in the next three years. To back up his faith, he leased last fall, the northwest corner of Central avenue and Broadway, for ninety-nine years, at a total rental of approximately $400,000, and later bought the adjoining lot to the north. Anyone who will study the Central avenue district, in relation to the rest of Glendale, must realize it is to become the chief apartment house area of the city, is the way Mr. Guthrie sees it.

house Electric & Manufacturing company at East Pittsburgh, Pa. The engine made the trip from the eastern state to Glendale in fourteen days, and William Nagle, who was in charge during that time, stated that it attracted a great deal of attention in all parts of the country. It carried signs which read: "I'm on my way to Glendale, California. The fastest growing city in America."

This new engine, purchased at a cost of $30,000, has been in operation since its arrival here, and is giving perfect satisfaction, according to Mr. Hatch.

SUBDIVISIONS NUMEROUS IN YEAR

Total of Eighty-Six Tracts With 5629 Lots Sold Here During 1923

Some astounding facts and figures pertaining to the marvelous growth which Glendale has enjoyed in 1923, are made public in City Engineer Ben S. Dupuy's statement relative to the activities for the past year, in his department.

Among other things he points out:

Three-quarters of a million dollars has been expended for street improvements.

Glendale has 110 miles of improved streets and 56 miles of unimproved streets.

In 1923, 86 subdivisions were laid out, with 5629 lots.

In reviewing the work of the past year he also looks forward with confidence to 1924, when over $1,000,000 will be expended on streets within the city limits.

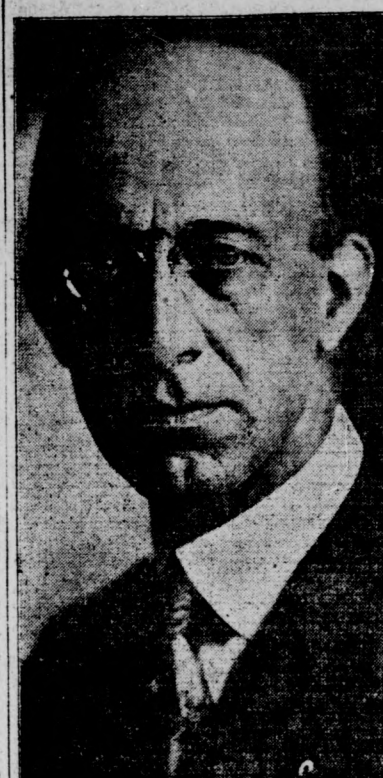

Mr. Dupuy says:

"As I look back over the year's work just past, and look forward to the year ahead, I can see nothing but prosperity for Glendale."

"We have come through the year with over $550,000 worth of street improvements, for which assessments have been made, and probably half as much more has been done by the big subdividers, for which we have no cost record. In all this work there has been no complaint about the work not being done according to specifications, or that the contractors have not lived up to the terms of their contracts. We have had very few complaints about assessments, which have been issued at the rate of about one per week."

"Instead of complaints, we have had the expressions of good (Continued on page 8)

Report Shows Agricultural Conditions Throughout Country Improved

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Agricultural conditions throughout the United States are generally good and "continue to improve," declared following a conference with the presidents of the Federal Land banks.

"The most encouraging part of the report is the tendency throughout the United States to diversified farming," Cooper said. "It is our belief that diversification and co-operative marketing furnish the only sound basis for agricultural prosperity."

"There are agricultural sections which are not prosperous. These, of course, include only a fractional part of the total farming area."

"The fruit growers and cattle raisers appear to be the most unfortunate. The wheat farmer on the whole, has not had a prosperous year."

Cooper said the federal intermediate credit banks have been able to extend helpful service to many co-operative associations.

Gives Summary

He summarized conditions in the west as follows:

"Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas: General conditions slightly improved over last year. District suffered from prices and crop conditions."

"Arizona, California, Nevada and Utah: Conditions on whole not as good as last year. Fruit men of California making no profit and some suffering losses. High freight rates are heavy tax on agriculture. The dairymen and poultrymen have had a better year than last year. Sugar beet growers in Utah have a good crop with prospects of fair prices."

"Idaho, Montana, Oregon and Washington: Conditions better than year ago. Wheat harvest largest in history; same true as to livestock and fruits. Dairying and poultry on increase. Cost of transportation, however, consumes large portion of the farmers' profits. Apple crop in Oregon and Idaho large, but price uncertain and unsatisfactory."

Pay Dues in Advance To National Boards

A check in advance for $750, in payment for annual dues to the National Association of Real Estate Boards for the year 1924 at the rate of $5 per active member, has already been received at headquarters from the Louisville Real Estate Board.

"Although the board realized that the national association has not yet formally approved the increased fee of $5 per active member for member boards," a letter accompanying the check explains, "it is in harmony with the policies of the national association in its efforts to be of increased service to the realtors in the United States. The board's governing authorities, therefore, have directed its executive secretary to forward its check for the above amount for 150 active members."

LOCAL OFFICE NOW STANDS TWELFTH IN STATE FOR TOTAL OF RECEIPTS

Plans for New Building to House Uncle Sam's Mail Departments Are Approved and Bids Will Soon Be Called For; Extensions of Carrier Systems Accomplished and More Under Way

By RALPH A. LYND
Of The Evening News Staff.

As a reliable indicator of the growth of Glendale and as an unfailing barometer of business development, the Glendale postoffice is one of the agencies that show by cold figures just what the city and its people are accomplishing in the way of expansion. Starting at the first of 1923, the force employed in the Glendale postoffice numbered twenty-seven clerks and twenty-nine carriers. Today there are thirty-seven clerks on the payroll and forty-two carriers, as well as the executive officers.

These additions have met matters of absolute necessity in order to take care of the steadily increasing flood of incoming and outgoing mail.

Another concrete indication of the city's growth is seen in the figures showing the receipts for the year. On December 31, 1923, the office reported receipts for that year of $151,339.69, a figure that had advanced close to the $200,000 mark as December, 1923, reached its close.

Twelfth In List

The postoffice in Glendale stands twelfth in the list of the first class offices in the state, based on the volume of its receipts as compiled by the postoffice department at Washington, being the only office in the state in the classification embraced between the figures of $150,000 and $200,000.

In order to keep pace with the growth of Glendale's population it has been necessary to extend the carrier service not only in the city but on the rural routes, and figures furnished by Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson show that seven miles of city streets are being served now that were not receiving city delivery at the first of 1923, and ten miles of rural free delivery have also been added during the past year. Beginning January 1, the rural free delivery will be extended by another four miles, taking in a large amount of territory that has not hitherto been served by direct carrier service.

The announcement that Glendale is to have a new postoffice at Broadway and Jackson, was made a short time ago, after Washington had approved the application that had been submitted to the officials there, and the plans for the new building have been approved by Postmaster Jackson and are now in the hands of architects, who are preparing to receive bids for construction. It is expected that these bids will be let within a very few days and that work on the building will be launched immediately thereafter, and, as the contract calls for the completion of the postoffice inside ninety days after the work starts, it is hoped that the new quarters will be occupied by the postoffice by April 1.

The comparison offered by the demands for increased postoffice space are illuminating. The present quarters are double the size of those that sufficed a year and a half ago, and the new building will be two and one-half times the size of the present office.

Escapes Reduction

During the past summer, when the postal department ordered the most stringent economy in the office (Continued on page 8)

Remarkable Advancement

There are 486 postoffices of the first, second and third class in the state of California and GLENDALE STANDS TWELFTH IN THE VOLUME OF RECEIPTS, being ahead of Bakersfield, Santa Barbara, Riverside, San Pedro, Santa Ana, Santa Monica and other good sized communities. Here are the official figures, ending July 1, 1923:

Receipts $1,000,000 to $2,000,000—Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Sacramento.

Receipts $400,000 to $500,000—San Diego, Fresno.

Receipts $300,000 to $400,000—Long Beach, Pasadena and Berkeley.

Receipts $250,000 to $300,000—Stockton, San Jose.

Receipts $150,000 to $200,000—GLENDALE.

Receipts $120,000 to $150,000—Bakersfield, Santa Barbara.

Receipts $90,000 to $120,000—Riverside, San Pedro, Santa Ana, Santa Monica.

TEMPLES OF MANY KINDS MINISTER TO RELIGIOUS NEEDS OF GLENDALEANS

Believers of Many Denominations Worship in Handsome Structures Dedicated to Spiritual Growth of Community

Students of civic affairs are of the opinion that there are two prime requisites essential to the successful development of any city. These are churches and schools. Regarding the former, Glendale is especially fortunate. There are at the present time over twenty churches in the city, representing an investment of hundreds of thousands of dollars, where a person of almost any religious persuasion may find opportunity for worship.

Realizing that they must keep pace with the growth of the city, if they are to exert the proper influence toward the moral and spiritual welfare of the community, 1923 has witnessed the completion or enlargement of religious edifices.

Last Sunday, December 30, the Glendale Presbyterian church dedicated the magnificent new structure at the corner of Harvard and Louise streets, costing approximately $336,000. The past year saw the completion and occupation of the Congregational church at North Central and Wilson avenues. The First Lutheran congregation moved and improved their church at 233 South Kenwood. The Gospel Tabernacle at Louise and Chestnut streets was built. The Broadway Methodist Episcopal church took over the building formerly occupied by the Glendale Presbyterian, at Broadway and Cedar street. Plans are well under way at this time for the construction of a modern church building at the corner of Wilson avenue and Louise street by the members of the First Baptist church. St. Mark's Episcopal church has been enlarged to twice its former capacity.

It has been a great problem for the churches to take care of the rapidly increasing congregations the past year. Especially has this been true of the Sunday school department. In many instances they are renting public halls for the meeting of the men's classes.

Pastors Cooperate
That there is the true spirit of cooperation manifested is evidenced by the formation of the Glendale Ministerial association, having in its membership the pastors of a large per cent of the leading churches of the city. Rev. J. C. Livingston, of the Casa Verdugo Methodist church, is president of the association, and Rex Kelley, of the Y. M. C. A., is secretary. This board functions very splendidly, and is a real force in the community.

A list of the churches, their location and pastors follows:

St. Mark's Episcopal, Harvard and Louise streets; Rev. Philip K. Kemp, pastor.

First Baptist, Wilson avenue and Louise street; Rev. Ernest E. Ford, pastor; Rev. Charles H. Tilden, assistant pastor.

ROY L. KENT, HEAD OF BIG COMPANY

Roy L. Kent, president of the Y. M. C. A., 130 South Brand boulevard, has for the past fourteen years been intimately identified with the building and real estate business, establishing the first organization along these lines in 1910, with his father, Charles W. Kent.

Recent years Roy L. Kent has been active in establishing and developing an industrial district on the west side of Glendale. During 1923 he built a number of store and office buildings and organized several syndicates to acquire valuable property on Brand boulevard and elsewhere in the city. Mr. Kent has been for three years a director of the Chamber of Commerce and is at present chairman of the highways and bridges committee of that organization. He is a past president of the Rotary club and is treasurer of the Verdugo Hills council of Boy Scouts.

REX C. KELLEY AT HEAD OF Y. M. C. A.

Large Number of Boys Get Christian Training and Character Building

Organized to meet the needs of young men and boys in Glendale and surrounding communities, the Glendale district, Young Men's Christian association, with Rex Kelley as general secretary, is of inestimable value to boys and young men. Mr. Kelley says of the organization:

"It is the plan to meet the needs of young men and boys in communities which are not yet able to support a local building and secretarial staff, but a type of non-equipment work; that is, it needs no room, building, or equipment not already provided by the public and private institutions of the community, making use of schools, homes, churches and halls for its meetings.

Help to Boys
"It is a movement rather than an institution and, as such, recognizes the more fundamental offices of the home, school and church. It arranges programs and holds meetings of these groups, at which religious, social, educational and physical needs of boys and young men are studied and remedies provided.

"It has an executive committee of responsible business and professional men to co-operate and administer work and employ a secretary whose duty is to discover, enlist and train leaders.

"Among the activities, the promotion of which have been successful in the producing of Christian character among its twenty-five groups, consisting of 400 members are: Hi-Y organization among high school fellows; Pioneer Notchers' club for younger boys, conference, health campaigns, over-night hikes and camps, educational summer camps, trips, practical talks by business and professional men, father and son affairs, mother and son gatherings, athletic groups and contests, clean speech campaign, service talks."

Glendale Music Club Is Leading Organization In City's Musical Activities

The Glendale Music club has sounded a note of progress, cultural development and interest in musical activities that has almost changed Glendale's well known slogan into "The Most Musical City in the United States."

Mrs. Mattison B. Jones has served as president since the organization of the club February 28, 1921, and under her capable direction the club has grown in members and activity, until today it is known in all parts of the United States.

The Glendale Music club stands for American artists and composers as well as for the advancement of the artists, teachers and composers who are members, and for the promotion of good music in the community.

There are efficient committees functioning to bring about these aims, and their work is supplemented by the various departments and sections.

For Young Folk
In conjunction with the senior club there are a junior auxiliary and a juvenile auxiliary.

During the past year educational, opera and oratorio and church music departments were established, as well as a scholarship loan fund, an artists' section, a teachers' roundtable, a composers' section and an artists' booking bureau.

Nationally known artists are presented to Glendale people throughout the year. These feature programs are interspersed with programs by Glendale and other California musicians. Mrs. Jones lays great stress on the fact that the money realized from dues goes entirely for club progress and that local artists receive remuneration just as artists of national fame do.

Officers of Club
Officers of the club are: Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, president; Mrs. Nathan Rigdon, first vice-president; Mrs. Dora L. Gibson, second vice-president; Mrs. Frank Arnold, recording secretary; Mrs. Helen I. Campbell, corresponding secretary; Miss Myrtle Pulliam, assistant corresponding secretary; Mrs. Warren Roberts, treasurer; Mrs. Percy Praelux, financial secretary; Mrs. F. H. P-T. A. ACTIVE IN WORK OF SCHOOL
Wilson Avenue Organization Secures Advantages for Students

The Parent-Teacher Association of Wilson avenue school, is one of the pioneer organizations and one of the most active bodies of the Glendale federation. It was entirely due to their efforts that the cafeteria was installed at the school three years ago, and it is still operated successfully under the supervision of the members. They have entertained during this season with a series of card parties and silver teas with success very gratifying to the officers in charge.

Incumbents elected for this year are Mrs. H. A. Thimm, president; Mrs. C. A. Bowlus, vice-president; Mrs. A. H. Brown, secretary; Mrs. A. T. Wintersgill, treasurer.

Younger boys, and its activities parallel the Hi-Y advanced work. The aim is to bring boys to an all-around development. Credit is given for their having passed tests, an arrangement being provided for recording advancement. Work in grade school, personal habits, woodcraft, church and home loyalty, Bible study, definite service tasks for others, thrift and many other activities are included. There are twenty organized young boys' groups in this district, each under an adult man.

Men who are directly responsible for the work in Glendale are Rex C. Kelley, general secretary, and the following members of the executive committee: David Black, chairman; C. D. Lusby, treasurer; W. Ingledeu, H. L. Finlay, W. F. Tower, J. S. Thompson, P. H. Arnold, T. E. Stevenson, T. E. McGuire.

Sycamore Glen, set in the Glendale foothills, on the scenic drive that will connect this city with Pasadena and Flintridge, is an attractive subdivision being offered by R. A. Luring, 2732 Glendale boulevard, Los Angeles.

Sycamore Canyon has long been the eyecore of the Southland. Mr. Luring points out, its beauties heralded afar, a veritable Garden of Eden that makes the joy of living a reality and not merely something read in books.

Satisfies Desires
"A home amid the restful hills and canyons," says Mr. Luring. "That has been the desire of thousands of people everywhere, and Sycamore Glen is just such a place. Los Angeles is fortunate indeed in having at its northern and western extremities a fringe of desirable hills, serrated with innumerable canyons. Countless of these are inaccessible—a few, such as Sycamore Glen, are close in, only a few steps from fast and convenient car service and but a stone's throw from every modern convenience."

"With thousands of people looking to the hills for home places, the man who buys today will reap a handsome profit within a year. Come out and see with your own eyes. Our building sites are wonderfully located. We extend you the very easiest terms imaginable. A very small payment down and the balance in easy amounts will make you the owner of a lot in Sycamore Glen—a place you will always look to with pride."

Place Restrictions
"For your protection we have placed restrictions that will always maintain Sycamore Glen as a delightful homeplace. It means you will have neighbors with whom you will enjoy mingling. Uniform building restrictions always serve to increase the value of property and we will see that they are rigidly enforced."

R. A. Luring is well known as a subdivider in Southern California, having put on Ivanhoe Hills, Ivanhoe Terrace, Ivanhoe Hills No. 1, the New Mission, Lake Arrowhead, Big Bear, and other popular tracts.

Sycamore Glen is reached by driving east on Broadway to Verdugo road, thence north to Sycamore Canyon drive, then to the right, where the tract office is located.

PASADENA LIKES 'VILLAGE' FLOATS

Wonders if Glendale Comes In Village or Hamlet Class, or Neither

Last New Year's day the corners of Orange Grove avenue and Colorado boulevard, Pasadena, were occupied as they have been for the past twenty-five New Year's days by citizens of Glendale who gathered to witness the Rose Tournament parade, and the curbs were crowded by Glendaleans, with an occasional outsider sandwiched in.

One of these curb seats was appropriated by a little old lady whose solicitous relatives had made comfortable with wraps and furs. She was evidently an old-time resident of Pasadena with all the pride of town, and an equal scorn for all things not Pasadena, and looked at the parade as simply exhibited for the glory of Pasadena alone.

When Glendale's wonderful peacock float designed by Mr. Choche, which attracted nationwide attention, passed and Glendale's enthusiasm expressed itself in wild applause, the little old lady smiled at the demonstration and remarked in a patronizing tone that "it is very pretty. It is quite wonderful what these villages and hamlets surrounding Pasadena contribute to the beauty of our parade," and the listener on the curb is still wondering in which class, "village or hamlet," is Glendale with its 50,000 population.

PHYSICIANS CLUB HAS 35 MEMBERS

Local Doctors Work Actively To Advance Interests Of Profession

It was in 1919 that the Glendale Physicians club was organized with thirty members and Dr. Harry V. Brown as its first president.

Its aim is to join local physicians in an association for the advancement of professional and social interests. Two meetings are held each month, one at which some special guest gives a scientific lecture, and another at which luncheon is enjoyed with an honored guest and speaker.

There are now over thirty-five members and the officers are Dr. F. M. Rosster, president; Dr. J. E. Eckles, vice-president; Dr. Floyd Thompson, secretary.

Thursday Afternoon Club Is Soon to Celebrate Eighteenth Anniversary

The Thursday Afternoon club will soon celebrate the eighteenth anniversary to its organization. On January 11, 1906, a group of women met at the home of Mrs. John Hobbs for the purpose of organizing a club whose avowed object was social and cultural.

There were seventeen charter members and the following officers were elected: Mrs. J. A. Logan, president; Mrs. W. A. Thompson, secretary; Mrs. J. H. Webster, treasurer.

The meetings were to be held on the first and third Thursdays of the month at the homes of the members.

The club soon broadened the scope of its work and has ever been a factor in the growth and development of Glendale and its members, both collectively and individually, have taken an active part in all matters civic, philanthropic and educational.

Building Program
During the year just past, in addition to carrying out programs of various lines of work which had been undertaken previously, the club has stood sponsor for the organization of the Glendale auxiliary to the Children's Hospital society, which is functioning in a very satisfactory manner, under the direction of Mrs. E. J. Morgan, one of their members.

Two very successful bazaars or sales and numerous social affairs have materially increased their funds toward building a clubhouse.

The club has two lots on Cypress street near Central avenue and a building program is occupying the attention of the ways and means committee, under the direction of Mrs. Chauncey K. Lake.

The present officers are: Mrs. E. V. Bacon, president; Mrs. Kemper Campbell, vice-president; Mrs. S. E. Brown, treasurer; Miss Eva Daniels, secretary; Mrs. J. M. Server, corresponding secretary; chairman of standing committees: Hospitality, Mrs. A. J. Becker; program, Mrs. A. L. Bancroft; patriotic, Mrs. A. G. Coleman; ways and means, Mrs. Chauncey K. TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB CIVIC FEATURE

WOMEN HAVE BIG PART IN ADVANCING CITY TO POSITION OF PROMINENCE

Local Organization Will Act as Host Next April to Great Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs

By KATHERINE V. SINKS
Of The Evening News Staff

A perfect tribute made during the past year by Glendale to California's early history and romance was the completion and formal opening of the new home of the Tuesday-Afternoon club, one of the most active units of the California state and Los Angeles county federations of women's clubs.

Keeping step with the phenomenal growth of Glendale, "The Fastest Growing City in America," the Tuesday-Afternoon club, since the first meeting of ten women in 1898, has evolved into an organization with a membership of 1000 and the beautiful club home stands as a realization of a dream of years.

Every activity of the club life has been broadened during the past year. New committees and sections have been formed, the attractive 1923-1924 year book recording fourteen sections and thirty-seven committees.

Work Increases
More money has been used on programs and the year book; a paid secretary-hostess receives at the clubhouse every day; a caterer has charge of the semi-monthly luncheons, and the club inaugurated in October the schedule of weekly meetings.

Club luncheons are enjoyed the first and third Tuesdays of each month, with special speakers. The regular club business meeting and program follow in the afternoon. On the second, fourth and fifth Tuesdays, just the regular club business meeting and program is held.

To promote wholesome amusement for Glendale's young people, the club has given the use of the banquet hall and palm court to Community Service for one night each week.

Best to Federation
The big feature of the coming year will be entertaining the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs at the twenty-third annual convention in April. The session will begin April 8th and continue the 9th and 10th. It is most fitting that Glendale be the host city, since the president of the Federation, Mrs. Charles H. Toll, is a Glendale resident and life member of the Tuesday-Afternoon club.

Pasadena Meeting
Another convention of interest to the women of this club is the convention of the California Federation of Women's Clubs in Pasadena, May 30 and 31.

Officers of the club are: Mrs. Daniel Campbell, president; Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, first vice-president; Mrs. C. W. Houston, second vice-president; Mrs. William Hunter, recording secretary; Mrs. Frank Ayars, corresponding secretary.

500 Year Old Lotus Seeds Found in Peat

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 1.—In the laboratory of plant physiology of Johns Hopkins University, a Japanese student of science, Prof. Ichiro Ohga, is growing lotus seeds believed to be 500 years old. The seeds were found under layers of peat, fifteen feet deep, in what once was a pond on the edge of the Gobi Desert in Manchuria. Native children dig them out to eat. The seeds when found are black and egg shaped, about a half inch long and hard as flint.

P. E. O. CHAPTERS REPORT PROGRESS

Four Glendale Units Enjoy Prosperous Year; Good Program Ahead

The past year to the various P. E. O. chapters, of which there are four in Glendale, L. A. H. B. and C. J., has been one of pleasure and of growth and development along their chosen lines. To some the year has brought both sadness and joy.

Chapter L lost one of its most active members in the death of Mrs. Pearl Collins Tower, past president of the chapter. Three other members were saddened by the death of a husband or brother. Another by the death of a father. Two weddings are recorded.

The all-American program has been full of interest and well attended. The philanthropic and educational activities are well supported. Needles are busy at each meeting for the less fortunate.

The programs for the rest of the chapter year will follow the lines laid down in the year book.

Incumbent Officers

The officers of the present year are Mrs. Genevieve Gosse, president; Mrs. Letitia Lusby, vice-president; Mrs. Esther Pearce, recording secretary; Mrs. Lunett Hunt, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Elizabeth Read, treasurer; Mrs. Jessie Russell, chaplain; Mrs. Fern Roberts, guard; Mrs. Ann P. Bartlett, organist; Mrs. Margaret Campbell, parliamentarian.

Chapter AH has devoted its energies during the fall months to preparations for a bazaar given at the home of one of their members, Mrs. W. W. Worley, which netted about $240. The money was used by the chapter to carry out their educational and philanthropic program.

A miscellaneous program with attendance at the Philharmonic concerts and a number of social affairs will complete their year's work.

Chapter CJ meets the first and third Thursdays in each month, alternate dates being all-day meetings and luncheon.

A miscellaneous program which includes California history, an original story by the members of the chapter and a study of modern fiction writers with several social affairs and philanthropic work, is being carried out.

The officers of the present year are: Mrs. Lizzie Hayward, president; Mrs. Eva Barton, vice-president; Mrs. Vera Hinchoff, recording secretary; Mrs. Vevia Vevia, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Isabel Kimball, treasurer; Mrs. Elizabeth Kent, chaplain; Mrs. Sybella Moule, Mrs. Fannie Crampton, historians; Miss Martha Cox, historian.

The officers serving for the present year in Chapter B A are: Mrs. Arnold, president; Mrs. Josephine Brant, vice-president; Mrs. Hallie Starnes, recording secretary; Mrs. Effie Preston, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Alice Ripley, treasurer; Mrs. Nellie Case, chaplain; Mrs. Florence Wintersgill, guard; Mrs. Eva Cunningham, pianist; Mrs. Hallie Starnes, parliamentarian.

Mrs. Eva Cunningham of this chapter was a delegate to the superannuated chapter convention, which convened at Seattle this year, and made a splendid report at the reciprocity luncheon.

The programs of the twelve regular meetings which are still in store for the members of the chapter include three programs on P. E. O. Founders, B. I. L.'s and a constitution with programs of famous women, a mother's day and "Jinks" at the close of the year. A strong philanthropic committee looks after this phase of their work.

Affiliation Work

The reciprocity bureau, consisting of eight members, two from each chapter, are busy looking after the unaffiliated members who have no chapter home in California. The bureau this year is composed of Mrs. Letitia Lusby, president; Mrs. Cora Webster, vice-president; Mrs. Kate Parker, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Genevieve Gosse, Mrs. Fanny Beach, Mrs. Lizzie Hayward, Mrs. Edith Arnold and Miss Martha Cox.

The plan of work for all chapters includes contributions of cash and clothing to the California hospital, Red Cross, Salvation Army, True Love Home, Orphaned and destitute children and the Glendale Welfare council.

The bureau arranged a very delightful reciprocity luncheon recently at the First Congregational church banquet hall, at which Mrs. Eva Cunningham of B A made a very interesting report of the Supreme chapter, to which she was a delegate.

500 Year Old Lotus Seeds Found in Peat

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 1.—In the laboratory of plant physiology of Johns Hopkins University, a Japanese student of science, Prof. Ichiro Ohga, is growing lotus seeds believed to be 500 years old. The seeds were found under layers of peat, fifteen feet deep, in what once was a pond on the edge of the Gobi Desert in Manchuria. Native children dig them out to eat. The seeds when found are black and egg shaped, about a half inch long and hard as flint.

Building permits for December were $27,507, bringing the total for 1913 up to $646,411.

Mattison B. Jones of 106 Orange street, and W. E. Evans of 113 Orange street, have taken out a permit for a $15,000 business and apartment building to be erected at the southeast corner of Brand and Second street.

The Los Angeles Times says, "Glendale never before experienced such enormous building operations as during this year. The work done in this time totaled about $625,000, and of this amount possibly $450,000 went into homes for newcomers."

PETITION FOR GRIFFIS' RELEASE

Million Americans Appeal For Kidnap

Lieut. Corliss H. Griffis, snapped in German prison

A million Americans will sign petitions asking the German government to release Lieut. Corliss H. Griffis, according to word from Chicago. Griffis is serving a "light sentence" in a German prison for his part in the attempt to "kidnap" Grover Cleveland Bergdahl, notorious U. S. draft evader, from Germany. Backers of the proposed petition appeal include Newton D. Baker, ex-secretary of war, and Senators Walsh, Capper and Reed, it is said.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 1.—Dancing is not permitted in Los Angeles after midnight; in San Francisco "three o'clock in the morning" and later is a proper time to go home.

Because of these two facts the annual frolic or "Wampus" ball of the Western Association of Motion Picture Advertisers, a yearly gathering of screen stars, directors and their friends, will be held here on January 19 and not in Los Angeles.

A delegation of the association, here to make plans for the annual dance, was told that the city would be thrown open for their frolic; that there were no "blue" laws in San Francisco and that efforts would be made to make the 1924 event the most notable in screenland's history.

A statement of the delegation representing the picture advertisers said:

"The committee of 'Wampus' represents an organization which is part of an industry of law-abiding citizens. It is not the idea of any of us to break any existing laws. It is the desire of the membership of the organization to have the right to enjoy the natural pleasures of American citizens. When denied this right in a certain community it is time to look elsewhere."

Chief of Police O'Brien, of San Francisco told the committee this: "The dance is on. Let joy be unconfined."

"A pleasant time was had by all" will probably be the verdict after the association's frolic here is his theory but there is more to this city's interest in the annual ball than a mere entertainment. San Francisco hopes that the holding of the frolic here will result in the annexation of at least a portion of Los Angeles' two billion dollar motion picture industry.

For weeks San Franciscans have been talking about this city as a genuine rival of Hollywood. Visitors from the Southland, looking for new studio sites, have been shown beautiful vistas in San Francisco. The screen company representatives have been told this city has just as many days as are needed to make the world's finest screen produc-

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CHRISTMAS HOLLY

holly on his crutch. All of a sudden the bunny thought of the Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy in the hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"Forgotten something. What do you mean?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I mean we have no holly wreaths for Christmas," went on the muskrat lady housekeeper. "Will you get a few to hang up around the bungalow? The red berries look so pretty nestled in the green leaves."

Ha! That's so! I forgot all about the holly!" said Uncle Wiggily. "And I'll get some mistletoe, also."

"Mistletoe is more for New Year's," said Nurse Jane.

"The holly now. And please hurry back with it, as I must make it up into wreaths and it takes rather a long time."

"Why so?" the rabbit gentleman wanted to know.

"Because holly is so prickly and sticky," answered Nurse Jane. "The leaves, though they are glossy green, and very pretty, have sharp spines on them, like slivers, and they stick you if you are not slow and careful while making Christmas wreaths."

"Well, I hope you don't get stuck and slivered," Nurse Jane, spoke Uncle Wiggily.

"Thank you," answered the muskrat lady. "And I hope you don't get scratched bringing home the holly branches."

"I'll be careful," promised the bunny gentleman.

Then, twinkling his pink nose and seeing that his tie was on straight, Mr. Longears hopped over the fields toward the wood, where, as he knew, some holly trees and bushes grew. For holly is a sort of a bush, though, in time it may grow up into a tree. On the branches grow the green leaves, stiff and shiny, and on the edges of the leaves are the sharp sticks.

Nothing down in the leaves are red berries, like coral beads, only brighter in color, and that is why holly is such a beautiful garland to educate our homes with at Christmas time.

"Ah, I see some holly!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, as he jumped over a fence, hopped across a clearing and made his way into a clump of trees. "Now Nurse Jane shall have her Christmas wreaths."

Uncle Wiggily wore a pair of heavy gloves, and it was well that he did, for otherwise the prickles on the leaves would have stuck him. As it was, however, Uncle Wiggily could break off the holly branches without much trouble.

Uncle Wiggily found growing in the woods some trailing vines of the wild honeysuckle.

"These vines will make a good and strong cord with which to tie up the bunch of holly," thought Uncle Wiggily. "Then I can swing the green leaves and red berries over my shoulder on the end of my red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch and carry them home."

Working carefully, so he would not stick himself, Uncle Wiggily tied up a bunch of holly with a wild honeysuckle vine and slung the bunch of green leaves and red berries from the end of his crutch.

"It is good that my rheumatism doesn't hurt me today, and that I do not need to lean on my crutch," thought the bunny as he began to hop toward home.

"Our bungalow will look beautiful for Christmas," said Uncle Wiggily, speaking aloud in his happiness.

"I know something that looks beautiful to me right now—without waiting for Christmas!" suddenly growled a most unpleasant voice.

"What is it?" asked the bunny, before he had thought.

"Your ears look beautiful—that's what I mean!" went on the growling voice, and out of the bushes jumped the Bad Bushy Bear!

"Your ears look good to nibble!" growled the Bear.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Uncle Wiggily. "Are you going to nibble them now?" he asked, sadly.

"No, not just now and not right here," answered the Bear. "You will walk along with me until we come to my den. Then I'll take you in and nibble your ears. If I nibble them out here in the open, the Fox, Wolf or Bob Cat might see me and want some. And there are not nibbles enough for me as it is." Come now, walk along with me!"

The Bad Bushy Bear walked along beside Uncle Wiggily. The bunny was still carrying over his shoulder the bunch of prickly

Diet and Health
By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.
Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

DIET IN TUBERCULOSIS
"Three square meals a day with plenty of water" is the way Webb and Ryder, in their book "Recovery Record in Tuberculosis," sum up the diet for tuberculosis. Pot-potter states that one of the most important changes in the treatment of tuberculosis is the discarding of over-feeding. However, this does not mean that the tuberculosis patient is going to be on a starvation diet which he usually prefers (because one of the symptoms of tuberculosis is loss of appetite).

Three square meals a day and plenty of water may still seem like stuffing to these patients. Considered in that light, we would still say we "stuff" tuberculosis patients, because one of the most important things in treating this disease is to build up the patient's nutrition to what his best weight is in normal health. Now, what is this tuberculosis patient going to eat in his three squares?

Have you been following my articles on normal diet? Then you already know. For the diet in tuberculosis does not differ materially from the diet to maintain health, with the exception that more liberal quantities of fat are allowed. That means the diet should consist largely of whole grain breads and cereals, plenty of milk and eggs, liberal quantities of vegetables, especially the green leafy vegetables, and some fruit and nuts, and a moderate amount of good meat.

Milk, eggs, cream and cod liver oil have always been emphasized in the diet in tuberculosis and, in the light of our newer knowledge of nutrition, our confidence has not been misplaced in these foods. They are all high in the fat soluble vitamin A. Cod liver oil is richer in vitamin A than any other substance, containing several hundred times as much as butter. Egg yolk is high in iron as well, and the milk is high in lime, both of these minerals being highly essential in normal health and doubly essential in tuberculosis.

In animal experimentation, and in clinical observation, these minerals and vitamins have been found necessary to keep the tissue resistance high. It is even thought that the lack of this fat-soluble vitamin so lowers the tissue resistance that the tuberculosis germs have a better ground to develop in.

Vegetables, especially the green leafy vegetables, are being emphasized more for the tuberculosis patient than before because it has been found that they are a valuable source of the vitamin A as well as the water soluble vitamins.

Efficient Housekeeping

A NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTION TO CHEER UP
Tomorrow's Menu
Breakfast: Grapefruit, Cereal, Boiled Eggs, Toast.
Luncheon: Apple Slump, Wholewheat Bread, Cream Cheese, Tea.
Dinner: Tomato Soup, Cold Sliced Ham, Baked Potatoes, Spinach, Lettuce, Steamed Date Pudding, Coffee.

I have before me, on my desk, a letter from one of my Reader Friends. Inasmuch as I shall not reveal her identity or location, I believe she will not mind my quoting in part from this letter: "Your column has such a cheerful tone to it, that after reading it one can almost persuade oneself that the average housekeeper's life is a bed of roses! But that is not the case; there are countless housekeepers who are crushed down with the weight of an almost unbearable burden, such as having to live with an uncongenial in-law, or having to have for some absolutely unappreciative person."

I think we can all feel a little lump in our throats as we read that. For we all know what it is to stumble on through our daily grind of housework with an ache in our hearts, whether that ache comes from worry, from sorrow, from remorse, from pain, or from some petty, nagging little irritation which we cannot seem to throw off. No housekeeper's life is "a bed of roses," is it? Quite on the contrary; in fact, most of the time.

But there is one thing that my Letter Friend overlooked: she did not seem to see a chance for the least bit of optimism in the outlook of those "housekeepers" who are crushed down with the weight of an almost unbearable burden. She did not take into consideration that hope is generally the one saving element in those unhappy lives. It is human to look for deliverance from our burdens.

And I believe that we should aid nature by encouraging that hope that is natural to us. I believe that we ought to dwell upon the chance of escaping from our unbearable burdens—even though it be but a hundredth chance. If you don't believe that, miracles of deliverance are happening every day, just glance through any daily newspaper with this idea in mind. "Why?" you will exclaim. "Here's an item about a scrub woman who died and left a fortune which even her own relatives didn't know about! What a blessing it must have been to them!" We never know what is around the corner for us; why not presuppose it to be something good, rather than something dread?

New Year's Day is a good time to stop and think about these things. It may be old-fashioned to make a New Year's resolution—but it is often very helpful. So let us all make one—whether it pertains to accomplishing our ambitions, or merely to living more hopefully under some burden with the constant expectation that we shall soon be happier!

Heart and Home Problems

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

LOVE AND KISSES
Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl sixteen years of age. Some people will consider me rather young, but still I have my ideas. I am writing this in regard to several letters I have seen in your column. One was signed Experience and another was from a young man signed Observer, who said he would not like to have the girl he married pawed over by seventeen other men. I agree with him perfectly, because I do not think I could fall in love with a man who had slobbered over every other girl he had gone with.

I have gone with young men for not quite a year and each one has "slobbered" over me for the evening. They just seem to expect it, although I do not like it. It seems to me that the girl who does not allow it is "heavy" as popular as the rest. Would you advise me to stop this habit of letting them kiss me good night?

I hardly think it is fair for girls, because men never seem to like to marry a girl who has been kissed a lot, but still they kiss other girls themselves. 1923.

A girl's popularity rests on more than whether she permits love-making. Personal charm and magnetism account very largely for her success. Many girls have cried their eyes out and suffered from great humiliation because they have loved, kissed and lost. They have found that as soon as they permitted intimacy in them and turned to some one else; they have also found their reputations cheapened, not for any real sin but for lack of discretion. On the other hand, there are girls who are fascinated by the ardor of what they do. They have so much magnetism that they keep their lovers whether they permit love making or not.

My advice to you is to stick to your ideals and cultivate charm, good, rather than something dread?

New Year's Day is a good time to stop and think about these things. It may be old-fashioned to make a New Year's resolution—but it is often very helpful. So let us all make one—whether it pertains to accomplishing our ambitions, or merely to living more hopefully under some burden with the constant expectation that we shall soon be happier!

DISGRACED AND BLUE.
You have loved unwisely and lost. Now there is only one course for you to follow and that is to hold up your head with a brave heart. I had. About two weeks ago he started going with another girl who has just moved to the town. I asked him what the trouble was, but he said nothing.

His parents seem to think quite a bit of me and I thought I would go and talk to them. Would it be foolish? Please tell me what I can do.

I have tried to make myself think I didn't care for him, but I can't, for without him everything goes wrong and I have the blues.

ANSWERED LETTERS

Agnes I: The wrinkle that forms under your eyes when you laugh is nothing serious; and if you keep your muscles firm by taking care of your health a line such as you dread will not leave any trace upon the skin. Moreover, laughing lines are not usually disfiguring. Shrivelled skin is, however, and if you should use camphor on your face to any extent you will find that it will dry up the tissues.

L. S.: As you neglected to give name and address I am not able to mail your reply in your stamped envelope.

Most of your troubles may be traced to impurities in the blood, likely the result of digestive sluggishness. Pimples, not only on the face but over the chest, would indicate this. Coarse pores, and the blackheads that follow, show that the skin has been overtaxed to help clear the system.

Begin at the source of the trouble and treat by living on a balanced diet and by drinking plenty of water between meals. Take a daily warm bath, followed by a cold shower. Continue with your cream massage and ice rubs for complexion as you have been doing. You are to be congratulated that your ankles are slim, but if you prefer them to be fat you will have to keep up the cream butter massage a longer time than you have been doing it.

Unhappy Seventeen: Bleach this hair by using peroxide several times each week. If there are any very coarse or dark hairs that show badly, pull them out by using blunt end tweezers.

Lilian W.: As your friend's skin has not cleared after taking yeast cakes for several years, she should discontinue them and try some other treatment, or, better still, consult the doctor about her condition. If there is no improvement in the skin after trying the yeast treatment for several weeks, it shows that it is not what is needed for your case.

Peroxide could never affect the brain. The only injury that it could bring about would be to dry out your hair, making it brittle so it will break off or become so lifeless that it will take a long time to build it up again afterward. The shade of gold that results from peroxide is so artificial that very few women desire it any more.

Egyptian henna used with the shampoo lather, and allowed to stay on the hair for five minutes, will brighten the hair so it will have a glint without altering the shade. Another great advantage is the fact that henna is a tonic.

M. T. M.: A girl of 16 years, five feet two inches in height, is normal weight at 110 pounds.

A Reader: There are straps that may be bought for supporting sagging facial muscles, but you may make something at home that will answer the same purpose. A strip of muslin, arranged so it comes well under the chin and around the head, tied at the top will hold up all the muscles of the lower part of the face. Of course, the effect is only temporary, as the only lasting improvement must come from building up the tissues so they are firm. Any cream that has for its basis olive or almond oil is a nourishing cream. If you are not sure of those you are purchasing, I will be glad to mail a formula for such a cream.

Tomorrow—The Beauty Seeker's Cabinet.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes, in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

The manufacture of cornstarch has grown to such proportions in the United States that the industry now consumes about 50,000,000 bushels of America's great crop each year. From each bushel of corn the average manufacturer makes thirty-three pounds of cornstarch, and in 1921 the ten largest concerns made nearly 1,650,000,000 pounds of this product, which was more than 90 per cent of the total produced that year. This industry, which began in the United States in 1844, has been "increasing greatly" in recent years. By 1880 the factories had reached a production capacity of 250,000,000 pounds, and practically all of it was consumed here. By 1921 there were nearly fifty plants, and $6,000,000 worth of the output was exported. These figures are from a report recently made by the department of agriculture as a result of an investigation.

A Boston minister who tickled another man's wife under the chin with a blade of grass made a mistake. The woman was so tickled that she wrote her husband about it, and this tickled gentleman called on the minister and tickled him under his own chin with a fist instead of a blade of grass. The tickling party is now over, and everybody is satisfied.

Our taxes are too small.
And he would slap on more of them.
And end our troubles all.

They've taxed my house and lot.
They've taxed my small investments.
Most everything I've got.

And now they'll tax my fiddle,

My soap and gum and matches
My fuzzy winter hat.

They'll tax my fireless cooker,
My nailfile and my clocks,
My toothbrush and my jackknife,
My shirts and ties and socks.

My Ingersoll my razor,
My typewriter and my breath,
And they'll keep right on taxing
Till they tax this bird to death.

And, when I lie all dignified,
With my placed so neat,
I hope they'll tax my harp and crown
And make the job complete.

GREAT YEAR IS PASSED AND GREATER ONE AHEAD! EVERYBODY FOR GLENDALE!

Prediction In The Glendale Evening News Twelve Months Ago Comes True; People Of City Receive Congratulations

A year ago The Glendale Evening News predicted greater progress and prosperity for Glendale in 1923 than the city had hitherto enjoyed, although Glendale's growth the two or three years previous had been marvelous. The beginning of the year 1924 sees the fulfillment of this prophecy. A year ago Glendale's population was estimated at 40,000. Today we know it to be 50,000.

Hundreds of homeseekers have looked over Glendale, called it good and brought their families here. Tract after tract of choice acreage has been opened for subdivision by far-seeing realty men and block after block have been built upon to provide homes for the rapidly increasing numbers that have come and are still coming. Wide-awake business men have seen opportunities here and have established business homes that are worthy of a city of much greater population than Glendale.

The year 1923 saw the completion of a $700,000 high school plant, the dedication of the Tuesday afternoon clubhouse and plans made for building fine homes by other organizations.

Art and culture have made progress in Glendale the past year, too, and the social life of the community is on the highest plane.

The New Year edition of The Glendale Evening News a year ago announced plans for a new half-million-dollar plant for the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital and the year has seen these plans brought well along toward fruition.

Sky Line Grows
Glendale's sky-line has risen rapidly the past year, as many buildings in the down-town section attest the faith of big business interests in the city's future and many business deals of considerable importance have been consummated.

Glendale's growth the past year has been rapid but steady, genuine and legitimate. There has been no boom or mushroom growth. Every step forward has been the result of conditions that will endure. Business men of judgment have expressed their faith in Glendale by investing their money here, thereby adding to the general prosperity. Industries have been attracted by the ideal living and working conditions that will provide employment for many.

The Glendale Evening News does not hesitate to make the same prediction at the beginning of the year 1924 that it made in 1923. Glendale's development in 1924 will exceed that of any year in the past.

Word comes from every state in the Union, "We are coming to Glendale," and with this increasing population will come more business, more industries and more work of all kinds in helping to care for the added population. Real estate values will not decline, for the forces that have carried us forward the past year are still at work and will see our further advancement in 1924.

The Glendale Evening News is proud to be for and of Glendale. It is no small honor to have grown up with a city like Glendale, to have advanced with it, step by step, and to have seen so many of the things we hoped and worked for come to pass.

Local Product
We have stood conscientiously for what we believed to be the good of Glendale, we have labored to publish a local paper representative of a growing city and a clean city. We have made errors the past year, but the public has overlooked them and has responded to our efforts in a measure far beyond our expectations and our deserts. Our readers have magnified the results of our feeble efforts and have made the giving of our best seem very much worth while.

The Glendale Evening News dedicates itself to Glendale once more at the beginning of the new year. We promise to give our support to those things we believe to be for the best interests of our city and we bespeak the loyalty of our readers for all Glendale.

MRS. DAMMERMAN NEW P. T. A. HEAD

Vice-President Is Elected To Office Vacated By Mrs. Chas. Griffin

The Magnolia Parent-Teachers association was organized during the year 1920, by Mrs. A. H. Brown, when Mrs. John Robert White was president of the Parent-Teacher association federation.

The Magnolia school having the least number of pupils enrolled, also has a small enrollment in the association, compared with the larger associations.

Mrs. Charles Griffin, who was elected president of the first of the school year, and having moved away recently, the vice-president, Mrs. A. Dammerman, was elected to fill the chair. The other officers are Mrs. C. E. Evans, secretary, and Miss Marion Hamis, treasurer.

EMERY-WEBB BLOCK ADDS TO BUSINESS CENTER

H. S. Webb Dry Goods Store Occupies All Of Attractive Building

For years past Glendaleans have been well aware of the quality of the H. S. Webb Dry Goods store and the success of this store in its new location in the new building erected by E. U. Emery and H. S. Webb on North Brand boulevard between the Lawson block and the Palace Grand shops was assured from the first plans for the project.

The building is attractive terra cotta tile construction, relieved with an elaborate facade of early Italian Renaissance design.

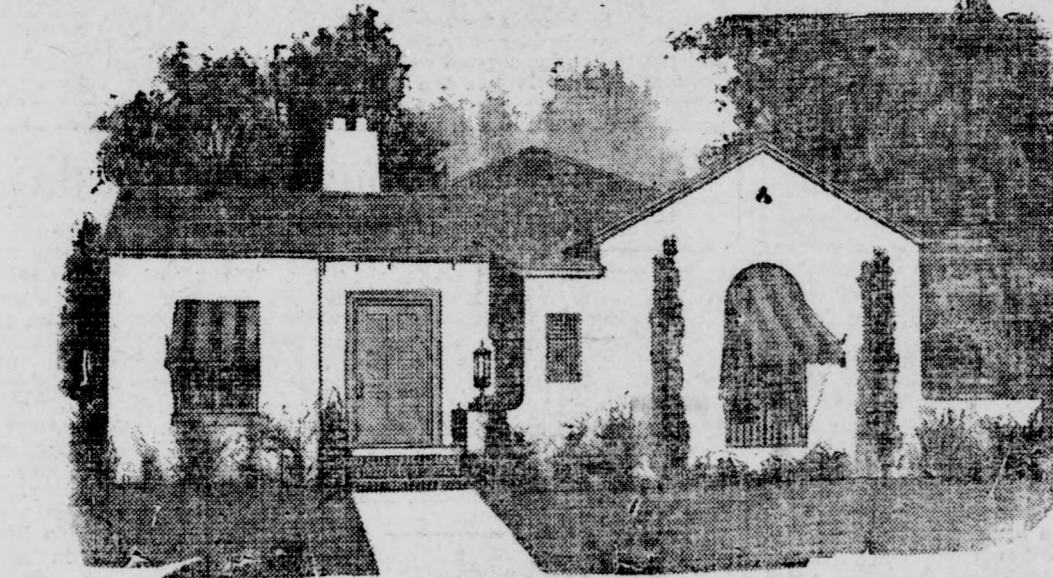

There are three floors and mezzanine and this room and splendid window spaces for display purposes permit of the accommodation of a wide stock of everything desired by Glendale shoppers.

New departments have been added and service increased, and the Webb store continues to hold old friends and win countless new ones.

COMFORTABLE RESIDENCE IS BEING CONSTRUCTED

Stucco Home for Mrs. Andrew P. Findlay at Kenneth and Raymond

Picture of home being erected for Mrs. Andrew P. Findlay, Kenneth road and Raymond avenue. The cost is about $7000.

The construction of a seven-room stucco residence and garage for Mrs. Andrew P. Findlay, Kenneth road and Raymond avenue, marks a pioneering step in home building in that section of Glendale, according to R. K. Collins, secretary and treasurer of the Low Building company, 416-18 East Colorado street, who are erecting the home. The cost of this home is to be approximately $7,000.

The completion of this home, probably in the early spring, Mr. Collins says, will give Mrs. Findlay the distinction of being the first to have a residence on the north side of Kenneth road in that vicinity. He predicts that this stucco will be followed by many other homes in that locality, giving Glendale another section of beautiful homes before many months.

Pointing to the growing popularity of the Pacific Ready-Cut Homes, of which the Low Building company are local representatives and builders, Mr. Collins states that there are two features always considered by a property owner in the construction of a home. First, he says, they must consider the quality of material and workmanship which go into a building; and, second, the cost of this material and workmanship.

"Prospective home-builders are coming to realize more and more," says Mr. Collins, "that buildings such as the Pacific Ready-Cut Homes furnish have the two-fold requirement which is a factor in any undertaking—quality and economy. This is made possible," he points out, "because our factory eliminates all waste in planning and cutting out these homes, and because of the great quantity of homes the firm turns out each year."

disposal was settled. This problem has been settled to the great advantage of the city of Glendale and her citizens now have the opportunity to get the final solution of the sewage problem for about the same amount of money that will be spent on street improvements in the coming year. To neglect this opportunity and spend this great amount of money for street improvements without constructing sewers would be very poor business.

By KATHERINE V. SINKS

FIRST GLENDALE FLOAT WINS CUP

Entry in Pasadena Parade In 1911 Awarded Silver Trophy

Glendale will enter a float again in the Rose Tournament parade today at Pasadena. May it prove a prize-winner!

Many will remember the first float, entered in the year 1911, which was the most elaborate one displayed that day, and won the special prize, a $150 silver trophy, which was awarded only to entries unique and superior.

The float was a replica of the Glendale Union High school, at that time the most beautiful and classic building in Glendale. The miniature structure was fourteen feet long and eight feet high, mounted on a platform twelve by twenty-four feet, which provided seats for twenty-six girls.

The reproduction of the classic lines of the school building was in the hands of Miss Belle N. Hall, art instructor in the high school, who was a practical architect.

The late Eugene C. Frank, well-known architect, kindly consented to superintend the building and painting of the canvas structure, which was built by a scenic company in Los Angeles. Mr. Shropshire constructed the platform and other woodwork.

Work of Art
A curtain four feet in depth, a veritable mass of ferns from Fern Lodge, the Verdugo Woods home of John Fiddle, having the words "Glendale" woven in with white carnations, covered the wheels.

Vast quantities of plumosus and white roses covered the blankets of the six horses, owned and driven by Hugh Cornwell, drawing the float.

Twenty-six girls in Grecian costumes, with garlands, added to the classic beauty of the building.

On one side of the float the nine muses were represented by Misses Emma Pulliam, Pearl Good, Fern Cook, Emil Williams, May Church, Mabel Evans, Marie McDonald, Olive Quick and Anna Megilligan.

On the other side of the float, the muses were represented by Misses Barbara Mitchell, Dorothy Lee, Hazel Royce, Helen Tupper, Viola Yorba, Leta McCoy, Helen Mosher, Eva Donaldson and Birdie Shropshire.

At the end of the float were Misses Alice McCoy, Harriet Nichols, Ruth Williams, Lillian Shropshire, Violet Turner, Ruth Pierce, Elsie Church and Margaret Nichols, representing the liberal arts and sciences.

The young men acting as outriders, costumed as Roman soldiers, were James Wells, Jr.; Fay Stone, Ed Kracher, Frank Mosier, Owen Emery, Sol Rehart, Arthur Knight, Granville McClure, Charles Wells, George Mitchell and Dwight Stephenson.

In less than two weeks from the time that a letter from E. D. Goode, suggesting a suitable representation upon this occasion, was read before the Tuesday Afternoon club, and a committee co-operate with similar committees from the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations, Glendale's splendid float was in the line of march.

Other committees were at once appointed from the Chamber of Commerce, Glendale Union High school and the Valley Improvement association, with Mr. Goode as chairman of the joint committees.

The committee from the Chamber of Commerce: Mr. Goode, E. U. Emery, Cecil Shaver, Eugene Hank, R. L. Hinckley and R. A. Blackburn.

Valley Improvement association: F. L. Church, R. C. Stern, berg, Harry Lynch, Claude O. Pulliam.

Tuesday Afternoon club: Mrs. E. D. Goode, Miss Alice Frank, Mrs. F. L. Church, Mrs. Alexander Mitchell.

Glendale Union High school: Professor George U. Moyse, Miss Belle N. Hall, Harry L. Howe and L. C. Gates.

There were no Glendale headquarters for the construction of the float, as in the present year, but the work had to be done in Pasadena, where a vacant lot was secured near the point of formation of the parade.

For several days and nights the workers stayed on the job. On Saturday a crowd of high school students went over on a hayrack and worked on the float.

Those who worked untiringly were Mrs. Goode, Miss Ida M. White, Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, Mrs. F. L. Church, Mrs. J. T. Anderson, Mrs. M. L. Anderson, Mrs. C. O. Pulliam, Mrs. Helen Frazier, George U. Moyse, R. A. Blackburn, Mr. Gates and Archie Shaver.

SHRINE CLUB IS MAKING STRIDES

Masons and Knights Templar May Hold Membership In Fraternity

Glendaleans who are thirty-second degree Masons or Knights Templar are eligible for membership in the Glendale Shrine club, whose headquarters are at 117 West Broadway, and whose meeting place is the Hahn auditorium at 109-A North Brand boulevard.

The Shrine club was organized in December, 1920, and now has over 375 members. Two meetings are held each month, the first and third Wednesdays, one for business and the other for social pleasure.

Officers of the club are: D. Ripley Jackson, president; W. H. Reynolds, vice-president; Charles F. Hahn, secretary and treasurer.

Knights Templar Bring to Close Eventful Year and Prepare for New 12 Months

The past year has been a most happy one for Glendale Commandery, No. 53, Knights Templar, with Dr. Roy V. Hogue as eminent commander. In addition to the regular activities of the organization the year was featured by participation in the big Templar affair in Hollywood when the International Traveling Beausant was presented by the Marion, Ohio, commandery, of which the late President Warren C. Harding was president, to the Hollywood commandery.

A privilege specially enjoyed by the Glendale Knights was having Hollywood Commandery come to Glendale to present the beausant to the local commandery.

Glendale commandery was organized in April of 1914 with sixteen charter members and Edward M. Daniels as the first eminent commander.

List of Officers

Today there are 168 Knights enrolled in the commandery, and the officers recently installed for the ensuing year are: Robert M. Grumblin, eminent commander; William W. Worley, generalissimo; J. Hartley Taylor, captain general; Sidney S. Gilhuly, senior warden; Oscar E. Von Oven, prelate; Frank H. Vesper, treasurer; Charles C. Rittenhouse, recorder; Riley Lyons, sentinel; Dr. Roy V. Hogue, trustee for three years; Thomas Wood, warden; Frederick Clark, standard-bearer; James M. Pife, sword-bearer; T. D. Watson, third guard; Dwight W. Stevenson, second guard; Francis J. W. Henry, first guard.

Past Commander

It is interesting to note that Mr. Von Oven has served the lodge as prelate for eight years, Mr. Vesper as treasurer for ten years, and Mr. Rittenhouse as recorder for ten years.

Past eminent commanders are Edward K. Daniels, Mattison B. Jones, Clem Moore, C. L. Peckham, David G. Crofton, George U. Moyse, Percy Prialux, Daniel Campbell and Dr. Roy V. Hogue.

eration of the service, and when offices all over the country were faced with the necessity of reducing their personnel, Glendale not only escaped any reduction but shortly after the orders went into effect Postmaster Jackson was able to secure an order authorizing the employment of more clerks and carriers in the Glendale office, having been able to demonstrate conclusively to the authorities at Washington that Glendale's prime need was for enlargement rather than for the reduction of the forces here.

Further plans for the extension of the carrier service are now under consideration, the postmaster declares, both in the residence districts and in the business section of the city, and, with the enlarged space that the new postoffice will give, the service, he promises, will be steadily developed to keep pace with the demands of the city's growing population as Washington realizes that Glendale is entitled to every facility for better service that the department can afford to the Glendale postoffice.

Omar Shrine No. 9, White Shrine of Jerusalem, is just two years old, and under the leadership of Evelyn G. MASONIC ORDERS MAKE BIG GAINS

Have Outgrown Home at 232 South Brand; Members Number Over 2000

The Glendale Masonic organizations were centered in the Masonic temple at 232 South Brand boulevard in 1913, and today they have reached such proportions in membership and activities that the need for a new home is most necessary.

At present the Masonic organizations in Glendale have a combined membership of over 2000. The largest lodge is the first Blue lodge, organized in 1908. It is officially known as Unity lodge No. 368 and has today over 450 members.

Second Blue Lodge
A second Blue lodge was organized during the past year. It is known as Glendale lodge No. 455. It has 100 members.

The Royal Arch Masons have a membership of 300 and the Knights Templar of over 150.

Then there is the Eastern Star with a membership of 330 and the White Shrine with 100 members. Glendale also has a De Molay chapter, the branch of junior Masonry, with 125 members enrolled.

In addition there is the Shrine club with 275 members and the Pyramid of Scots, No. 39.

ACACIA FATHERS PLAN P. T. A. UNIT

Membership of Body Grows As Result of Building Being Completed

The Acacia school Parent-Teachers association meets the third Friday of each month and is one of the active clubs of the federation.

The completion of the new buildings has increased the membership and interest to an appreciable degree.

The officers of the present year are Mrs. L. B. Torrey, president; Mrs. W. B. Alexander, vice-president; Mrs. Harry Levey, secretary; Mrs. Moll, treasurer; Mrs. Luella Bullis, auditor; Mrs. J. H. Seale, historian.

A holiday bazaar was one of the activities of the fall and a "Fathers' Night" held recently was so successful that the fathers will meet early in January to form an auxiliary, which is expected to increase the interest and usefulness of the association.

A large barometer with a dial face, on the tower of the German museum at Munich, is said to be the only one of its kind.

FIGURES PROVE CITY PASSES 50,000 MARK

CHARTER FORM OF GOVERNMENT FOR COMMUNITY, WITH GENERAL MANAGER

Mayor and Council Have Full Legislative Powers; Departments of Police and Fire Under Efficient Heads; Various Other Municipal Sections Also Managed by Experts

By AL DIX
Of The Evening News Staff.

With the passing of 1923, Glendale has completed its second full year of operation under the charter form of government. The original charter was adopted March 29, 1921, and amended in April, 1923. The City Council, endowed with full legislative powers, consists of five members. Spencer Robinson, 1234 East Windsor road, chosen by the council as the first chairman under the provisions of the charter, still holds that position, and has won wide fame as "Glendale's Singing Mayor."

Two other councilmen elected at the same time as the mayor still hold office, namely, Sam A. Davis, 118 West Colorado street, and C. E. Kimlin, 219 North Isabel street. W. A. Horn of 221 North Louise street and Asa Hall of 636 North Louise were chosen at the election in 1923.

A short time ago the council adopted an ordinance providing for daylight meetings. Under the new schedule, the council meets at 10 o'clock every Thursday morning, and at the same hour the first and last Tuesdays of each month, making six meetings a month, in all. Their pay is nominal, only $10 per meeting, with the maximum amount for any one month fixed at $60.

Five Departments
The city administration is divided into five departments, with a councilman at the head of each. Mayor Spencer Robinson has charge of the division of general administration; Councilman Kimlin of the division of conservation and preservation of health; Councilman W. A. Horn of the public safety department, including the police and fire departments; Councilman Davis of the public works department, and Councilman Hall of the public service department.

The details of the municipality are in the hands of W. H. Reeves, city manager, of 500 West Maple, by profession a civil engineer, who was appointed to the position August 15, 1921. Mr. Reeves acts in the capacity of general manager.

News Official Paper
A. J. Van Wie, city clerk, of 316 North Belmont street, is secretary of the council, and custodian of all city documents and records. He is responsible for the publication of all ordinances in the official newspaper, which is The Glendale Evening News, and receives petitions from the public. He shares his office with City Treasurer J. C. Sherer, 717 South Verdugo road, and City Auditor H. C. Saulsbury, who is also known as the city controller, in charge of budgets, payrolls, and is the watch dog of the city funds. Judge F. H. Lowe of 310 Patterson avenue presides over the municipal police court. His principal duty is the hearing of cases involving infractions of the city and state traffic laws.

The city of Glendale is considered fortunate in having for chief of police a man with over thirty years' experience, Colonel John D. Fraser. He has raised the force, which is composed of 298 men, with new problems, to a high state of efficiency, and Glendale is bothered with less crime than any city of its size in the United States.

The city engineer's department is under the supervision of Ben F. Dupuy, 722 East Lomita avenue, a man of wide engineering experience, especially in municipal work.

Light, Water Systems
Glendale's light and water systems are municipally operated, under the direction of Peter Diederich, 1526 East Colorado street. This is the largest department under the city's jurisdiction, and has

W. H. REEVES IS MANAGER OF CITY

W. H. REEVES, city manager of Glendale. He is a veteran of the Spanish American war and the World war.

When Glendale adopted the new city charter in 1921, W. H. Reeves, commissioner of public works of Pasadena, was the popular choice for the position of city manager, and he accepted the position when it was offered to him. Being the first man to hold the office in Glendale, he organized the work after methods that had proven most satisfactory in other cities, where the plan had been adopted, until today Glendale's city affairs which come under his supervision are in excellent shape.

Mr. Reeves is a native of the state of Washington, being born near Seattle. He was educated at the Seattle high school and was a member of the first four year class graduated from Stanford University in 1895, being a classmate of Herbert Hoover. He received the degrees of Electrical Engineer and Bachelor of Arts.

After leaving college he was connected with the San Francisco Gas company, until the Spanish American war in 1898 when he joined the first Signal Corps company ever organized in the United States Army. He was invalided out of the army and came to southern California in 1901, and made Pasadena his residence for twenty years, where he served in many different capacities in the functioned very satisfactorily. James F. McIntyre, 135 North Cedar street, acts as commercial agent and is in charge of the office work.

The building department recently moved from quarters in the city hall to the front rooms of Hahn's hall, across the street, in order to obtain room to properly handle the increasing business, which has grown to be one of the principal items of the city's activities. H. C. Vandewater, 634 North Central avenue, is in charge of this office, and is known as the municipal building superintendent.

Nearly 300 Employees
The payroll of the city for the first two weeks in December carried the names of 298 employees, and totaled slightly in excess of $20,000. This will give some idea of the magnitude of the city's enterprises, and the large force of men required to carry on the work. The largest force is required in the public service department with 107 men in addition to the superintendent. The police department consists of one chief, two lieutenants, two sergeants, two detective sergeants, four motorcycle officers and twenty patrolmen.

The fire department is composed of one fire chief, J. H. Lankford; one assistant chief, three captains, one master mechanic, twelve drivers and nine hosemen. The fire department is completely motor equipped, and ranks well with any similar organization in the country.

In addition to these there are the judicial and legal departments, street department, public building and equipment department, park department and welfare department, all coming under one of the five principal departments of the city's administration.

Glendale has grown so rapidly that more room is being asked for daily by the different officers, and in some cases the work is being seriously hindered by lack of desk room and floor space.

JOHN D. FRASER CHIEF OF POLICE

JOHN D. FRASER, chief of police of the city of Glendale, prominent in military affairs and an expert on transportation as well as police matters.

Glendale has for a chief of police a man who truly may say that he comes from a military family. The family of which Colonel John D. Fraser is a member has been represented in every war in which the United States has taken part since the signing of the Declaration of Independence in 1776.

One of the most precious possessions of the family is the bible of Benedict Arnold, who was tried, convicted and executed as a traitor during the Revolutionary War. Colonel Fraser's great-grandfather was military escort and responsible for the traitor's safe keeping during the interval between the arrest and the conviction. Just before being executed he presented the Bible to his guardian as an appreciation of the kind and just treatment that he had received.

Born in New York

John D. Fraser was born in New York City, and was educated in the public schools there. At an early age he felt the urge of the military life, and joined the 1st New Jersey Infantry of the National Guard as a drummer boy when 18 years old. Since that time he has had a long and varied military career. He served thirty years in one regiment, holding every rank from drummer to colonel. He was regimental com-

Chief Executive

SPENCER ROBINSON, Glendale's "singing mayor." He is a popular executive, prominent in the business and social life of the city, a heavy holder of realty and one of the citizens who has done much to give Glendale lots of favorable advertising up and down the state—and outside California, for that matter.

Spencer Robinson, Glendale's "Singing Mayor," one of the most colorful executives of any California city, has resided at 1234 East Windsor road since 1906. The house which he now occupies stands on a portion of his original purchase of a twelve-acre tract when he came to this city in that year.

He was born in Rock Island, Ill., March 11, 1868, a son of Dean Tyler and Julia (Spencer) Robinson. He is descended on both sides of the family from old Colonial stock, members of whom fought in the Revolutionary War. His grandfather, John Weston Spencer, with Bally Davenport, were the first settlers on the Mississippi river where the city of Davenport, Iowa, is now located.

Traveling Salesman
After finishing his high school education, he entered Shortridge academy, Media, Pa., later transferring to Lafayette college, Pa., where he graduated in 1891. His first occupation was as traveling salesman for an implement firm in Iowa, where he started his career as a vocalist. Later he developed a splendid tenor voice.

While attending college in the east he had taken music as a supplementary course, finishing his training in Chicago. From 1894 to 1912 he was engaged on the stage in concert and dramatic work, also conducting a class in voice culture. During these years he studied abroad in England and on the Continent.

In 1900 he first answered the call of the west, his engagement being for "Bob" Burdette at the old Hazard pavilion on Hill street at Sixth, Los Angeles. Later he sang for Bishop Charles Edward Locke and Bishop Robert McIntyre of the Methodist Episcopal church of Los Angeles.

Elected Trustee
As stated, he came back to Glendale in 1906, engaging in the realty business. He has been a purchaser of large acreage in this vicinity, most of which has been subdivided and sold as residence sites. He first entered public life in Glendale in 1919, when he was elected a public trustee. He held that position until elected councilman in June, 1921. When the first council under the new charter organized, he was unanimously elected chairman, or mayor.

Although he no longer sings as a professional, he is ever ready to give of his talent for any worthy cause, and no public benefit is complete without a number from the mayor. He is a member of the realty board, a charter member of the Kiwanis, and an enthusiastic Elk.

Mayor Robinson and his wife, who was Bertha Henrietta Sonntag of Friend, Neb., have three children, Julia, Jean and Dean Tyler. Julia is a graduate of the Glendale Union High school, Jean and Dean Tyler are pupils of high and grammar schools, respectively. Mrs. Robinson is very active in club affairs, and has been of wonderful help to the mayor in maintaining the position which his public and financial position requires.

Mechanical Knowledge
Chief Lankford is a native of Edwards county, Illinois, where he made his residence prior to coming to California in 1913. He had been engaged in the garage business, and it was due to his general mechanical knowledge that he gained his first position on the Glendale fire department.

His home in Glendale is at 1320 Glenwood road. Mr. and Mrs. Lankford have one boy, Burlin, 21 years of age, who attended Glendale Union High school. He at present resides in Whittier.

Glendale's fire chief is quiet, but efficient, and has the respect and confidence of city officials and members of the force alike.

CAREFUL COMPUTATIONS FROM FOUR SOURCES SHOW GLENDALE'S GROWTH

Thorough Investigation Indicates Community Sets New Record in Progress; More Industrial Plants and Bigger Buildings Will Come, Predicts W. E. Hewitt, C. of C. President

By H. THOMPSON RICH
Of The Evening News Staff.

It was on December 14, 1923, that The Glendale Evening News produced facts and figures to prove Glendale had passed the 50,000 mark in population. The announcement was not made without careful investigation. The total was the result of a series of computations, obtained independently through four different avenues of estimate and then averaged. The total arrived at was 50,168. A wonderful Christmas present for the city of Glendale!

And when The Glendale Evening News made the announcement the city had passed the 50,000 mark, a veritable landslide of enthusiasm resulted.

Merchants from every quarter of the city have hailed the information with keenest satisfaction. Speaking for the Chamber of Commerce, W. E. Hewitt, its newly elected president, stated:

"The Glendale Evening News is to be congratulated on the timely data proving that the city's growth has reached and exceeded 50,000. As city builders, we greet this paper once more as a leader in the upbuilding of Glendale."

"A population of 30,000 means to Glendale a higher assessed valuation, which will in turn bring:

One—More industrial plants.

Two—Bigger buildings.
"With a substantial foundation of 50,000 people, the city will rapidly take its place as an industrial and business center. It was hard sledding to grow from 2742 in 1910 to 13,350 in 1920—but the momentum we have gained will carry us inevitably to 200,000 by 1930."

"There is no greater reward for effort than lies in achievement. We stand today, on the threshold of 1924, in a position enjoyed by no other city in California, ready to step out into a new year of growth that will carry us to a population of 70,000 or 80,000 by another Christmas."

Such a Christmas present as is Glendale's this year fills a big stocking. It exceeds even the reputation earned in 1920, when by government census report it was shown that Glendale increased its population 393 per cent in the decade then ending, a reputation which has enabled the city to take for its own slogan, "The fastest growing city in America."

Glendale in Front Rank
Now, more proudly than ever, may Glendale wear this slogan—for in a mere three years the city has grown as much as in the preceding remarkable decade that won for Glendale the admiration of the world. Long Beach, Alhambra, Pasadena, Burbank, Fresno and other claimants to the title of the "fastest growing" city are hereby served notice that their claims can no longer be seriously considered, in the face of this new evidence. Here is the story as told in The Glendale Evening News on December 14, 1923:

"Population today, over 50,000; last year, 32,000; 1921, 23,000; 1920, 13,350; 1910, 2742."

"And in building permits, consider this:

"Total for 1923 to date, $9,573,188; for 1922, $6,305,971; for 1921, $5,099,201; and for 1920, $3,137,269."

"The estimate that at noon today Glendale had a population of 50,168 is arrived at by averaging the following four separate estimates:

"Based on school enrollment and attendance, 54,473."

"Figures issued from postoffice today, 50,000."

"Based on ratio of building permits to population for past three years, 51,200."

"Figures compiled from population ratio of gas, water and electric installations of past three years, 45,000."

"The total of the above four sets of figures is 200,673. Averaging this by dividing it by four, the result is 50,168, estimated population of Glendale at noon today."

Methods of Computing

"Taking each of these four separate estimates one at a time, and showing how it was obtained:

"The 54,473 of school enrollment comes from taking the average daily school attendance, 6342, and multiplying it by 10, the customary ratio. This gives 63,420; which is averaged in turn by six and one-half times the total enrollment of 7004, or 45,626. These two major figures are in turn averaged, making the figure 54,473, which was used above."

"The figure of 50,000 given out from the Glendale postoffice this morning by Captain D. Ripley Jackson is based on the number of carriers required to deliver the mail, and by other methods of computation averaged generally throughout the government postal service."

"The figure of 51,200 based on averaging the ratios of building permits to population, for the past three years, can be obtained by anyone who will average the percentage of gain in population each year with the percentage of gain in building permits, from which it is possible to estimate the percentage of gain in either for the year now drawing to a close, and from this to arrive at the above figure."

CONSTRUCTIVE PROGRAM IS OUTLINED FOR CONTINUING PROGRESS AND PROSPERITY

W. E. Hewitt Is New President of Body and Is Being Backed by Strong Lineup of Officers and Board of Directors

By RALPH A. LYND
Of The Evening News Staff.

With the close of 1923, one of the most eventful years in the history of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, the directors of the organization are turning their eyes ahead to 1924 and are shaping their plans for the work that lies ahead of them in their task of assisting in the commercial and social development of the city.

Much of Glendale's history that has been written during the past year shows the constructive influence of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, and the record of accomplishment of the board of directors who guided the destinies of the organization over the past twelve months, to go back no further, covers some of the most important events in the upbuilding of the city.

At the beginning of 1923 the board of directors adopted a definite program of work, and, with very few and very slight variations, they adhered to this program, working earnestly to accomplish as much as possible of the ambitious plans they made twelve months ago.

Tells of Work

In a summary of the year's activities, issued just prior to the recent election of the new board of directors, the Chamber of Commerce outlined briefly some of the work that had been done, among which may be listed much of the preliminary work that has resulted in the signing of the contract for the construction of a sewer system between the cities of Glendale and Los Angeles. The Chamber of Commerce is still working earnestly to insure the passage of the bonds for $1,600,000 that are required to construct the proposed sewer system.

Another important activity that engaged the attention of the Chamber of Commerce has been the advertising campaign that has been carried on in the columns of three of the leading newspapers of the Southland, with results that early in the campaign assumed definite form in bringing to Glendale a large number of new residents, many of whom have invested their money in property here and have thus aided in the development of the city.

Along Defined Lines

This advertising campaign was launched following the expansion drive that was held in the summer, when several hundred members were added to those already on the rolls and when a service fund, for the specific purpose of advertising Glendale, was started in addition to the funds that were received from subscriptions.

Every phase of civic and commercial activity has been fostered by the Chamber of Commerce, working along well-defined lines. New industries have been encouraged to establish themselves here, and every assistance possible was extended to such firms as desired to locate in Glendale and to engage in business here. The building of the Southern Pacific depot in Glendale came largely as a result of the work done by the organization, and another field where the Chamber of Commerce has labored to good advantage is in the promotion of plans for the development of highways that would afford a better and more adequate system of handling the immense and steadily growing traffic that is taxing the roads of Southern California to the limit.

Get Improvements

Efforts to have the telegraph service between Glendale and outside points improved has resulted in changes that will, it is predicted, work to the benefit of Glendale, and in this the committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce had the assistance of the officials of the Western Union Telegraph company, who realized that the growth of Glendale's population demanded a better service than had been given the city in the past.

The harmony that exists between the Glendale Chamber of Commerce and other civic bodies has permitted the closest co-operation on all matters that have affected the interests of the city and of its people, and the new board is determined to maintain this harmonious spirit to the greatest degree possible.

Officers and Directors

On December 4, 1923, six new members were elected to fill the places left vacant on the board of directors through the expiration of the terms of the same number of the members of the old board. The 1923 board, under the presidency of W. E. Hewitt, first vice-president, C. D. Lusby, second vice-president, P. J. Hayselden, R. P. Kitterman, A. R. Eastman, Earle C. Pendroy, George H. Bentley, David L. Gregg, Daniel Campbell, Roy L. Kent and Peter L. Ferry, as elected members, and L. H. Wilson and C. E. Kimlin as appointed members. Those who retired were Messrs. Smith, Lusby, Gregg, Campbell, Kent and Ferry, and their places have been taken by D. H. Smith, who has been chosen first vice-president; Geo. B. Karr, second vice-president; G. W. Ingledue, Harry Mac-

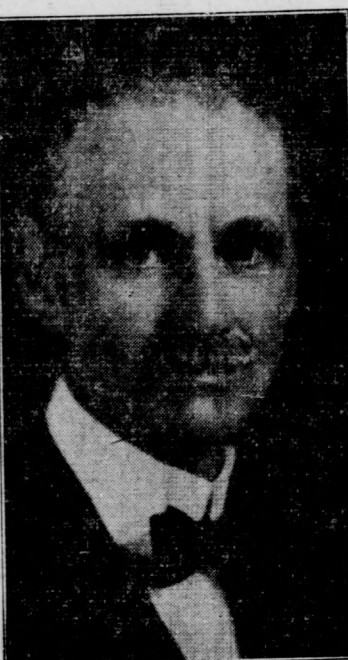

W. E. HEWITT, President of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce.

Bain, Lyman P. Clark and Fred Deal, a board that is rated as one of the strongest that ever directed the destinies of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce.

Under the presidency of W. E. Hewitt the new board is setting its face resolutely toward the new tasks that lie ahead of the organization, working along lines that will surpass, in results, anything that has been accomplished in the past.

MATTISON B. JONES BOOSTER FOR CITY

Mattison B. Jones, prominent in city's affairs and big property owner.

Mattison B. Jones, prominent Los Angeles attorney, whose beautiful colonial residence on Kenneth Road is a landmark, has for many years been vitally interested in Glendale affairs and has figured in a number of large business projects. He is at the present time president of the Brand Boulevard Improvement association and is prominent in the upbuilding of Glendale. He is a large property holder and is ever advertising the advantages of the city.

Pantalettes Appear In London's Society

LONDON, Jan. 1.—Pantalettes—absurd and saucy creations of the Victorian era—are back in fashion again.

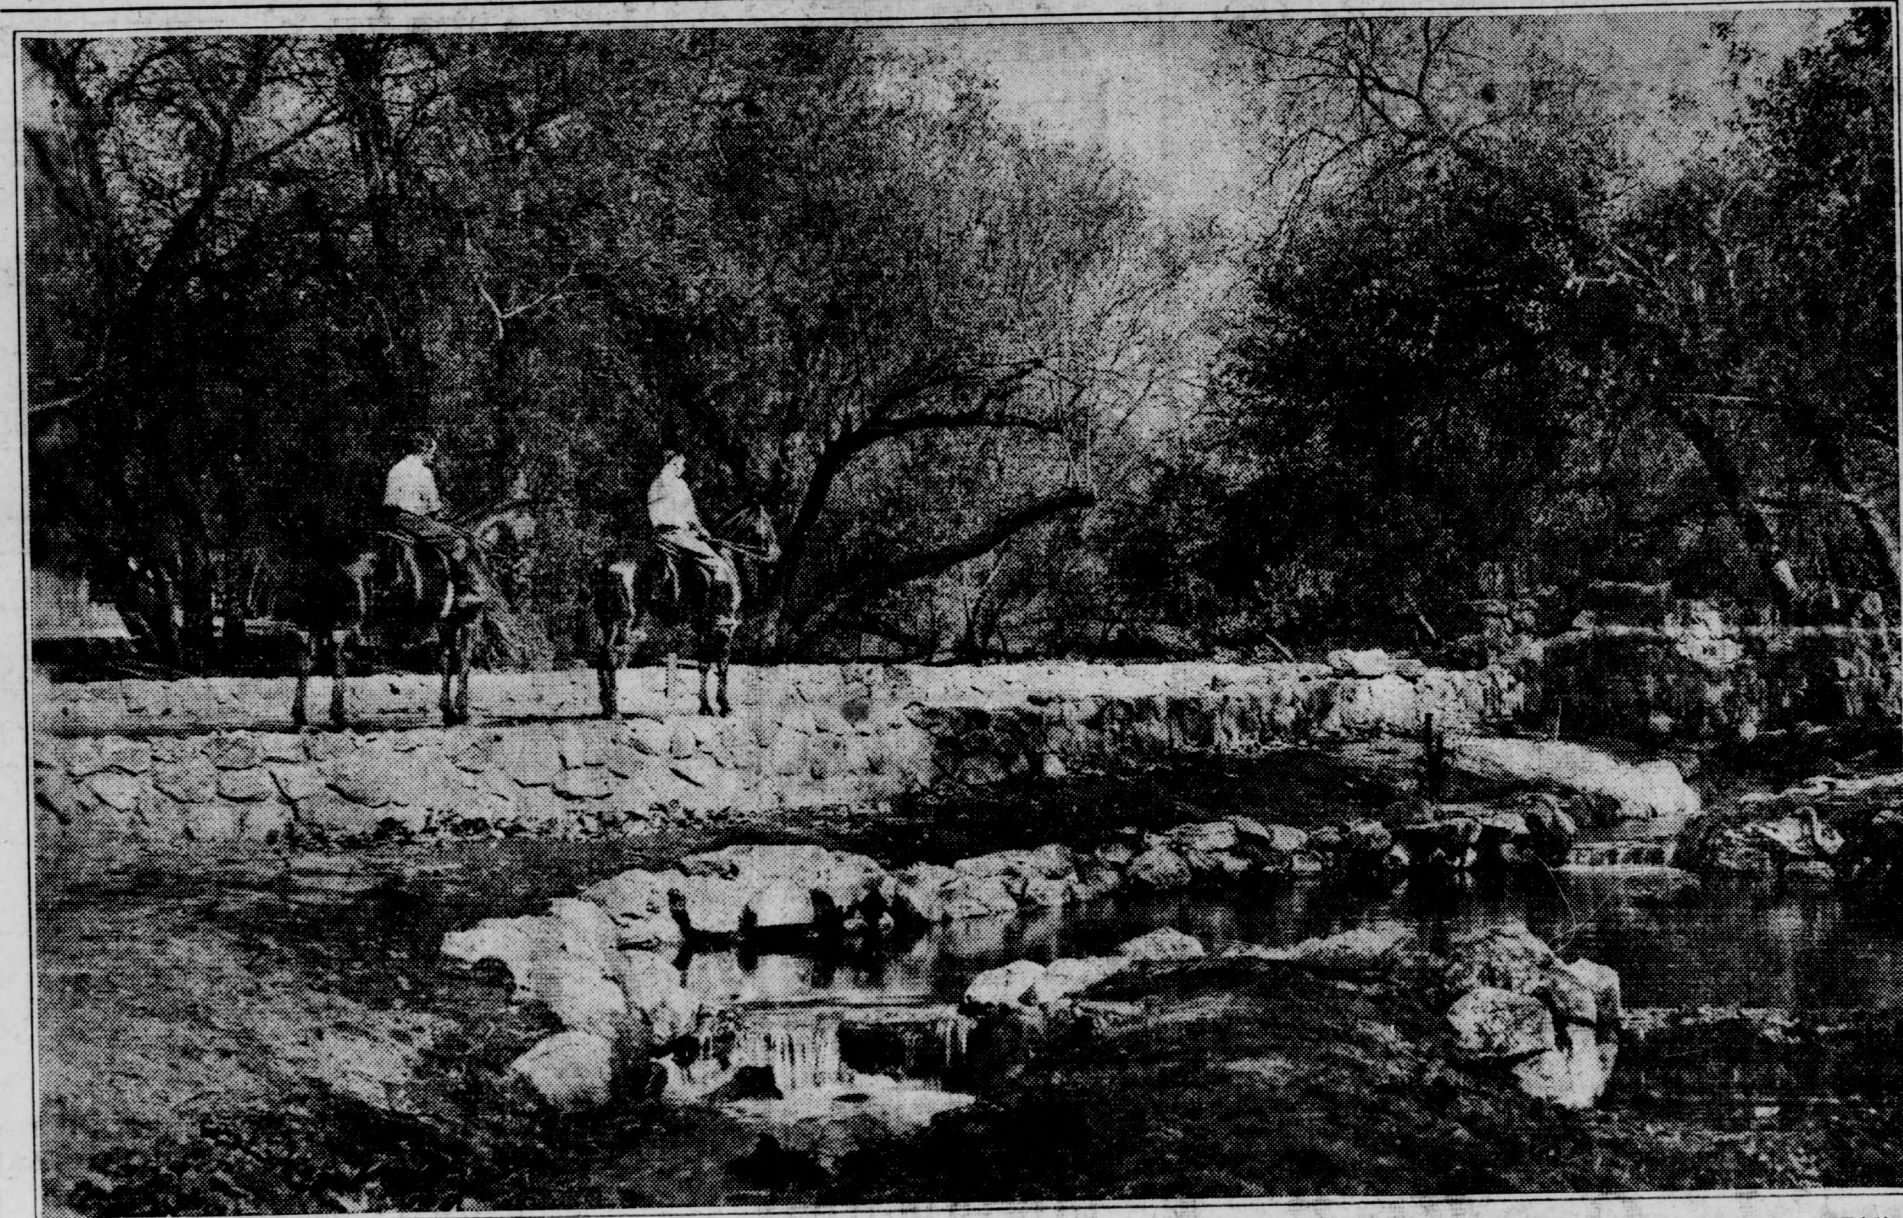

The newest dance frocks and the semi-Victorian ball dresses, the rage here now, have pantalettes just showing beneath the hem of the skirts. They are made in materials to match the color of the dresses and the shoes, and some of them are adorned with knots of colored ribbons and small bunches of satin flowers. Those made of gold and silver gauze, chiffon and delicate lace are the most popular.

Chicago Millionaire, Lover of Great Outdoors, Finds Verdugo Woodlands Great Place to Ride

C. M. Eichenbaum, Chicago millionaire, who is stopping at the Ambassador hotel, is a great lover of the great big out-of-doors and good horses. Riding early mornings with J. R. Thorpe, of the Oakmont Saddle Stables, through the hills and canyons in and around Sparr Heights and the Verdugo Woodlands, mounted on "King Midas," who is one of Mrs. Thorpe's beautiful Kentucky horses, appealed to Mr. Eichenbaum to the extent that he had several large photos made in different locations which he sent back to his eastern associates to prove to them that the winters of California are all that is claimed for them. Many people wonder why Glendale grows with leaps and bounds—it is because of just such men as Mr. Eichenbaum, who, on visiting Glendale, finds not only the natural attractions that all California cities have, but in addition the many unusual attractions such as the bridge path, as pictured above, with a beautiful stream and shrubs within a few miles of Brand Boulevard and Broadway.

'Service Before Self' Is Slogan of Rotary Club In Upbuilding Community

Organized two short years ago—January 4, 1922, to be exact—the Glendale Rotary club is a service organization with international affiliations which has taken its place as a powerful factor in the civic affairs of the community.

Composed of two score business and professional men, recognized leaders in their respective lines, the Rotary club meets every Thursday noon at 12 o'clock sharp in the Egyptian Village, 133 North Brand boulevard, where a private dining room gives them the pleasure of loudly singing praises of praise to Rotary service.

C. C. Cooper was chairman at time of organization and served as the first president of the club. He was succeeded by Roy L. Kent and this year George B. Karr is president of the club. J. Herbert Smith, who first served as secretary, is vice-president; Rene Olin Council, Roy Wernette is treasurer. In addition to those named as officers the board of directors is composed of Rev. Ernest E. Ford, William Hunter and Roy L. Kent.

Their Watchword

"Service before self" is the watchword of Rotarians and the Glendale club members have scored high in attendance at the weekly luncheon meetings. The organization of the Burbank club with whom to meet on Mondays while Los Angeles and Pasadena, as well as a score more Southern California cities, have clubs which extend their hospitality.

Among the accomplishments of the year was the obtaining of Haines canyon in the mountains back of Tujunga as a summer camp for the Verdugo Hills Council, Boy Scouts of America. Roy L. Kent is trustee of this project. Boys Week also is observed each year by the Rotarians with suitable field, home and church services.

The interest of the Glendale Rotary club in crippled children of the city has been productive of much good during the last year. At first the club employed a part time teacher for the tots who were denied schooling because of physical disability.

Hold Bazaar

Later the school board took over the work with the Rotarians fathering the work. Last Thanksgiving the club held a bazaar at the Glendale Union High school for the purpose of establishing a circulating library. Rotarian Richardson D. White, superintendent of schools, has been active in this work.

Rotarian William A. Howe, manager of the Glendale Theatre, on one or more occasions each year, throws his house open to the youth of the city on behalf of the club. Paul Carson, organist at the Glendale, is organist for the club while "France" J. W. Henry and Attorney Owen Emery lead the singing.

Rev. Ernest E. Ford is in charge of the club's educational work. "Rotoservice" is the name of the official bulletin issued weekly by the Glendale Rotarians. Halloween and Christmas parties are among the social events at which the Rotary-Ann are invited to participate with the clubmen.

Bounty Claimed For Killing Huge Coyote

HANFORD, Jan. 1.—A coyote weighing sixty-five pounds and measuring six feet from tip to tip was brought to the courthouse for bounty payment by D. E. Richardson. The animal is said to be the largest ever killed in this county, being over half as large again as the average coyote. Richardson is preserving the thick pelt for a rug.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—Lady Constance Butler, daughter of the late Marquis of Ormonde, is the first woman in England to take up X-ray specialists' work as a profession. She has entire charge of the X-ray department at St. Andrew's hospital, in this city, and daily treats patients of the professional and middle classes.

TRISSEL TO GIVE GAS RANGE FREE

Newlyweds to Win Prize At Detroit Jewel Agency in Near Future

The volume of business transacted by Geo. J. Trissel, at his store that was opened at the beginning of December at 223 South Brand Boulevard, has encouraged the firm to look forward to a phenomenal year in 1924. Mr. Trissel and his staff are very appreciative of the business that has come to them, as agents for the Detroit Jewel range, and they attribute much of their success to the fact that the users of this range turn to it again when the need for a new stove arises.

Mr. Trissel is planning to give away, free, a Detroit Jewel range to some newly wedded couple who enter the bonds of matrimony during January or February, and will make their home in Glendale, or its immediate vicinity. That is the only condition. The range will be delivered and connected free of charge.

The immense line of gas appliances carried in stock enables Mr. Trissel to render service not only on his own line of stoves, but on every other recognized brand.

OPEN STORE FOR PAINTS AND OILS

Los Angeles Factory Locates First Unit of Chain Stores Here

After looking over towns throughout the Southern California coast country for a suitable location for the first unit of the chain of branch stores, Glendale was selected by Scriver & Quinn, Inc., of Los Angeles, large manufacturers and distributors of paints, oils and painters' accessories. The Glendale branch has been established at 225 East Broadway, with W. D. Warden, who has been associated with the firm for twenty years, located here as general manager.

In establishing the branch store, Mr. Warden says that Scriver & Quinn, Inc., which was established in 1888, is making a departure from its custom of confining the greater part of the company's efforts to industrial needs. Seeing the need for their products in the retail field, he says, the chain store plan was decided upon as the best method for distributing the products in an economical and efficient way.

Associated with Mr. Warden in the new store is R. A. Crossland,

Glendale Exchange Club Among Leaders In City's Business and Social Life

Organized May 5, 1922, as the Progressive Business Men's club and merged with the National Exchange club on July 5 of that year as the Glendale chapter, the Glendale Exchange club has from its inception been prominent in the business and civic life of the city, numbering among its membership leaders along numerous avenues of endeavor.

The Exchange club meets weekly for luncheon at Jensen's Egyptian Village, 133 North Brand boulevard. Its president for 1923 was D. Ripley Jackson, postmaster. At last week's meeting there was held the annual election of officers, with the following results:

R. E. Johnston, president; Dr. Henry R. Harrower, vice-president; George H. Thomas, treasurer; and as directors, L. F. Millet, Dr. T. P. Noehle, W. H. Daniel, F. C. Butler, D. Ripley Jackson, George A. Whitaker and M. Coy.

The first president of the organization, elected when it was formed as the Progressive Business Men's club, was W. B. Kelly.

For Americanism
The Exchange club stands for 100 per cent Americanism. It opposes excess law-making, opposes state and national, encourages an exchange of ideas, seeks to promote the public welfare and develops business courtesies. The motto of the club, "Unity for Service," is kept constantly before the members, as an inspiration to work together for the common good.

In reviewing the activities of the year just closed, this motto is seen to have been stressed, for the various endeavors of the club have been marked by a close cooperation, not only of the members, but of other clubs as well, in the promotion and prosecution of civic enterprises, among them the following:

Support of the Community Service Idea.
Endeavor to secure a civic center.
Co-operation with the Boy Scout movement.
Work for a site for American Legion.
Assistance to the Children's Hospital auxiliary.
Effort to divert traffic through Glendale from San Fernando road to Brand boulevard, via Burchett street.

Support of a boys' band.
Arranging a get-together meeting of the various clubs each quarter.

The Glendale chapter of the National Exchange club was represented last year at the annual conference by D. Ripley Jackson and W. C. Waring. The meeting was held in Springfield, Mass., and the activities of these two delegates served to advertise Glendale throughout the country. The report of James Howarth, 1923 secretary, shows that the membership of the club has practically doubled since it became affiliated with the national organization, and a drive for members that ended with the close of the year was highly successful, bringing to R. E. Johnston a beautiful gold Elgin watch as a prize for bringing in the greatest number of new Exchanges.

Mr. Johnston faces his duties for the year with the confidence that the club is going to go farther than ever before along the constructive lines exemplified by its motto, "Unity for Service."

Jazz Music Is Under Ban In British Jails

LONDON, Jan. 1.—There is probably only one place in the world where tired ears can rest assured they won't hear the strains of "Yes, We Have No Bananas" or "Barney Google," and that is in an English jail.

The commissioners of prisons for England have banned all jazz music.

"More comic programs are barred," says a statement from the commission, "because prisons are not places of entertainment. Education is the object."

A week-end in jail isn't so bad in England, perhaps.

INCOME TAX DECISIONS ARE TOLD

Five New Rulings Affect Many Classes of Taxpayers Says Collector

Five income tax rulings received from Washington today by Collector of Internal Revenue Rex Goodcell, on the eve of the 1923 income tax drive, affect many classes of taxpayers.

Under one ruling a woman who brings suit for annulment of her marriage on the grounds of fraud and asks for damages, is not compelled to pay income tax in any amount that is awarded her through a compromise effected prior to trial.

The compensation of officers and employees of street railways owned and operated by a municipality is taxable under the revenue act of 1921 although the salaries and wages of city officers are exempt.

An executor may not deduct in his personal return as a bad debt due from the estate of a deceased an amount which the executor paid out of his personal funds and without legal liability to creditors of a corporation of which the testator was virtually the legal owner.

Assessments Barred

No tax should be assessed under section 504 of revenue act of 1917 or section 503 of the revenue act of 1918 with respect to certificates of membership issued by the relief departments of the various railroads for the period during which those roads were under federal control.

The revenue act of 1921 imposes upon proprietors of bowling alleys and billiard rooms a special tax of $10 on each alley or table. The replacement of a specific number of alleys or tables with a like number of tables or alleys would not change the unit taxation or affect the special tax in any manner and will not subject a proprietor to additional tax.

Dr. Walton Hubbard, 444 South Serrano street, Los Angeles, was the first Southern Californian to pay his income tax for the calendar year 1923. He led an army of 260,000 who must make their payments by March 15, 1924.

Although Dr. Hubbard's income tax was not due until after January 1, he talked into the office of Collector Rex Goodcell today and presented him a check and closed his account for the year.

May Mail Checks
In this connection Collector Goodcell said that there seemed to be an impression in many quarters that an income taxpayer must call in person at the internal revenue office and pay his taxes in cash. This is a mistake, he declared.

Taxpayers may make payment by personal checks or money orders and avoid the loss of time and inconvenience of waiting in line by using the mails. Personal delivery of the remittance is unnecessary. He cautioned against sending cash through the mails.

"The new income tax blanks will be mailed out about January 2. Fill them out at once and mail them with a check enclosed. This will save you a trip to the federal building and much loss of time," the collector advised.

Law Demands Stamps On Legal Documents

"Probably the most common and frequent violation of internal revenue laws," said Collector of Internal Revenue Rex Goodcell yesterday, "is in respect to stamp tax on certificates of stock, deeds, powers of attorney, proxies, and other documents requiring documentary stamps to make them legal under the law."

"The law imposes a fine of $10 for each offense on whoever issues, issues or accepts, or causes to be made, signed, issued or accepted, any instrument, document or paper of any kind or description whatsoever without the full amount of tax thereon being duly paid, or makes use of any adhesive stamp to denote tax without cancelling the stamp."

"In these prosperous days in southern California, with thousands of new corporations issuing stock; with meetings of stockholders where proxies are issued; with hundreds of thousands of deeds passing from grantors to grantees; and with the issuance of hundreds of thousands of other documents necessary to the conduct of business and which are subject to stamp tax, it is certainly behooves those responsible to know and comply with the law and to see that proper stamps are affixed and cancelled. It is rather expensive to pay a one hundred dollar fine for failure to place a ten cent stamp on a proxy."

"In an investigation now being made," continued Collector Goodcell, "it is astounding, the number of violations of law that have been discovered. In one case a corporation issued nearly two hundred thousand dollars in stock, mostly in small certificates, failing in every case to affix any stamps, so that it faces a fine of nearly two hundred thousand dollars, as each unstamped certificate is an offense."

Demand on the part of Glendale shoppers has caused the opening here during 1923 of numerous splendid new stores, shops, cafes and other establishments catering to the particular desires of an all-American population of 50,000 people.

There was a day when a storeroom with a little shelving and a couple of counters constituted a business establishment in Glendale, but the business demands of 1923 require a substantial investment of $20,000 or more in fixtures alone for a well appointed Glendale shop or cafe.

Indeed, some of Glendale's newest stores and cafes have entailed a much greater investment before the doors were opened to the public. It is with pride

It is a fact that many of Glendale's smart shops at- tract patronage from Hol- lywood and Pasadena. They are the type of busi- ness for which a larger city would give thousands of dollars to obtain. They are the life blood and spirit of the commercial city.

The older and better es- tablished business people welcome the newcomers of 1923, for it hasn't been more than a year or two, comparatively speaking, that they, too, were among the late arrivals in "the fastest growing city in America."

POPULATION FOR CITY OVER 50,000

above, based on general averages of gas, water and electrical installations, is the most conservative figure employed in this calculation, as anyone who is familiar with the situation knows that public service connections are not able to keep pace with the rapid growth of this city and that any figures based upon them are at least 10 per cent short of the mark. In fairness, however, this estimate has been allowed to run with the others, pulling down the general average considerably.

"With a population of over 50,000 and a building year that will exceed $10,000,000 when New Year's eve rings in 1924, Glendale is seen to be entering the great development period of its history, a period comparable with that which has lifted Hollywood and Long Beach from obscurity to world fame.

"Glendale is the next Hollywood and the next Long Beach. A six-story building is now nearing completion at the northeast corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway, to be the future home of the Glendale branch of the Security Trust & Savings bank. When, two years ago, the Hollywood branch of this same institution was completed, a great celebration was held, joined in by the entire community, for it marked Hollywood's first six-story building.

"Today Hollywood is putting up a dozen or more thirteen-story buildings, the height limit. Long Beach tells a similar story. Two years from today there will be height limit buildings in Glendale, and the population of the city will be over 100,000.

"These are plain, ordinary statements of facts, obvious to thinking people and increasingly obvious to big capitalists and investors of Los Angeles, San Francisco and eastern cities, who are bringing large quantities of money into Glendale, in realization of the commanding position it has taken as a Southern California city.

"And, folks, Glendale's population is now past the 50,000 mark. 'You tell the world!'

leader of the regiment of his first choice for 12 years. During the Spanish-American war in 1898 he served as Captain of Company F in this regiment, and as colonel during the Mexican Insurrection of 1916. During the World war he served as colonel of the 113th regular United States Infantry, when he made an exceptionally good record. In addition to the three wars mentioned, he served at 7 different occasions on strike duty, including the anarchist uprising in Paterson, New Jersey, in 1913, when they attempted to blow up the town with bombs. During his army life, and especially for the few years prior to his retirement in 1919, he had made an extensive study of transportation, both as regarding troops and civil train movements, as well as municipal problems.

After his retirement he came to Glendale, but remained only a short time. He moved to Hollywood, but later, in March, 1921, moved back to Glendale when he received his present appointment. Colonel Fraser, with Mrs. Fraser, have a beautiful home at 643 North Maryland avenue. They have no children. Their home life is quiet, the Colonel's one great hobby being things military. He is considered in the army as an expert on transportation, and is often called into consultation, although retired, to give advice on this question.

COAST-TO-COAST ARMY STORE HERE

Sam D. Goldsmith Reports Smashing Big Volume Of Business

"The store that makes your dollar have more sense," is the Coast-to-Coast Army Store at 145 South Brand boulevard, Glendale, which opened October 29, 1923, under the management of Sam D. Goldsmith.

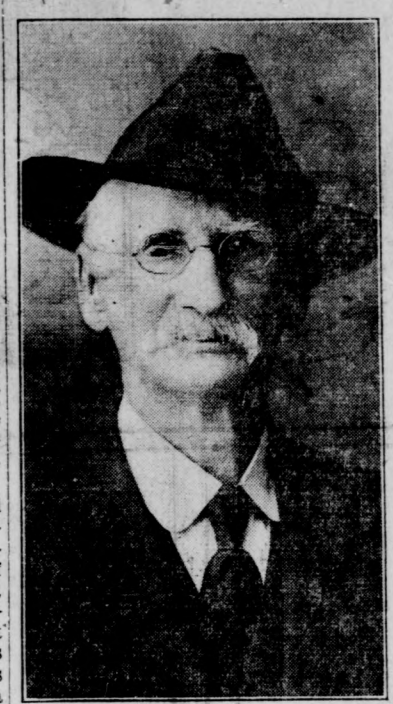

Everything for the working man is handled by S. D. Goldsmith at the centrally located Coast-to-Coast Army Store, a complete line of clothing, shoes, suits and coats, as well as a large assortment of army blankets and army shoes being handled here.

The store has enjoyed a smashing business since it was opened and Mr. Goldsmith promises a big surprise for Glendale shoppers in announcements to be made next Friday in The Glendale Evening News.

Boys In Blue Proudly Continue to Play Their Part For City and Nation

T. M. Barrett is commander of Glendale contingent of "Boys in Blue," who fought under the Stars and Stripes back in 1860. Glendale's old soldiers are gathered together in the N. P. Banks post, No. 170, G. A. R.

It was in September, 1894, that Civil war veterans living in Glendale formed this local post. There were twenty-one members at organization, and since then other veterans have been enrolled, bringing the total to well past the 175 mark. Of this number eighty-eight are deceased.

Commander Barrett exemplifies the loyalty and patriotism of his fellow post members, and has been the most active one throughout the years. He was commander once before.

Guard at Trial
Mr. Barrett's war record shows he fought for three years during the war with the First Wisconsin Infantry, and after the assassination of Lincoln he was a member of the guard at the trial in Washington, D. C., of Captain Wirtz of Andersonville prison fame.

Other officers of the post are: T. C. Fuller, senior vice-commander; Charles Skelton, junior vice-commander; Rev. C. R. Norton, chaplain; R. N. Taylor, officer of the day; J. H. Rouse, officer of the guard; W. H. Barr, surgeon; J. A. Thayer, color-bearer; Wilson Catts, S. Houdysheal and S. W. Harmon, delegates to department convention.

Closely bound up with the history of the post is that of the women's auxiliary, the N. P. Banks Women's Relief Corps, No. 67, organized in January, 1898, with fifteen members, and now an organization of over 200 women. Of the fifteen charter members there are living Mrs. Cora Hickman Stearns, Mrs. Adelaide Imbler of Glendale; Mrs. Isabel Moore of South Pasadena and Mrs. Clara Gulbin Thompson of Long Beach.

Joint meetings with the post are held every second and fourth Friday of the month in the G. A. R. hall on South Glendale avenue.

PHYSICIAN SUED BY DOPE VICTIM

Atlanta Girl Asks $100,000, Charging Doctor Gave Her Morphine

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 1.—Charging that he made her a dope addict and that, as a result, she lost her position, the "respect and esteem of her friends," and has suffered "untold misery" and pain of body and agony of soul, Kathryn Tew, twenty-six-year-old stenographer, of this city, has filed a suit for $100,000 damages against Dr. William D. Roper, a practicing physician, of Atlanta.

"I was under the care of Dr. George C. Mizell when I took a prescription to Dr. Roper," Miss Tew alleged in her filed statement, "and Dr. Roper gave me morphine, a habit forming drug, without my knowledge or consent."

"After I had become addicted to the morphine I lost my position and the respect and esteem of my friends and all who knew me, and my life was completely wrecked and ruined as a result."

"I was even sent to the Georgia State Farm for eight months because I used drugs, serving there from May 9, 1923 until December 7, 1923."

The petition was filed in Superior Court here for Miss Tew by Attorney Vester M. Owenby.

Wife Buries Veteran As Comrades Arrive

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 1.—Three comrades of J. P. Carey, former commander of Lieutenant Lansdale Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, after journeying 260 miles over almost impassable mountain roads to aid their fellow soldier, reached Big Oak Flat in Tuolumne county only in time to gaze upon a newly-made grave, beside which stood the sorrowing wife of Carey.

One week ago news was received that the former commander was stricken with tuberculosis. A special meeting was called and money voted for securing medical aid and necessities for him, owing to his inability to work, the Spanish War veteran was in financial straits.

Commander M. Blakeley, Frank Smith and W. H. Taylor started out Sunday in high spirits for the homestead upon which Carey and his wife had lived since 1919, and his wife had remained on the homestead until spring, when the title will be issued. Meantime Sacramento veterans will extend aid to the plucky woman.

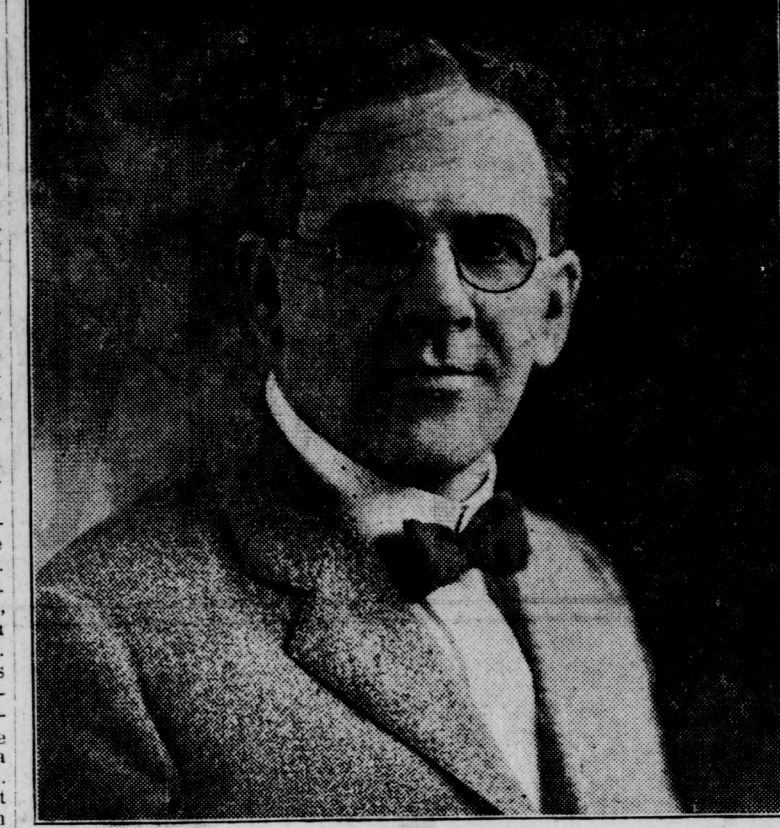

Carey saw active service in the Cuban, Philippine and Boxer campaigns. While a member of a paigins, he was in 1901, he was gassed by Chinese "stinkpots" so seriously that tuberculosis developed.

NEGROES LYNCH NEGRO

TUNICA, Miss., Jan. 1.—The story of a negro lynched by negroes came to light with the report of the death of Ed Hardy, who killed an aged negro mammy and stole her $500 savings. Two white men captured the negro and telephoned the sheriff, leaving the prisoner handcuffed in charge of a guard. A crowd of negroes took Hardy from the guard, killed him and threw his body in the river.

BUSINESS CHIEF OF HOSPITAL Here, Takes Active Part In Progress of Glendale

C. E. KIMLIN, manager of the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital, member of the City Council of Glendale, and well known for his interest in civic affairs. Mr. Kimlin began his career as an elevator boy at the Seventh-day Adventist institution at Battle Creek, working to pay his way through college.

One of the greatest factors in the progress and success of the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital may well be said to be the business ability of C. E. Kimlin, business manager of the institution, and also member of the Glendale City Council.

There is a most interesting background leading up to Mr. Kimlin's success, for he began his service with the Seventh Day Adventist denomination as elevator boy at the great institution in Battle Creek, Mich.

Mr. Kimlin received his early education in the public schools in his home town, Bloomington, Ill. Later he went to Battle Creek to become a student, working his way as elevator boy.

His faithfulness and ambition finally led him to the position of cashier and assistant treasurer of the great hospital, and he served

Earle C. Pendroy, Department Store Owner, Is Optimistic Over Prospects for New Year

If you consider that Glendale has reached the pinnacle of the peak of prosperity, or if you doubt that there is a glorious future ahead of Glendale and the entire San Fernando valley, make an appointment, if possible, with Earle C. Pendroy, president of the Pendroy Dry Goods company. Sit in his office on the third floor of the magnificent mercantile building at Brand boulevard and Harvard street, adorned by the illuminated sign bearing his name. Then take a stiff "bracer" of Pendroy optimism. And you will emerge a new man, full of faith in Glendale, the greatest city in the greatest state, in the greatest country in the world.

If there is such a thing as optimism raised to the nth degree, Mr. Pendroy has it. He predicts that in fifteen years Glendale will be as large a city as Oakland today with accompanying stores, hotels and industries. His optimism carries conviction. It is the deep-seated conviction of a man who has his fingers upon the pulse-beat of the financial heart of Southern California.

"The history, and record of progress of the firm which bears my name is indeed gratifying to me," said Mr. Pendroy. "Established eighteen months ago, there has never been a month since that when the sales did not show an increase over the preceding month. It proves that the people not alone of Glendale, but of the San Fernando valley, appreciate up-to-date merchandising methods with fair prices."

"It is my ambition to make Glendale the center of commercial life for the entire San Fernando valley. In this vicinity we have 100,000 people. Why should they go to Los Angeles if they can receive the same service and quality of merchandise here? There is no reason."

When asked to express his opinion on the business outlook for 1924, Mr. Pendroy said: "I predict that the great wave of prosperity which we have enjoyed will be ours in a greater measure in the coming year. In Glendale, as in other sections of the country, competition will be keen, and the man not alive to the opportunities will be left behind. You may say that Pendroy's expect a wonderful year."

In the comparatively short space of time that Pendroy's has been open, the large, three-story building erected for him by a syndicate of local men has already proved too small for the demands of the institution. In 1923 Mr. Pendroy built a mezzanine floor, to house one merchandise, the advertising and the window trimming departments.

In the middle of December a lease was signed with the parties owning the Citizens' building, directly north of the Pendroy store, for a term of years, the second floor of which is being rapidly altered and re-arranged to take care of several departments which will be moved from the main store. The wall between the two buildings is being removed, making it one large second floor. Mr. Pendroy expects that it will be for seven years in these capacities. He and his family came to Glendale in 1913, and Mr. Kimlin entered the real estate business. In December, 1915, he became associated with the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital as business manager.

Through his efforts the institution has become nationally known, and the new sanitarium building on the hilltop acreage between Wilson avenue and Syracuse canyon road, west of Verdugo road, was begun, and is now almost completed.

In addition to his business interests, Mr. Kimlin is actively engaged in civic matters coming under the City Council. He is also a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

Kiwanis Club Prominent Here, Takes Active Part In Progress of Glendale

The Kiwanis Club of Glendale was brought together as a temporary organization in April, 1922, and completed in May as a permanent organization, receiving their charter from Kiwanis International in July, 1922. The Kiwanis Club of Glendale is one of forty-two clubs now in the State of California, and one of 1418 clubs in the United States and Canada, with a total membership of over 85,000.

The Kiwanis club has for its members some of the most prominent men in commercial, professional and political life, including such men as President Calvin Coolidge and the late President Harding; the Prince of Wales is also a member of the Toronto Kiwanis club.

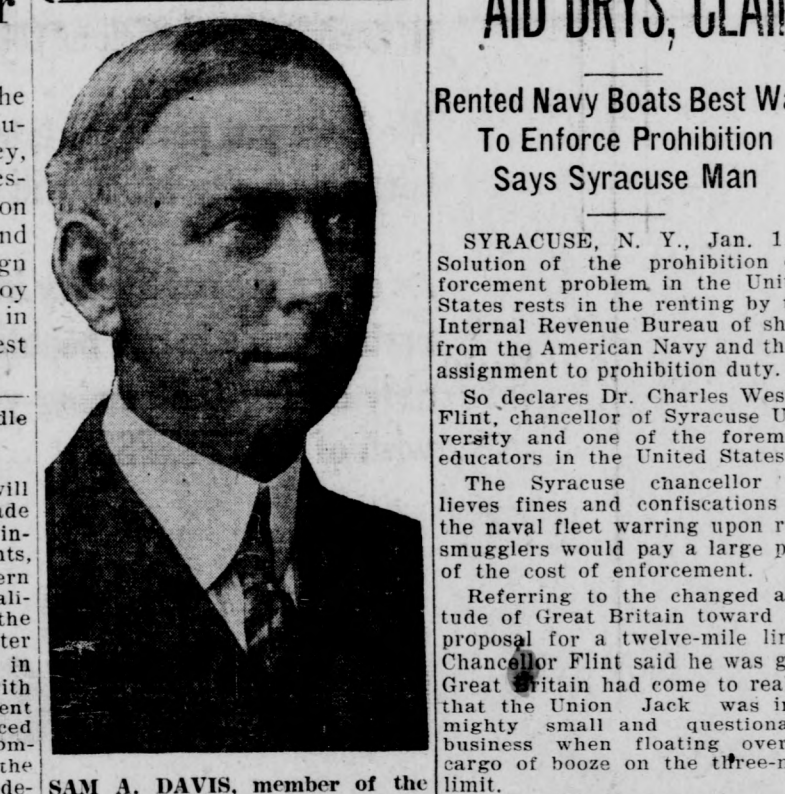

The Glendale Kiwanis club lists among its members ninety-two of the most prominent business and professional men of Glendale and is recognized as an active service club, that does things. Their motto is "We Build," and when they get behind anything of a civic nature it is sure to go over successfully. Nothing is undertaken by this club until it is thoroughly investigated and found to have merit, but when once it receives the stamp of approval of the proper committee it is sure to have the full support of the club.

The national program of the Kiwanis International is the care of the underprivileged child. The club has been handicapped in its activities along this line because of the scarcity of material to work on. It is a well known fact that Glendale has very few poor people and very few underprivileged children, but, nevertheless, the club has done a good deal of work along this line that has never come to the attention of the public and little is known of it outside of the committee actively in charge of this work.

At Christmas, a year ago, the Kiwanis club put on the big Community Christmas tree at the High school, which was voted a big success, and in 1923 the big Hal-lowe'en entertainment was undertaken in which over 3000 children participated in the parade which ended at the high school athletic field, where a big bonfire was provided and the children were given sandwiches, apples and comalt, furnished by S. W. Brown company. This was followed by one of the finest fireworks displays ever shown in the city of Glendale.

The present officers of the club are: A. L. Baird, president. Dr. T. C. Young, first vice-president.

SAM DAVIS LEADS IN BOND PROJECT

SAM A. DAVIS, member of the Glendale City Council, and leader in sewer bonds campaign.

There is no more ardent supporter in the city of a sewer bond issue than City Councilman Sam A. Davis, and when they are voted on favorably January 8, it will be greatly due to the untiring efforts of this member of the City Council.

For the past month, he has talked nothing but sewer bonds, and has addressed practically every organization in the city on the subject. Together with Mayor Spencer Robinson, he has virtually led the campaign in favor of the issue.

Councilman Davis is forty-seven years of age, and has resided in Glendale for ten years. He was one of the three men elected to serve four years, when Glendale adopted the new charter in 1921. He has been intrusted with the supervision of the public works department of the city, having under his charge street construction and flood control.

His first business venture in Glendale was the feed and fuel, which he sold out subsequently to enter the real estate business.

Raises 47 Kinds of Produce on City Lot

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 1.—Paul H. Stuede, who for many years has farmed a lot in this city and raised forty-seven kinds of produce in sufficient quantity to maintain several families, is in receipt of a letter from Congressman C. F. Curran congratulating him on the reputation he has made in eastern agricultural communities.

Following publication of his achievements, Stuede is designated the "city lot Burbank," Curran said.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 1.—When Mrs. W. R. Wilkinson of this city was washing some blankets in the basement of her home, and noticed the drain pipe seemed to be stopped up, she ran her fingers in it to clear it. An instant later she screamed and flung from her an ugly black and yellow reptile an amphibian, six inches long and nearly an inch in diameter.

WILSON-BELL CO. MAKING STRIDES

Quality Hardware Merchants' Are Thoroughly 'Sold' on Glendale

Having closed a very busy year, which has been marked by a highly satisfactory business, the Wilson-Bell Hardware company, 227 North Brand boulevard, is even more optimistic in its outlook for 1924. This firm, which was established two years ago by J. M. Wilson and S. F. Bell, has recently completed the addition of 1500 feet of floor space to their display rooms, thus affording facilities for giving better service than it was possible to do before the improvement was made.

According to Mr. Bell, this store will continue the practice of handling only merchandise of highest quality. By specializing in quality merchandise, Mr. Bell points out, the firm is assured of having satisfied customers.

A line that bespeaks the quality of the Wilson-Bell merchandise is the Corbin builders' hardware, which has been used in equipping hundreds of homes throughout the past two years.

"We are thoroughly 'sold' on Glendale," Mr. Bell said, "and are confident of a successful future for the city."

ASA HALL ONE OF CITY COUNCILMEN

ASA HALL, member of the Glendale City Council, formerly head bookkeeper in Los Angeles city auditor's office.

ASA HALL, elected to the Glendale City Council, April 10, 1923, is an accountant by profession, and served for many years in the city auditor's office in Los Angeles as head bookkeeper.

He has been a resident of California for thirty-four years, coming to Los Angeles in 1889. Three years later he organized the first orange growers' association at Azusa.

Officially he is in charge of the public service department, governing the production and distribution of light and water.

Co-operation is proving a strong factor in the economic life of the people of India, according to all reports regarding the movement.

"We must get enforcement out of politics, whether city, state or national. While I am an admirer of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, I have felt it was unfortunate the enforcement of the law was given to his department."

"Governor Smith and others have objected to one-half of one per cent as the point at which liquor would be decided to be intoxicating, yet that was used as the basis for defining intoxicating liquor long before the prohibition law was adopted."

1924--and Glendale

Serving in official capacity has been our share in the prosperity the city of Glendale has experienced during the year just closed.

Undoubtedly there is no one who has a keener knowledge of what has taken place than we who have taken intimate parts in solving the many problems pertaining to civic projects.

By virtue of our election by the citizens of Glendale we become their servants, and to them we are answerable when we pass a milestone on the journey of time—and pause to take reckoning of past events.

In the active participation in administrative affairs a division of minds is inevitable, but the members of the Glendale City Council have always striven to eliminate personalities with a view to arriving at decisions for the betterment of the city—and the happiness of all its residents.

We have put personal interests and gain second, and have sought by our services to make Glendale a city which will compare favorably with any city of its size in the United States.

As executives of the city in whom you have placed utmost trust and confidence, we greet you in mutual pride in our beautiful city. Our New Year hope is that we may serve you most creditably during the coming year, and our wish for every Glendalian for the New Year is the big wish of HAPPINESS.

REALTY BOARD BIG FACTOR IN GLENDALE

BIG OPPORTUNITY TO MAKE MONEY BY INVESTMENT IN STRONG MUNICIPALITY

Glendale, Inc., Is Best Buy in Southern California! Many Shrewd Capitalists from Los Angeles, Hollywood and Other Communities Realize It and Are Flocking Here to Invest Big Sums

By H. THOMPSON RICH
Of The Evening News Staff.

With 1924 comes the greatest opportunity for profitable real estate investment that has ever been offered the public of Southern California—Glendale, Inc. There is a corporation whose gilt edge securities are quoted on every exchange, and are being eagerly absorbed by big investors everywhere. When men of millions are buying Glendale property, their shrewd business judgment showing them that here is to be the next Hollywood, the next Long Beach, can the little investors do better than to follow their example?

With each succeeding year come new resolutions, intentions to do better, promises to the wife and family that the great move toward property, a home, financial independence will be taken. But new resolutions become old and shoddy and "the road to hell is paved with good intentions." The time to act is now, when the year is young and the rising market is still sluggish after the holidays.

Once let 1924 hit her proper stride, and values will start sharply up again. Thousands of tourists who do not wish to come west until after the Christmas and New Year season will presently come pouring in. Year after year this has happened, and invariably the prices rise, as their buying stimulates the market. NOW IS THE TIME TO GET IN AHEAD OF THAT CERTAIN ANNUAL RISE THAT TAKES PLACE THE LATTER PART OF JANUARY.

And, speculator, consider this! When the sewer bonds are voted on January 8, as everyone agrees they will be, every piece of property within the corporate limits of Glendale will rise overnight from 15 to 30 per cent of its former value, this in addition to the normal rise mentioned above, which the tourists cause. Big investors from Hollywood, Los Angeles, Pasadena and other surrounding points are now busily buying up Glendale property in anticipation of the almost certain carrying of the bond election.

Aside from speculation, however, many advantages accrue to the stockholders of the corporation of their city, making them:

First—Permanent members of the community.
Second—Substantial citizens.
Third—Financially strong.
Fourth—Socially important.

Fifth—Rent free.
By all means the most important of the above advantages accruing to property owners is freedom from the tyranny of the landlord. It has been proved by the research department of the Security Trust and Savings bank that 43.3 per cent of wage earners' total income goes into rent, the tabulation being given in detail below:

Items	Percentage
Rent	43.3
Miscellaneous	30.0
Groceries	16.0
Meat	5.4
Vegetables	5.3
Total	100.0

A sermon entitled "Why More American Families Don't Get Ahead" could very appropriately be delivered on this subject. Before a man can conquer the world he must put his own house in order—and a house rented will never be put in order. Prosperity begins at home, the birthplace of American institutions.

Sacred Word:
The word "home" should be one of the most sacred in the language. It is at once a monument to the present, a safeguard of the future, a roof over your head and the financial clothes on your back. Only imbeciles ridicule that familiar saying, "Home, sweet home"—for "be it ever so humble, there's no place like home," and oh, the joy of owning one!

And yet, were a home not profitable, it would be more of a burden than an investment. The question naturally arises, what dividends does Glendale, Inc., pay? Consider this and decide for yourself. Figures from the office of State Controller Riley show that every property owner in California earned an average of 11 per cent on his land last year, exclusive of rentals, leases or developments thereon.

In other words, in one year the assessed valuation of California real estate jumped approximately 11 per cent, standing today at nearly six billion dollars, as compared with only a little over five billion the preceding year.

State Valuation
"And the ACTUAL valuation of California real estate is now approximately eleven billion dollars," says Controller Riley, "as the assessed valuation is only 42 per cent of the real value."

Compare Glendale with the average California city, then add to that 11 per cent profit given above what you think would bring it to the proper figure—and that will be what (Continued on page 3)

Down To Earth!

A city is judged by its citizens, and its citizens are judged by their importance to the community. What do you contribute to Glendale? What does Glendale contribute to you? Water can rise no higher than its source. You cannot prosper in a community unless you help the community to prosper. When you buy Glendale real estate you benefit not only yourself but your city—and your city turns right around and rewards you again, in rising values. It is as near perpetual motion as you will ever get in this world—a constant circle of prosperity, from individual, to community, back to individual. If you are not buying Glendale property you are not sharing in this golden circle.

Financial independence is the dream of everyone. There may be other dreams, too, but that dream we all have. For many it is never more than an idle dream, as financial independence does not come unearned. Glendale stands waiting to make you independent. Are you ready to meet fortune half way? Then buy a home, or buy a lot and build one!

What of the children? Surely they have a right to grow up in a home, and not a mere house where a landlord comes around every month. The home is the backbone of the American nation. In it lies our strength. More homes are owned in the United States than in any other country in the world. And yet less than 50 per cent of families own their own homes. Which 50 per cent are they? Think it over!

Substantial citizenship is something money cannot buy. It comes of integrity proved by deeds that become known in the community, and it has its root in the home. Substantial citizens are seldom renters. There is something about moving from place to place that destroys confidence. A rolling stone gathers no moss. But it does gather a destructive momentum. Construction starts with building a roof of your own over your head.

ORGANIZATION PLAYS PROMINENT PART IN BRINGING CITY INTO FRONT RANKS

Formed in 1920 with Less Than Dozen Members, Now It Has More Than 100, Ranking Third in State Association; Working Hard to Put Over $1,600,000 Bond Issue for Sewer System

By RALPH A. LYND
Of The Evening News Staff.

One of the organizations that has been a constructive force in the development of Glendale ever since its inception in 1920 is the Glendale Realty Board, which has grown from small beginnings until now it is rated as one of the strongest and most progressive organizations in the entire state. The Glendale Realty Board was organized in 1920 with a membership of less than a dozen men. Charles B. Guthrie was elected president, and under his leadership the board began to grow steadily.

Its members are always holding before their eyes the determination to raise, by every possible means, the standards of the real estate business until it should become recognized as one of the professions entitled to the respect of everyone by reason of its high ideals and its strict code of ethics.

Cameron D. Tom, succeeded Mr. Guthrie as president, holding office for two terms. One year ago, when a permanent office secretary, in the person of Miss Winifred Traver, was employed, the membership numbered forty-two, and this number has increased until today there are 118 members on the rolls and the Glendale Realty board ranks third in the California Real Estate association in point of numbers, with three directors on the board of the state association. The board is also associated with the only board in California that has subscribed 100 per cent to the national real estate journal. The three state directors are Charles B. Guthrie, E. P. Hayward and J. I. Wernette.

Multiple Listing
In addition to being strongly represented in the state organization, Glendale was honored at the 1923 state convention by having Charles B. Guthrie elected as vice-president of the seventh regional district of California, and his first official act was to call a multiple listing conference that has stirred the realtors of the entire country to a renewed interest in the working of this system of handling real estate deals.

In keeping with the past history of the Glendale Realty board in aiding in the development of the city and the territory surrounding Glendale, its present course in perfecting its own organization to work for the success of the proposed issue of $1,600,000 in bonds for the construction of a sanitary sewer system in Glendale, has appointed captains for every precinct in the city to carry on a campaign to enlist the support of the voters of Glendale at the election that is to be held on January 8, 1924. These precinct captains have enlisted the assistance of workers throughout the city, and cards are filled in with the names of those on whom the workers call, thus affording an accurate estimate of the attitude of the people toward the installation of the sewer system.

Presents Program
The present head of the Glendale Realty board is Peter Hanson who has mapped out a program of work for the coming year that promises to bring results of a widespread nature in the growth of the city to which its members are devoting their energies in such unstinted measure. Mr. Hanson was also honored at the recent state convention by being placed second in the Home Town oratorical contest in competition with the best speakers in the state, and the address that he delivered on that occasion has been widely circulated, not only in California, but also wherever the official organizations of the state and national associations circulate.

A series of educational lectures in the business of real estate will form a part of the programs outlined for the board during the spring months, and other educational features will also be arranged that will aid the members of the organization to a better understanding of the many intricacies of the profession in which they are engaged, and enable them not only to serve their clients better, but, also, to become an even greater force in the upbuilding of the city itself.

The present officers of the Glendale Realty Board are Peter Hanson, president; W. L. Twining, vice-president; James W. Pearson, secretary; W. L. Truitt, treasurer; Miss Winifred Traver, executive secretary. The affairs of the board are guided by the governing committee, which consists of Chas. B. Guthrie, C. D. Thom, E. P. Hayward, Roy D. King, James W. Pearson, A. M. Yale, W. A. Horn, Peter Hanson, W. L. Truitt, W. L. Twining and L. H. Wilson.

The following committees were appointed by the board to look after the work of the board during the present term:

GOVERNING COMMITTEE—Peter Hanson, James W. Pearson, W. L. Truitt, W. L. Twining, E. P. Hayward, C. B. Guthrie, C. D. Thom, Roy D. King, W. A. Horn, L. H. Wilson, C. W. Ingledue.
FINANCE COMMITTEE—Roy D. King, chairman; F. W. Parr, W. H. Mills.

Erects Fine Buildings, Brings New Capital to City and Displays Optimistic Viewpoint

Picture shows the L. H. Wilson building on South San Fernando road. It is one of the fine business blocks in the southern section of Glendale. L. H. Wilson two years ago "started things" in Southern Glendale, and he, with other boosters, has seen to it that they have not stopped. Mr. Wilson predicts that $1000 a foot will be a conservative price on San Fernando road.

The name L. H. Wilson has become synonymous with the remarkable development along the San Fernando road. When you say San Fernando road you think of Wilson, and when you say Wilson you think of the San Fernando road.

Two years ago L. H. Wilson, of 1034 South San Fernando road, started things moving there—and they have been moving ever since. Today, with values trebled and quadrupled and scores of shrewd investors made rich through dealing with this progressive realtor whose magic wand is an unfailing optimism based on facts, the San Fernando road, as it passes through Glendale, may be said to have come into its own.

Great Future
Tomorrow?—the San Fernando road will have become San Fernando boulevard, linking Los Angeles and the San Fernando valley with a 100-foot highway as great as any in America, lined solidly for twenty miles with brick and concrete construction, according to Mr. Wilson, with its greatest prosperity in the Glendale section, where present prices will seem like that of backwoods acreage and $1000 per front foot will be a conservative estimate of the average value.

And that tomorrow, Mr. Wilson believes, is a matter of months, not years. For slowly as the San Fernando road started developing, just so much more rapid is its progress now that it has found its stride. It is as though a condition long present had only recently been realized, namely, that along this highway pour daily over 30,000 automobiles, a golden stream of prosperity going right by the doors of residents there.

Visions Development
And "residents" is just the right word. Two years ago, with a few exceptions, San Fernando road was a residence district. The golden stream of traffic went by unheeded. No one thought to check it, no one but a garage man here and there, or a service station, or a quick lunch place.

Then L. H. Wilson came, visioning a San Fernando road lined solid with brick construction on both sides, straight through Glendale. The rest of this story is now being told along San Fernando road right now, in brick and mortar.

Footage prices have risen from $20 a front foot to $100 and $300 and $500 a front foot. Innumerable stores and offices have sprung up. Prosperity has come. Ornamental lights have been put in. The road is to be widened into an eighty-six-foot boulevard and paved from curb to curb with asphaltic concrete.

With these developments in the past two years, Mr. Wilson reports, have come princely profits to those who have bought along San Fernando road. Instances are almost without number of those who have made all the way from $1000 to $10,000 and $20,000 on a single deal. And this is happening all the time.

"I am fully satisfied," says Mr. Wilson, "that nowhere else in Southern California do such opportunities exist today."

Stream of Traffic
Located strategically with regard to San Fernando valley and Los Angeles, traveled daily by 25,000 to 35,000 cars, an important factor in the Pasadena-Hollywood travel, flanked by the Southern Pacific tracks on one side and the Pacific Electric tracks just two blocks east, the San Fernando road as it traverses Glendale may be said to show a set of books attractive indeed to the investor.

The "flatiron" corner of Brand boulevard and San Fernando road, on which is located the Gateway market and a number of stores and offices, is valued today at $100,000. In 1921 it was subdivided and sold for $12,000.

The opposite corner of Brand boulevard and San Fernando road, comprising seventy-one feet on the former and 214 feet on the latter, was obtained three years ago at a mere fraction of its present valuation of $75,000.

Values Increase

The northwest corner of Garfield and San Fernando, 100 feet, bought in December of 1922 for $6000 and sold in February of 1923 for $10,950, is now valued at over $20,000. The northwest corner of Park and San Fernando, 150 feet, bought in 1920 for $4000, or $24 a front foot, is now held at close to $200 a front foot.

Construction of close to $1,000,000 has taken place along San Fernando road during the past year, it is stated on good authority, with hundreds of thousands of dollars more to follow in the months ahead, as large industries get under way with proposed plants, among them the Los Angeles Creamery company and a large San Francisco stove manufacturing concern, in addition to a score of more smaller plants, adding in the aggregate hundreds of men to the Glendale weekly payroll.

In the opinion not only of Mr. Wilson but of all who have analyzed the situation, frontage along San Fernando road will in the course of a few years bring a minimum of $1000 a front foot.

Brownsville to Care For 1000 Turf Fans

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Jan. 1.—A local corporation will erect a $50,000 hotel for the accommodation of 1,000 persons expected here during the racing season.

The new track provides a 10,000 capacity grand stand, now under construction, 580 by 80 feet, and three stable units, each 500 feet long, containing 100 stables.

The track itself is pronounced by turf experts "second to none." The mile speedway is 80 feet across, properly banked and constructed generally like the famous Latonia track.

New Bridge to Link Mexico to Guatemala

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 1.—The Mexican government announces that the federal authorities of the Republic of Guatemala have agreed to the construction of a mammoth international bridge over the Sushiate river, the southern boundary of Mexico. The structure will be erected jointly by both governments and will cost in the neighborhood of $7,000,000. It will be built of reinforced concrete.

GLENDALE PLACE OF OPPORTUNITY

Local Realtor Says Growth
Of City Proof of Era
Of Prosperity

"There should be a reason for every decision made by those who are seeking a home for their families," says L. A. Hart of the Hart Realty company, 205 West Broadway, general licensed real estate brokers.

Mr. Hart states that his reason for locating in Glendale in 1914 was in particular a method of escaping the congested district of the big cities, especially Los Angeles.

"Glendale offered then, and still offers," said Mr. Hart, "the best location for a home in which to rear a family. Notwithstanding these advantages, Glendale, of course, is located in such a way that the future development of Los Angeles points directly to our city. And our growth in the past few years has been only a starter by which we may expect to follow."

"In November 1920, in an issue of The Glendale Evening News I made the statement that Glendale was destined to enjoy one of the largest growths of any city in the country, which statement the past three years has been verified beyond question."

"We find satisfaction in selling Glendale real estate; first, because our buyers are satisfied; and, second, because they are deriving a profit from their investments whenever they decide to sell."

"Regarding our future development pertaining to hotels and large business blocks, we are on the verge of such active development at present that no one with a vision can question the fact that within the next twelve months we will see Glendale boasting of hotels second to none in the state. Glendale has grown in spite of itself so far and with little publicity compared with other cities, although our Chamber of Commerce deserves credit to a large degree for being the big factor in the development of our city."

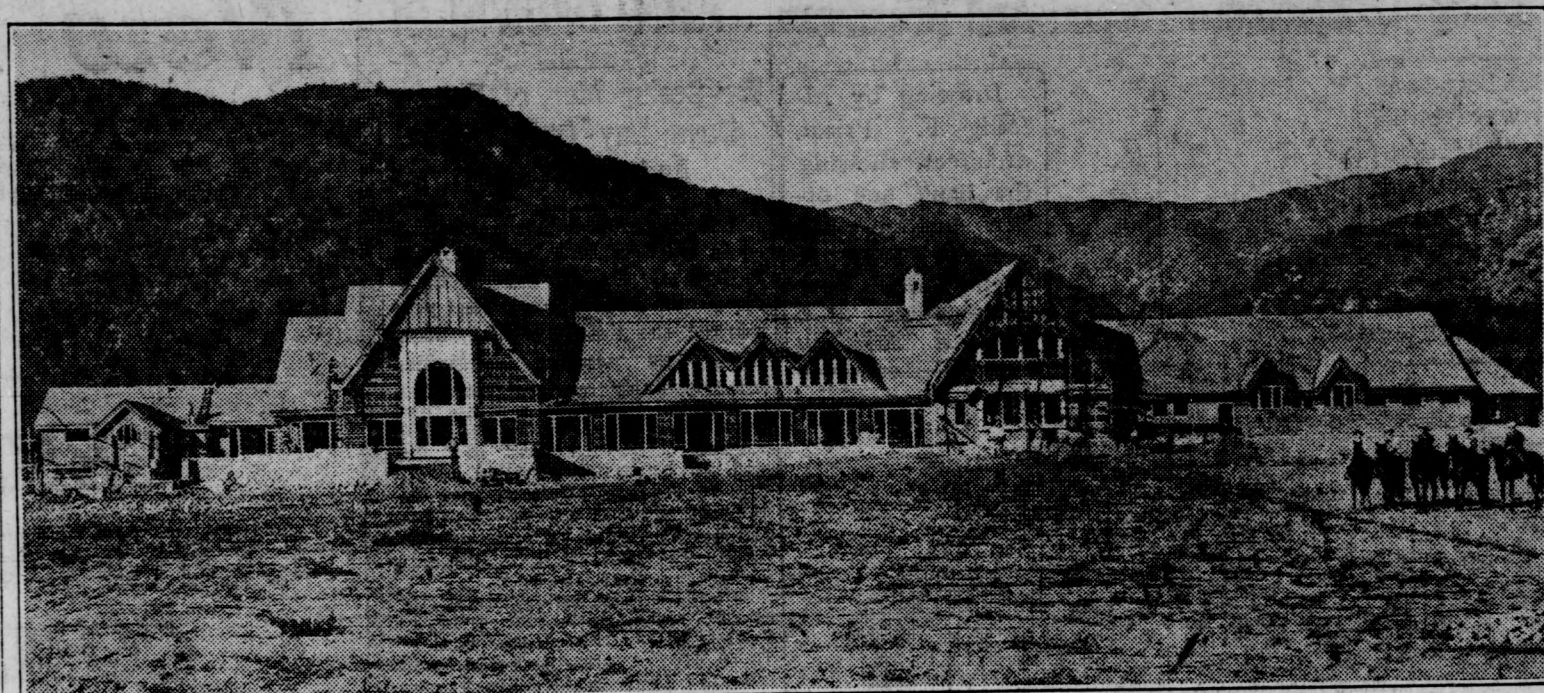

"To those who are on the outside, as it were, looking in, we, as citizens of Glendale invite you to make close comparison of our opportunities offered, with other cities in California. We feel that your decision will result in Glendale claiming you as a citizen."

OAKMONT COUNTRY CLUB BUILDING RAPIDLY BEING COMPLETED

Attractive Structure and Sportiest Golf Course for Glendale—Sparr Heights District

Picture of the beautiful $100,000 English type clubhouse of the Oakmont Country Club, located at Sparr Heights, in "Dream Valley," the Verdugo road taking the motorist to the heart of Glendale in five minutes.

When the Oakmont Country club at Sparr Heights opens shortly, Glendale and the surrounding territory will be provided one of the finest clubhouses and one of the sportiest golf courses in Southern California.

Erected at a cost exceeding $100,000, the clubhouse represents the very finest type of Old English design and is 304 feet long, with an average depth of 50 feet, allowing ample space for the accommodation of its 750 members. The main dining-room will seat 200, the men's grill will seat another 100 and there are 350 men's lockers, with twelve showers and adequate dressing rooms.

In addition to a spacious swimming pool, a fine group of tennis courts, auto parking spaces, children's playground and other up-to-date facilities, the 18-hole golf course, taking the player into both open and wooded country, is decidedly picturesque, with the first and tenth tees and the ninth and eighteenth greens located immediately in front of the clubhouse.

205 members are enrolled, and the remaining four will be road games.

The new teams are: Haverford, Stevens, Amherst and College of the City of New York. The annual games will be played as usual with Williams, Rochester, St. Lawrence and Union.

The season will get under way September 27, with the first three games to be staged on Steuben Field. Williams, champions of the "Little Three" this year, will be the opening attraction.

Great Opportunity to Make Money In City

Glendale, Inc., declared in dividends last year, on unimproved land alone.

Any estimate of dividends earned on improved property would be beyond the scope of this article, but it is obvious that it would be large. The fact that it is extremely difficult to rent houses or apartments in Glendale shows the strength of the demand, while in business property stores and offices are snapped up before the buildings are completed, so great is the need for expansion.

Money in Bank
As for being able to afford to buy stock in Glendale, Inc., consider the estimate that, on an average, every family in Glendale has $1000 in one of the eight banks.

This statement is based on figures given out recently by C. E. Pyle, head of the commercial development department, Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings bank, North Brand boulevard.

Mr. Pyle's statement showed that on September 14, 1923, deposits in local banks totalled $10,927,918.72. Assuming four persons to the family, Glendale's population of 45,000 at that time produces the above figure.

These assets of close to eleven millions of dollars include only the actual deposits in the banks and are entirely apart from their other assets, which are large.

With Glendale's banks in this healthy and prosperous condition, it is easy to understand why this city takes monthly rank among the first five Southern California cities in building.

Our citizens are lending one another, through the banks, the capital, without which we could not grow. The conclusion is obvious: More deposits will mean more building.

Put your money in the bank, then put it in real estate—then put it back in the bank again, with the profit you make.

Subdivision Specialists Are Important Factor in Development of Glendale

E. D. Hamlin and D. W. Hepburn, of the firm of Hamlin & Hepburn, subdividers, 208 West Broadway, came to Glendale early in 1921, after previous association in the real estate business at Santa Paula and partnership in Van Nuys.

Taking offices at the above address shortly after their arrival here, they at once entered the subdivision field, putting on as an investment tract Fairview, in the northwest section. The first sixty acres of this tract they secured from Harry Chandler of the Los Angeles Times, a large landowner.

Other units were acquired elsewhere and placed on the market until, in the end, they had subdivided 140 acres, in ten-acre units, at a total original sales value of $300,000. The property today, outside of improvements, is worth $750,000, states Mr. Hamlin, and there are over 350 homes on the tract, with an estimated population of 1500 people.

Community Building
Such subdividing as this is community building, and Messrs. Hamlin and Hepburn have established themselves as eminent factors in the growth of Glendale. When it is considered that no lot in Fairview sold for more than $50 down, with exceedingly easy monthly payments, it is seen that these subdividers offered the public really excellent opportunities to become home owners. Inasmuch as every lot in the tract has now more than doubled in value, one is reminded of the lines from Omar Khayyam:

"I sometimes wonder what the vintners buy,
One-half so precious as the stuff they sell."

The next tract offered by Hamlin & Hepburn was Sunset Grove, located in the northwest section, above Kenneth road. This was a small tract of higher priced property and sold out rapidly, they report.

Castle Heights, a tract offering the very highest type of property in Glendale or elsewhere in Southern California, was then, in the middle of 1923, placed on the market. Here restrictions of from $5000 to $7500 were placed, and the prices, while decidedly below the market for such property, were necessarily higher than in any previous tract offered by the firm.

Almost Sold Out
Today this fine tract, right across the street from Sunset Grove, is practically sold out, they report, although one or two choice sites are still available. Strange to say, this tract produced the largest number of cash sales in the history of the firm, states Mr. Hamlin.

Then, after looking around Glendale in vain for a large parcel of property that could be subdivided and offered the public at the low prices and easy terms that characterized Fairview, Messrs.

Hamlin and Hepburn were obliged to go to Burbank for what they wanted.

There they opened up last fall a tract that has since become famous—Edgemont Park. Since September 1, 1923, 540 lots have been sold and there remain but sixty in the tract, Mr. Hamlin states. Perhaps the amazing terms of $125 down and $40 per month for a fine lot and all the lumber necessary to build a home at once was what sold out this immense tract almost overnight. Perhaps it was the prices of $550 up. Perhaps it was the splendid location on Dark Canyon boulevard, midway between Burbank and Hollywood. At any rate, the tract has established a new record for the firm, exceeding even that of Fairview, and Mr. Hamlin predicts that in three years the same doubling up of values that characterized Fairview will have taken place.

Launch New Tract

Topanga Gardens, on the Ventura boulevard, is the name of a new tract just opened by Hamlin & Hepburn, who state that though they both live in Glendale and own their own homes and other property here the city has grown to the point where they are unable to find any tract of land large enough to subdivide. They predict that in three years practically every piece of available property within the city limits will have been absorbed.

E. D. Hamlin was born in New York state and holds a degree from New York University. Identified with large eastern land development projects for many years, he finally came to Southern California, conscious that the general movement was toward the southwest.

D. W. Hepburn was born in Scotland and for many years was in the employ of the Canadian Pacific railroad in Winnipeg. He came to Southern California about the same time as Mr. Hamlin and the two first entered partnership together in Van Nuys, about four years ago.

In the years that have followed, this partnership has come to stand for the best elements in the real estate business, and many hundreds of those who have profited by dealing with this firm testify to their business integrity and unflinching judgment.

A magistrate says the wife has the right to rule the home, and it is only fair to add that there are remarkably few instances in which wives fail to exercise it.

HALF MILLION DOLLAR BANK BUILDING FOR CITY

Magnificent Structure Being Completed At Brand And Broadway

The old Pacific Electric depot at Brand and Broadway was removed to make way for this imposing structure, a six story building to house the Security Trust & Savings Bank and a large number of offices. Two elevators will serve the upper floors. There will be a safe deposit department in the basement. The building will be substantial, ornamental and a real addition to Glendale's "skyline."

Drawing by Alfred F. Priest, architect, showing the bank and office building for Security Trust & Savings Bank now being erected at a cost of $500,000.

The old Pacific Electric depot that stood for many years at the northeast corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway will always have a place in the memory of old residents of Glendale, but the half-million-dollar bank and office building that has risen above the ruins of the old station, to house the Glendale branch of the Security Trust & Savings bank of Los Angeles, in the entire first floor, is the pride of every resident of the city.

This new structure has risen during the past few months, and will soon be completed and ready for occupancy. The bank will occupy the entire first floor and mezzanine balcony. Arrangements are being made for nine double cages for tellers. There will be a meeting room for directors and quarters for bank officials. The elevator entrance will be on Brand boulevard. Two elevators will serve the five upper floors, which will be divided into 114 offices. A completely appointed safe deposit department with coupon booths, a consultation room and other facilities for the convenience of the patrons will occupy the basement. These will contain the bank vaults, also a public rest room.

Your first lie may not be detected, but the second one will contradict it.

If you do not check up your mistakes they will lose their effect.

Hunters Slay Fawns, Does and Each Other

ASHLAND, Mich., Jan. 1.—Disregard for law never before equaled in this state featured the deer season of 1923, which closed recently, conscientious hunters charge.

Half a dozen hunters were killed besides other casualties, it was pointed out, and the game wardens in the northern part of the state were kept busy hauling out fawns and does shot by these careless nimrods. Hundreds of does and fawns were left in the woods to rot.

CITY IS FOUNDED

AWAY BACK IN '87

Far Seeing Men of Pioneer Days Lay Out Streets And Subdivisions

The city of Glendale was founded in 1887 by B. F. Patterson, E. T. Byram, L. C. Miller, C. E. Thom and H. J. Crow. That year marked the height of the boom days. The acreage subdivided comprised the territory from Central avenue to Adams street and from Lexington drive to Elk avenue. Streets were laid out and all advertising called attention to the contemplated Los Angeles interurban car line and the proposed building of a tourist hotel on the site of the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital.

Glendale incorporated as a city of the sixth class just prior to February 16, 1906, by a vote of 75 to 41. A pre-election canvass revealed 1300 inhabitants in the Glendale school district. This extended at that time from Doran street south to the Tropic school district and from Central avenue east to the present city limits.

On February 21, 1906, the duly elected board of trustees, Asa Fanset, J. C. Jennings, George U. Moyses, Wilmot Parcher and T. W. Watson and City Treasurer J. C. Sherer, met at the residence of City Clerk G. B. Woodberry, and appointed Frederick Baker, city attorney, and Edgard Leavitt, recorder.

Columbus Librarian Raps Modern Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 1.—That the literary market today is characterized by predominance of immoral, unmoral and useless fiction is the claim made by Miss Blanche C. Roberts, vice-librarian of the Carnegie public library here, in an address on "Who Reads What?"

"Where can we lay the blame and what shall we do about it?" inquired Miss Roberts. "The day may come when it will be necessary to have a board of censors for all publications. I hope not, but there is danger."

"When we pick up a catalogue announcing 2500 new books for a season we feel the American people are readers. Twenty years ago 75 per cent of the reading public consisted of fiction readers, but today statistics show approximately 70 per cent are non-fiction readers," declared Miss Roberts.

Chalmer D. Day Promoted To General Managership Of Charles B. Guthrie Co.

Charles B. Guthrie of the Charles B. Guthrie company, realtors, 110 West Broadway, announces the promotion of Chalmer D. Day to general manager of his organization, effective January 1.

"In his position as commander of the local American legion post, as well as by the capable work he has done for me in the past year," says Mr. Guthrie, "I consider that Mr. Day has had a decided influence in the up-building of Glendale. While he will specialize on business property, the affairs of every department of the company will be in his charge, assisted by James Sprotter and Allan Pollock. O. E. Von Oven, who ably assisted in building up our business the past year, is no longer with us.

"As I look back on 1923," continued Mr. Guthrie, "I see that every bright anticipation we had for a big year, when last January dawned, has been exceeded by the developments of the twelve months now over. This applies both to Glendale as a whole and to my own business.

Good Year's Business

"I will not review the progress of Glendale for its record of 1923 is already well known, but for the Charles B. Guthrie company I will say that we have had a decidedly prosperous year. Of the separate, big deals that characterized the year, several stand out.

"The biggest of these, as far as Glendale is concerned, was the sale of 92 lots in our Kenneth Grand tract in thirty-six hours, at a total figure of $125,000. In this we were assisted by the firm of Hayward & McCartney, 142 South Brand boulevard.

"A still bigger deal, involving $200,000, made through this office, was the transfer of 355 acres in San Bernardino county for Pasadena property and interests in several large corporations.

"Lease for 99 years of the northwest corner of Broadway and Central avenue, involving a total rental of $400,000, and subsequent purchase of the lot next on the north, was another deal of magnitude, plans for the development of which are pending.

Mexican Property

A recent trip to the west coast of Mexico resulted in participating in a deal involving 35,000 acres of the choicest land in that country. This project is being held in abeyance at the present time, but holds great potentialities.

"As for our eight subdivisions marketed during 1923, seven of them are entirely sold out, while the eighth, an industrial tract on San Fernando road at Grand View avenue, is sold with the exception of a very few lots.

"Add to this innumerable sales, rentals and other realty transactions, and our books show that we have enjoyed a prosperity the past year commensurate with that of Glendale, and we enter 1924 with every confidence that it will develop a still better record."

CHALMER D. DAY, who, on January 1, becomes general manager of the Charles B. Guthrie company, realty organization.

At Height of Voice Choir Utterly Silent

DUBUQUE, Iowa, Jan. 1.—A choir of thirty voices singing their loudest, without a sound emanating from their lips, was a feature of the church service at St. Paul's Lutheran church here.

The singers were deaf mutes, harmonizing in the sign language, using one hand to express their voiceless music.

Rev. A. J. Beyer, of St. Paul, Minn., established the services for deaf mutes here and plans to establish them in a number of other Iowa cities, including Des Moines, Cedar Rapids, Waterloo and Davenport.

Some years ago the fad of the day was the "grape cure," what we need now is a corn cure.

Population and Realty Values to Double In Three Years, Says E. G. Warren

The population and realty values of Glendale will both double in the next three years, if sewers are installed, declares E. G. Warren of 300 1/2 South Brand boulevard, a leading investment broker of the city, who has been in business here for the past three years and is active in all branches of real estate.

"Operating from the Statue of Liberty to the Golden Gate, we nevertheless now and forever boost for Glendale," declares Mr. Warren, "and have just opened up a new subdivision in the adjoining city of Burbank, known as Boulevard Place and comprising twenty-five acres just west of the china factory, with 1600 feet on San Fernando boulevard, at $1750 for twenty-five feet.

"Residence lots at Boulevard Place run from $645 to $1045 and are very conveniently located with respect to the china factory, the aluminum factory and the center of the city. Some of the property fronts as well on Lincoln boulevard, that great project which is going to develop the entire San Fernando valley.

Easy Payments

"Our terms of less than 25 per cent down and the balance in sixty monthly payments, extending over a period of five years, make it very easy to take advantage of these money-making opportunities. The terms apply to the business as well as the residential lots."

Mr. Warren states that he is in addition interested in a number of the largest Glendale and Los Angeles subdivisions, among the latter notably Country Club Highlands, on Pico boulevard, where fortunes have already been made, though the tract has been on the market but a few months.

Associated with Mr. Warren is Harry C. Ellis, also a well-known Glendale realty broker. In their window at 300 1/2 South Brand boulevard is a clipping from the front page of The Glendale Evening News for December 20, 1923, wherein it was stated from New York, through International News Service, that 1924 will be a big business year, with a majority of the nation's leaders prophesying continued improvement over 1923.

"We are basing our calculations on that prediction," says Mr. Ellis. "When men like Elbert H. Gary, James H. Farrell, Daniel J. Willard and Henry G. Dawes say the country is prosperous and is going to be more so, we believe it."

"As far as Glendale is concerned, the city has only started. Opportunities exist today that will never exist again. We are too prone to look back and envy the lucky fellows who bought property a few years ago. Those of us who buy today will be sitting pretty in two or three years, and those who don't will be doing the looking back and envying."

BUSINESS SHOWS EXPANSION NEED

Realty Firm Concentrates On Development of New Trade Center

Realizing the need for expansion of Glendale's business district and especially the location of suburban business centers, where all the conveniences of city trading may be enjoyed without the annoyance of traffic congestion, Gilbert-Sherwood-Guthrie company, real estate dealers at 1501 South San Fernando road, have centered their activities on the development of a high-class business area at Kenneth road and Grand View.

This district, being situated so close to the choice residence sections in the northwest part of the city, offers opportunity for the establishment of substantial business houses. It is zoned for a small business center of semi-fireproof construction, and is the only business district north of Glenwood road and west of Central avenue. It is situated in the peace and quiet, yet fast developing northwest foothill section of the city.

Transportation to and from this district is highly favorable, the Pacific Electric bus line having for its terminal the corner abutting this property. It is also located within two blocks of the Burbank P. E. line.

The members of this realty firm are thoroughly experienced in developing property of this nature, and according to Harry Guthrie, whose activities in this vicinity have made him an enviable record, Glendale was selected as the seat of their operations because of the great opportunities which none can help but see.

Partners with Mr. Guthrie are Lawrence Gilbert and Minor Sherwood, formerly identified with large realty operations in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, where they made a splendid business record. Like thousands of others, they came to California to grasp the opportunities which are offered in the Golden State.

Make Money This Year in Glendale Lots!

STORAGE CO. HAS SHOWN PROGRESS

Robinson Bros.' New Home At Elk and Central Is Busy Place

After a period of seven months in their new five-story building at Elk and Central streets, the Robinson Brothers Transfer & Fireproof Storage company states that they have experienced unprecedented prosperity during that time.

With the business expanding daily from the time this company started business some nine years ago, and a still greater expansion since they opened the new warehouse last May, W. H. Robinson, manager, says that the five floors of the building are now filled, and that at all times since the building was completed they have handled goods to storage capacity.

This structure, which contains 20,000 square feet of storage space, 4000 feet to a floor, meets every storage demand of the people in Glendale and surrounding points, states Mr. Robinson. All the latest and most approved warehouse engineering and architectural principles have been embodied, with resultant safety, efficiency and convenience.

The ground floor contains the main lobby, the offices, a massive burglar-proof vault, a spacious piano room finished in plate glass, a large packing room and a big garage in the rear. In addition, the north corner is given over to a space 18x50 feet, which will be leased as a shop or store.

Private Store Rooms

The second floor is all open storage, the third all private rooms, the fourth open and the fifth private rooms. The open floors are designed to accommodate automobiles; the closed floors, with their many private rooms of varying sizes, to store furniture and household effects.

An elevator 8x16 feet runs from the bottom of the building to the top and is large enough to carry up the most ponderous car or other article with ease.

This building, states Mr. Robinson, is the answer to an increasing volume of business that crowded the company out of its old quarters at 304 South Brand boulevard, where for seven years they were located.

Begun on the first day of November, 1922, it is with warrantable pride that its owners now occupy this fine fireproof structure.

FRUIT INDUSTRY AIDS PROSPERITY

Citrus Crops Great Factor in Producing Share of State's Wealth

In the days of '49, it was gold that brought fame to California as the state favored by Fortune; but today it is a golden fruit—the orange and its sister, the lemon—that brings more fame and wealth to the state than did the gold production of pioneer days.

In 1920, for instance, the orange trees in one county alone, Los Angeles county, produced $18,965,800 worth of fruit compared to a total gold production for the entire state during that period of $17,398,200.

And this is the production of an industry less than fifty years old. California commercial citrus growing started with the bringing to Riverside, California, in 1873 of two small navel orange trees by Mrs. Eliza C. Tibbets, a pioneer woman settler. These trees, which she secured through the United States Department of Agriculture, were of a new seedless orange, which had been lately imported from Brazil.

Superior Quality Seen

The fruit of these trees proved of such superior quality that the growing of the Washington navel orange soon became an established industry, since growers were eagerly looking for a fruit with just such commercial possibilities. The success of the navel orange industry later led to the successful growing of the Valencia—a summer orange—and also to the discovery that the lemon had commercial possibilities for this state.

That the judgment of the early growers was good by the success of the industry was started. From a small beginning, it has grown to proportions undreamed of by its founders, as the following figures show:

During the year ended October 31, 1921, which was the last normal year, California shipped 48,250 carloads of oranges and grapefruit and 11,797 cars of lemons, totalling 60,147 carloads. Estimated returns to the state for these crops were $83,537,344, the delivered value being $128,431,059 including $44,893,715 of freight and refrigeration charges.

Thousands of Carloads

For the season ended October 31, 1922, California citrus shipments were 29,373 carloads of oranges and grapefruit and 9926 carloads of lemons, or a total of 39,499 cars. Returns to shippers for this season, f. o. b. cars California, were $71,366,464, with a delivered value of $95,993,485, including $24,627,021 for freight and refrigeration charges. The shipments for this season represent only 54 per cent of the original estimate for this season's crop, which was seriously reduced by frost during the early part of the season.

Estimates on the bearing and non-bearing citrus acreage in California, compiled by the State Department of Agriculture, state that there are at the present time approximately 257,973 acres of land planted in citrus fruits in this state.

Attaining the success that these

GLIMPSES IN AND AROUND SPARR HEIGHTS TRACT

figures indicate, has not been an easy triumph for the California citrus grower, however. The citrus producer has had many difficult problems to overcome.

In the early days of the industry, failure threatened the growers, through the difficulties of getting their fruit to a market thousands of miles away, together with the fact that their fruit was handled through speculative buyers. Instances are reported in this period when growers were producing fruit at a cost of 50 cents a box in the orchards and were then forced to sell it for 10 cents a 70-pound box in the groves.

Marketing Facilities

Then certain sections or districts began forming small mutual associations and started marketing their fruit through the officials of these organizations with such success that they began to consider the possibilities of this type of cooperative marketing.

The local associations were grouped into district exchanges, which shipped the fruit from a number of different packing houses, and these district exchanges were in turn organized into a large central shipping organization, which is today known as the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, and which markets the famous "Sunkist" and "Red Ball" brands of oranges and lemons.

At the present time this organization is composed of 196 separate associations or shippers, handling the fruit of some 10,500 growers through twenty sub-exchanges. The California Fruit Growers' Exchange has its own representative in eighty-five markets of the United States and Canada, and shipments now in a normal crop year ten times as great as when the organization was first formed and when one of the chief fears of the growers was that of over-production.

Among the things that the exchange has done for the industry have been the stabilizing of markets and shipments and the standardizing of grade and pack of the fruit it ships, as well as the development through advertising, dealer service work, and other means of new markets to take care of increasing productions.

It is not too much to say that the real success of the California citrus industry has come from this co-operative organization, representing as it does, the growers themselves, and existing solely for the growers' own profit. Through the work it has done, the exchange has secured a country-wide prominence, and is being used as a model by many agricultural industries, for similar co-operative marketing organizations.

Alert Business Men

As might be expected of men who have developed an organization like the exchange, the California citrus producers are alert, up-to-the-minute business men, bent on growing the best product they can. Not only are oranges and lemons packed and marketed by a system that would be hard to excel for efficiency and care. The growing of these fruits has become a scientific study for the majority of growers engaged in it, and scientific investigators study the problems of cultivation, fertilization, irrigation, pruning, frost prevention, etc., that confront the grower; while the growers in turn are quick to adopt new and improved methods for raising their crops, that are uncovered by such study.

Citrus growing brings California a very substantial return in wealth and is one of the state's most successful horticultural industries. Unlike the "gold that

Fine Mother $50 for Assault on Teacher

ANNISTON, Ala., Jan. 1. — A hair-pulling wrestling match, flavored with a bit of Jack Dempsey punch, occurred in a fashionable residence of this community recently, all because a young school teacher whipped the young son of Mrs. Annie Willimon, owner of the fashionable home.

According to the story told in court later by Miss Cleo Mills, the young school teacher, she whipped young Willimon because he persisted in fighting the peaceful members of the little school. A short while after she had administered the rod to the boy the young lady was summoned to the Willimon home by the boy's mother.

"I want to show you how that whip felt to my boy!" Mrs. Willimon was quoted as saying when Miss Mills entered her home.

Miss Mills forthwith objected to such brutal treatment from the boy's mother, and a scuffle for possession of the whip ensued.

When the case came up in court Mrs. Willimon was fined $50 and costs on a charge of assaulting Miss Mills.

WONDER VIEW AT FINE SUBDIVISION

R. S. S. Jackson Places Lots On Sale Just West of Brand's Estate

Glendale View tract, located three blocks west of L. C. Brand's estate on Mountain street, is well named, commanding a splendid view of the entire city, particularly inasmuch as it lies on the south side of the road.

It is owned and is being subdivided into large lots, 70x120 feet, by R. S. S. Jackson, of 2801 Broadway, Eagle Rock, who has opened up a number of subdivisions in and around Glendale and is well known.

"The Beverly Hills of Glendale," as this section has been called, offers one of the finest locations for a superior home to be found in Southern California, and is building up rapidly.

Invites Comparison
Mr. Jackson invites comparison of Glendale View with any other tract in the section. As there are but thirty-eight lots, he feels that the opportunity to buy here will not last long.

The lots are priced from $2000 to $7000, on terms of 25 per cent down and the balance in three years. These prices, Mr. Jackson states, include high-class improvements, and restrictions are adequate to ensure a type of construction that will rapidly increase values.

"Drive out and see us at Glendale View," says Mr. Jackson. Don't put it off but come right away, today. The very lot you want may be gone unless you act quick, and someone else will soon be building that pretty home you have been dreaming of so long, nestled there in the hills in just the right location.

Wonderful View

"Come out and see the view we have, not only Glendale, but the whole San Fernando valley, Griffith park hills and the Sierra Madre towering at our back, shutting off all the harsh winds. Note the surroundings, how the tracts all around us are practically sold out and building up with amazing rapidity. Breathe the wonderful air we have up here, note the convenience of our location to schools, churches, business section. Visualize the future here, say, just three years from now—then buy quick, before someone else beats you to it!"

"With nearly three-quarters of a million dollars as our total sales record," says Harley G. Preston, "H. L. Finlay and myself are proud of what we have been able to accomplish in our first half-year of business association, and feel confident that the future holds for us and our customers and clients a still larger measure of success."

In order to meet the increased demands of the organization, the entire Finlay & Preston sales force was recently reorganized and now comprises the following:

BIG DECLINE IN BRITISH UNIONS

Leaders Dispute Hint That Membership Decrease Due to Desertion

LONDON, Jan. 1.—Reports of a decline in the membership of the American Federation of Labor, which emanated from the recent convention at Portland, Ore., find a counterpart in the organized labor movement in Great Britain. Two million workers, it is estimated, have broken away from their trade unions since 1912.

"The gravity of these losses," said W. A. Appleton, general secretary of the General Federation of Trade Unions, "cannot be hidden or minimized. The efforts of the unions to reorganize have not been successful."

Appleton declared that unemployment might be blamed for some of the decline in trade union membership, but that "something like a million people have left the unions because of causes which are not directly attributable to unemployment." The fact that much of the work formerly done by the unions is now being performed by government departments and the failure of the unions to accomplish the things they promised to do for the workers were factors to which Appleton attributed the decline.

J. R. Clynes, a prominent labor member of parliament, however, denied that the shrinkage in membership was due to any "desertion" on the part of the workers from the trade union movement. "Trade unions," he said, "gained an enormous number of new members during the war. Many of these men have left the trades in which they were then engaged. I do not admit for a moment that the shrinkage is due to desertion."

ONLY absolute adherence to a policy of "value for value" has made Glendale the "Queen city of the nation" in growth and solid, substantial achievement.

There is a reason why for Glendale. Else thousands and thousands of people wouldn't have flocked to this beautiful city, for residence and business.

Equally true the reasons for the most amazing residential development the coast has ever seen—in Sparr Heights. One short year ago—twelve months—Sparr Heights was a beautiful idea. And now, because the developing forces behind that idea have built as solidly as our pioneer fathers erected their log cabins, because they have utilized every power of brains, brawn and money to build Sparr Heights for endurance through the ages, we find that the dream of a year ago has become a vivid, marvelous reality.

Stores, bungalows, amazingly elaborate homes—(in the restricted residential district, Montecito Park)—wide concrete streets, landscaping, sewers, sidewalks, curbs, winding drives, etc., have developed Sparr Heights and its Montecito Park into the most beautiful, solidly enduring residential district in the Southland. Fit indeed is Sparr Heights to claim the proud honor of "crowning jewel" to the Queen City, Glendale!

VALLEY'S PRODUCTS TOTAL OVER 22 MILLION DOLLARS

Great Quantity of Produce, Varied and of Excellent Quality, Feeds Big Cities, Makes for Greater Prosperity

That the San Fernando valley, of which Glendale is the capital, is indeed "the feed bin of Los Angeles," was shown recently by W. E. Hewitt, president of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, on the occasion of the annual meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce held in the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse here.

Mr. Hewitt quoted figures to show that the valley marketed produce in 1922 totaling over $22,000,000, adding that indications were 1923 would disclose an even greater yield. The figures follow:

Apricots	$ 840,000
Peaches	1,275,000
Pears	21,000
Lemons	2,240,000
Oranges	5,012,000
Alfalfa	1,700,000
Beets	500,000
Corn	280,000
Cabbage	420,000
Lettuce	440,000
Wheat	31,000
Beans	2,520,000
Hay	360,000
Melons	67,000
Potatoes	1,700,000
Tomatoes	1,008,000
Miscellaneous truck	380,000
Vineyards	75,000
Walnuts	150,000
Misc. deciduous	120,000
Olives	290,000
Dairy products	1,200,000
Hogs	700,000
Poultry, Eggs	2,500,000

Grand total.....$22,477,000

The figures reveal not only a great quantity of production, but a gratifying variety. Oranges and lemons naturally predominate, totaling $7,252,000, or nearly one-third of the total yield. Beans and poultry products run neck-and-neck for second place, while potatoes and alfalfa are tied for third, and peaches, dairy products and tomatoes come next in the order named.

Cities Come Next

Lettuce, beets, hogs, truck, walnuts, hay, cabbage, corn, olives and apricots are seen to be important products, while wheat and pears bring up the tail of the procession, thriving to better advantage farther north.

Against the prospect of continued bumper yields in the San Fernando valley is the undeniable fact of encroaching civilization. The past year has witnessed many ranches and farms cut up into subdivisions, as Los Angeles, Glendale and Hollywood reach out for those attractive cheap residence lands so advantageously near transportation to metropolitan centers.

With Glendale, Burbank, Lancaster, Van Nuys, San Fernando, Owensmouth and other San Fernando valley cities and towns growing in the most amazing manner, it is believed by many that the valley's agricultural peak has been reached and that the next few years will see the development of a group of powerful inland cities upon that fertile and sheltered plain, such cities as are to be found within a twenty-five-mile radius of New York—Newark, Hoboken, Jersey City, Hackensack, Patterson and Passaic.

Annual catch of fish, eels, turtles and frogs caught and taken to the markets in Missouri amounts to nearly 8,000,000 pounds.

High Type of Citizenship Big Aid In Glendale's Advancement, Says Peter Hanson, Realty Board Head

By PETER HANSON
President Glendale Realty Board

A $10,000,000 building year! What a text for the sermon dispenser! What a headliner for the footlights! What a slogan for the booster! To us in Glendale the figure radiates a "grand and glorious feeling," for it marks the total of building permits issued in our city during 1923. In it is wrapped a nation's building record for a city of this size. More forcefully than mere words can, does that figure $10,000,000 express the real estate condition of our city.

Along with such a building record, it is inevitable that there should be a corresponding activity in subdivisions and sale of lots, all of which would tend to stabilize values and increase prices. This has been the rule and fortunes have been made by careful investors. Even the man of small means has been able to make a few hundred or even thousands of dollars on a lot, as homes have been built up around it almost over night.

But such a building program has meant more than just a sharp increase in values, for it has given employment to hundreds of laborers, artisans and mechanics in the erection of houses; in short has put that $10,000,000 to work here in Glendale.

These workers have in turn purchased homes for their families and been absorbed into the population of our city. Today, with over 50,000 people here in Glendale, the result of our labors is beginning to be apparent. And, when we shall have voted for the sewer bonds on January 8, a new invitation to "come to Glendale" will go out to the world, the result of which will be a flood of new home seekers, bringing with them new capital, and Glendale will go to 100,000 population as though impelled by a tidal wave!

But, should the bonds fail, then alas!

With all our great building activity of the past year, the fact that the city has not begun to catch up with itself is evidenced by the shortage of rental property, both business and residential. We are literally turning potential residents away, because we cannot build fast enough to supply the demand.

Naturally, with a $10,000,000 building record tucked away for 1923, people ask, "How does Glendale do it?" And well may they ask, for cities vastly larger can point to no such record for the year just past.

The chief reason why Glendale does it is because of the wonderful location we enjoy, so close to Los Angeles and yet right under our sheltering and inspiring mountains, a tremendous point of appeal. Then there is the impetus of being "the fastest growing city in America." It is human nature to back a winner. We all want to be where there is something doing and share in the activity. It fills us with pep to do greater things.

But the chief attraction of Glendale to the outsider is our uncommonly high type of citizenship. A recent trip through a few southland cities revealed an astonishingly large proportion of Mexicans and Negroes, a condition entirely absent in Glendale. The investor as well as the home seeker is immediately impressed with this advantage and without hesitation locates here.

As a consequence, we have here a contented, splendid citizenship, increasing in numbers, wealth and happiness, and all working for a common goal—Glendale.

BURBANK, MONTROSE, LA CRESCENTA AND LA CANADA SCENE OF WONDERLAND IN FOOTHILLS LYING NORTH OF GLENDALE

Strategic Location of Four Thriving Cities Offers Big Lure to Home-seekers and Lovers of Nature's Abundant Charms and Many Make Investments That Pay Dividends.

By H. THOMPSON RICH
Of The Evening News Staff.

To the north and west of Glendale, between the Hollywood and Verdugo hills and the San Gabriel mountains, lies a "lucky quadrangle" whose four points spell prosperity, health, beauty, happiness—or in other words, Burbank, Montrose, La Crescenta and La Canada. During the recent war the government reported, after an investigation by experts, that the stretch of territory between Sunland and Pasadena was the most healthful in the United States. The investigation was conducted with a view to establishing a great federal sanitarium for disabled service men.

So says F. B. Turner, of Turner & Carson, Montrose realtors, who continues, "With the cessation of hostilities, the government abandoned its plan, but the people had learned the secret meanwhile and the result is that the years since 1918 have seen the most remarkable development of this section, values rising from 100 to 1000 per cent at these points."

Burbank's Industries

"Burbank is a very favored spot and is becoming an industrial center of importance," says E. D. Hamlin of the firm of Hamlin & Hepburn, subdividers of Edgemont Park in that city, whose business headquarters are at 203 West Broadway, Glendale. "The San Fernando road, passing through the heart of Burbank, is the chief factor of its development and insures its future development, while Olive avenue, going to Hollywood, is another important factor, as is Lankershim boulevard, connecting Burbank with Lankershim. In short, the city is in a commanding position, and next to Glendale is the most important point in the San Fernando valley."

As for Montrose, La Canada and La Crescenta, not only are they beautiful spots but are none the less strategically located than Burbank, offering easy access to Glendale, Pasadena and the entire San Fernando valley, as well as Los Angeles.

Montrose, particularly. Mr. Turner of Turner & Carson, points out, is ideally located, being, as it is, the mid-point between La Crescenta and La Canada, but six miles from Glendale, and only twelve miles to Los Angeles, making it an ideal suburban town. The present population is in the neighborhood of 1500, and residents prophesy, not without reason, that in five years this figure will have increased to 15,000.

Many Advantages

Montrose has a car line, fine boulevards, a business section, a bank, two lumber yards, two grocery stores, butcher shop, dry goods store, shoe store, drug store and, in fact, practically every facility necessary to comfortable suburban life. It has an active Chamber of Commerce and a school is under way, $40,000 in bonds having been voted for this purpose. The government has granted a post office, which is expected to be in operation within sixty days, and many street improvements are going in, among them an extension of the car line to Pennsylvania avenue and the paving of Honolulu avenue all the way to Tujunga, together with other paving operations.

Between 300 and 400 buildings are now up, and more going up, almost too fast to keep track of, on the many level, scenic and picturesque winding streets, keeping the lumber companies busy and giving employment to many of the residents.

Various realtors and others who report the above also state that the time is ripe for Montrose to organize chapters of some of the prominent lodges, and the time seems near when an incorporated city will be organized.

The two artesian wells now in operation supply more water than is required, and a third is already drilling, to take care of the rapid growth. More will be put down as needed, adequate supplies of the clearest, purest water being reached at depths no greater than 250 feet.

RESERVE ELEVEN LOTS FOR HOMES

La Canada Acres Surrounded By Scenes of Artistic Foothill Beauty

Located on La Canada boulevard, just north of the intersection of Michigan boulevard and Verdugo road, the attractive La Canada Acres are rapidly being transformed into one of the most beautiful suburban residential sections of the Glendale territory.

This tract is being subdivided by the Lehigh Investment Corporation, 212 West Broadway. This company has bought eleven lots in this tract outright, for the purpose of erecting homes on them. Waitman E. High, is president and George E. Leaton is secretary-treasurer of the corporation.

La Canada acres are unusually well situated, forming a setting in a landscape of artistic beauty with a natural environment such as can be found only among the rugged Verdugo hills. This future site of one of the Glendale territory's choicest residential sections is already established among the permanent subdivisions of the city, lying as it does, just north of the new business center at Michigan boulevard and Verdugo road.

Easy of Access

It is located on a paved thoroughfare that affords easy access to every homestead in the tract. The tract, too, lies near Alta Canada, a rapidly growing residential community and business center.

Plans for street improvements, including curbs, sidewalks, gas and water mains, have been completed, Mr. Leaton says, and work will be started right after January 1.

Many homes are planned for early erection in La Canada Acres, including the eleven which the Lehigh company expects to build. Only twenty lots are left unsold in the tract, Mr. Leaton says, and these are on the boulevard, having been reserved until the last.

The Lehigh Investment Corporation and its associates, Mr. Leaton claims, have built between 200 and 300 homes in Glendale and vicinity in the past two years. They specialize in moderate-priced homes on easy terms.

Pretty Orphan Makes Vain Search for Kin

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 1.—Since her mother died two years ago Ursula Reynolds, pretty 17-year-old Atlanta school girl, has been searching for some of her relatives.

Her mother, Mrs. Druella Blanche Gilmer, was a widow. When she died she left her little daughter, Ursula, two brothers, Paul and S. M. Reynolds, and two sisters, Miss Ethel and Miss Winnie Reynolds. The girl, however, knows nothing about the two brothers and sisters, her aunts and uncles, except that they live somewhere in the South. She thinks, perhaps, that they live in South Carolina, from which state she and her mother came about two years ago.

Meanwhile the girl is staying with friends of the family here in Atlanta and is going to high school.

When Henry C. Jensen and his son, Robert S. Jensen, built their attractive Palace Grand Shops at 133 North Brand boulevard they gave to Glendale a unique and attractive shopping and recreational center, that is of great interest to both resident and visitor.

French Renaissance style was followed in designing the building, which provides a colorful setting for a series of shops and recreational places.

Mr. Jensen and his son launched this great venture, installing most of the shops themselves, but after business success of several months, they have leased to various people and firms, and now they are owners only of the beauty shop, and the recreational center in the basement.

The beautiful Egyptian Village cafe on the second floor of the building is owned by Stuart & Duffy, and other shops in the building are the Lewis Jewelry company, Sun Drug company, Sherrards' Corset, Lingerie and Hosiery Shop; Gift and Art Needlework Shop owned by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown; Marion Elizabeth Hat Shop; Palace Grand Florists, Theodore Karras, proprietor; Melba Jeanne Women's Ready-to-Wear Shop and the Albert Sheets Confectionery Shop.

Comedians Celebrate 'Descent' Upon London

LONDON, Jan. 1.—A great family of comedians is to celebrate its descent upon London 200 years ago.

One hundred members of the Lupino family will gather at Westminster to recall the day in 1723 when their ancestor, Chevalier Lupino, came to London from the Italian stage.

Today Stanley Lupino is one of the greatest comedians on the English stage, and great numbers of the family occupy prominent positions.

During the celebration members of the family will appear in "A Nocturnal Interlude," a pantomime play after the style of "Ye Tavern Bickers," as first played by their ancestors at "Ye Little Lincoln's Inn Fields Theatre" in 1723.

Pioneer In Real Estate and Holds Record For His Insurance Totals

Watching Glendale grow has been the pleasure afforded H. L. Miller, pioneer real estate and insurance man, with offices at 109 South Brand boulevard, where for more than a decade he has handled some of the biggest deals and done the largest insurance business in the city.

H. L. Miller is a veteran real estate operator, having transferred his interests here from Los Angeles, Venice and Ocean Park, where he was instrumental in building up those two famous seaside resorts. He has dealt in a general real estate business with a master hand, but of late years he has placed this important work in the hands of his son-in-law, Hal Rice, while the voluminous insurance business has mounted to a proportion of no mean consequence.

Knows Realty Values

Mr. Miller knows real estate values from the time when raw land was subdivided and barley fields gave way to thoroughfares thickly settled. He has made these values and can advise the purchaser through his office just what property is worth today and tell them approximately what it will be worth tomorrow. And to a large extent he has passed this art to Mr. Rice.

As for insurance, in fourteen non-board companies Mr. Miller writes it anywhere in the southwest. He particularly likes to do business in Glendale, where the fire risk is low and his rates are proportionately low. His reputation for quick settlement of all claims has made his agency one of the most formidable here.

"Not only are their feet increasing in size, but statistics show that the increase is general," continued Miss Clark. "Figures from Vassar, Smith and Leland Stanford show that the average weight of the college woman has increased from 123.8 pounds to 125.8 pounds, and that the waist line has increased on an average of 1.3 inches."

WOODBURY ESTATE IS ON SALE

Wonderful Property Is Under Subdivision

GEORGE WOODBURY, pioneer resident of Glendale, whose attractive estate on Verdugo road, between Lexington drive and Monterey road, was subdivided during the fall of 1923. The lot sale is under the direction of T. W. Watson, who states that many choice bits of the famous property are available to the public.

Subdivision of the George Woodbury acreage on Verdugo road, between Lexington drive and Monterey road, was one of the outstanding realty developments of 1923. It was accomplished by T. W. Watson, 708 East Broadway, who states that a large number of the lots have now been sold.

With the subdivision of this old estate, a new phase in the history of Northeast Glendale was begun, that has now transformed the territory thereabout into an area of intense activity, and, according to Mr. Watson, those who have any idea of getting lots in this exclusive, highly restricted, beautiful residential park had better act at once, for a few weeks more will see every site sold.

Bought in 1884 Mr. Woodbury purchased the property in 1884 as Lot 85 of the Watts subdivision, which was part of the original Rancho San Rafael of the Verdugo family, obtained by them in the Sixteenth century as a grant from the Spanish king.

When Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury first settled on the property, Glendale was a waving barley field spread beneath them. At that time there were but three thoroughfares through the village—Verdugo road, Glendale avenue and San Fernando road. None of these, according to Mr. Woodbury, was in a very good state of repair, being worn with deep ruts by the caravans of the Padres.

In 1887 Glendale was laid out as a city, and things began to happen, but it was not until 1914 that the modern Glendale began to emerge from the drowsy village of the past.

Many Choice Sites

Then came the war, retarding development for four years. But everyone knows with what a swoop Glendale shot upward with the coming of peace. The Woodbury estate, now subdivided and made available to the public for choice home sites, was the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Woodbury for forty years, through all that changing period wherein this city grew from a population of 500 to 50,000. There the atmosphere of the past blends with that of the present in peaceful harmony.

A number of the sites lie along Verdugo road, between Lexington drive and Monterey road.

Others occupy high, slightly points from which may be seen the whole spread of the San Fernando valley, the Hollywood hills, even Catalina island being discernible on a clear day.

This unsurpassed view naturally brings with it a delightfully cool ocean breeze from the Pacific. There is practically no fog on the estate, moreover, Mr. Woodbury points out, and the altitude makes it a very healthful place to live.

Close In Property

But, most significant of all, Woodbury Heights is said to offer the closest hillside homesites to the business district of the city, a great advantage to the merchant or professional man who desires the beauties of the hills yet must be close to the center of things.

Woodbury Heights will be a very high-class subdivision, states T. W. Watson.

"There is nothing better in Glendale and we intend to develop it to fully avail ourselves of the natural advantages," he says.

"Every improvement will be put in, including gas, water, electricity, streets, sidewalks, curbs and an ornamental lighting system. In addition to the many trees now on the property, others will be planted. To protect those who will build here, adequate restrictions have been placed on every site."

Avocado Park

Particularly attractive will be the Avocado park of nearly two acres, comprising sixty fine trees, that will remain in the possession of the Woodburys as a permanent asset to homebuilders in Woodbury Heights.

With this beautiful park and the present new and modern Woodbury home as a nucleus for the development of the property, a suburb of homes will be erected here within the next few months that will be a credit not only to Glendale but to the entire Southwest, as there is a peculiar charm about Woodbury Heights not to be duplicated elsewhere.

In addition to Woodbury Heights, the T. W. Watson company during 1923 were actively interested in a number of other choice Glendale tracts, among them Oakmont Heights and Glendale Highlands.

Long ago it was realized by the real estate dealer, the home-builder and the material men that the only road to continued success lay in honest dealing. Many real estate firms have sold subdivisions at such nominal figures that in a year's time the profits amounted to 200 or 300 per cent in many instances. For these developers had the vision to see that more homes built meant more subdivisions, and so on.

Builders, in turn, coming here from all parts of the country, desired the opportunity to demonstrate their ability, and finding unusual labor conditions, as well as ideal climate, they have not alone established reputations for honest dealing but housed hundreds, yes, thousands of families in comfortable abodes at a cost within the reach of all.

PROPERTY VALUES CERTAIN TO RISE

Gilhuly & Russell Optimistic
As to Future; Recent Sales Reported

Sales of over $156,000 during the past thirty days are reported by Gilhuly & Russell, realtors, 212 South Brand boulevard, bringing up the their total for the year to a large figure.

They are very optimistic regarding the future of the city, if the sewer bonds carry, and feel that values on Brand boulevard, Central avenue and Broadway are low in comparison with the futures of those streets.

"It is here that many large fortunes will be made during the coming months," says S. S. Gilhuly, senior partner of the firm, who is actively campaigning for the sewer bonds, being captain of Precinct 27, of the sewer committee. "The present offers an excellent opportunity to buy along these boulevards, for when sewers are assured the prices will soar."

"With Glendale growing at the rate of nearly 2000 people a month, it stands to reason that values must be constantly on the rise. In business property, particularly, this rise will be rapid during the coming months, although there is not a lot in the city, priced as a realtor would price it, that will not yield a fine profit if bought now."

Properties Sold
Following is a list of properties sold through Gilhuly & Russell during the past thirty days:

Two lots on North Central between Broadway and Wilson at $35,000 for A. B. Holt.

Lot on Pioneer Drive between Central and Columbus at $3500 for M. L. Jackson.

Property at 212 and 212½ South Brand Boulevard at $25,000 for W. L. Truitt.

Southwest corner Milford and Kenilworth at $2100 for Mary Morrison.

Lot on West Broadway between Pacific and San Fernando Road at $3500 for Paul Hedberg.

Lot on San Fernando Road between Magnolia and Cypress at $7500 for Childers.

Lot and house on South Brand between Windsor Road and Park at $21,000 for A. L. Baird.

Lot on Los Feliz Road between Brand and Central at $11,000 for Johnston.

Property at 212 and 212½ South Brand boulevard at $30,000 for A. B. Holt.

Property at 331 North Isabel at $8500 for Arthur Kase.

Edwards & Wildey Offer
Fine Realty in Exclusive Residence District

"Kenneth Highlands" in the "Wishire" of Glendale, is the Edwards & Wildey project which their local office, northeast corner of Broadway and Central is concentrating upon this New Year's.

This beautiful residential district lies east of Grandview avenue and on the slope north of Kenneth road. The sixty lots face on Idewood road and Cleveland road, and the choice property in this district is being offered in accordance with the Edwards & Wildey policy at prices lower than surrounding values, according to W. F. MacPherson, who is at their Glendale headquarters, 229 West Broadway.

"No lots are less than 60 feet wide," he says, "and the depth averages 160 feet. The street work is all in and paid for, while other improvements are available. Building has started already."

Terms Are Low
Like other Edwards & Wildey projects, Mr. MacPherson predicts that the unusually low terms will make it possible for purchasers to make 200 to 300 per cent on their investment in a year's time at Kenneth Highlands.

During the last eighteen years the Edwards & Wildey company has developed and marketed more than fifty subdivisions and in addition to what they term "the proper improvement of the property" they have shared first profits with the buyers and in that way have developed a large clientele. Kenneth Highlands is no exception to this rule of paying early profits to investors, according to Mr. MacPherson, and he advises prompt action on the part of those who desire a homesite high on the hillside in the exclusive Kenneth road district.

The Monarch building, located at the southeast corner of Brand boulevard and Harvard street, is a great addition to the business section of the city.

H. M. Butts is the proprietor of the building, and can be justly proud of the structure he built to house his business, the Monarch Auto Supply company, and other businesses of Glendale.

On the first floor of the building there are located the Ahlmann Drug store in the northwest corner store room; the Fashion Center, just to the south on Brand; and then the Monarch Supply company. On the Harvard street side the Tregea Art shop is housed in the store room in the northeast corner of the building.

Entrance to the second floor is on the Brand side, just south of the Monarch Auto Supply.

On the second floor are nineteen well-lighted offices, finished in hardwood and southern gum.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—Building construction in Brooklyn for 1923 is expected to aggregate $300,000,000, according to officials of the Building Bureau. For the eleven months ending December 1, plans had been filed aggregating $261,240,377. This breaks all recent Brooklyn records and is believed to exceed the amount of building of any other city in the United States for the same period.

J. A. ENDICOTT'S BUSINESS GROWS

Doubles in 1923 Over that in 1922; Big Year For 1924 Now Looms

Sales totaling $270,300 for the month of December are reported by J. A. Endicott, realtor, 116 South Brand boulevard.

Entering his fourth year in the Glendale real estate business with a record such as the above for the closing month of 1923, Mr. Endicott is justly optimistic of the prospects for 1924 and feels that if the sewer bonds carry, which he believes they will by a huge majority, the year now beginning will witness the city's greatest growth to date.

Several large buildings, he states, are waiting only the assurance that sewers will be provided, and 1924 will go down as another "banner year" the minute after it is announced that the city will spend the $1,800,000 necessary to give Glendale relief from the present intolerable cesspool situation.

Doubles Business
"I doubled my 1922 business in 1923," says Mr. Endicott, "and will double my 1923 business in 1924, if things go as I believe they will. Capital is now seeking out Glendale as a city that is headed for a big population."

Although the firm of J. A. Endicott reports that the demand for homes is heavy, it being apparently impossible to create a supply sufficient for the demand.

Three agents are associated with the firm and have contributed to its success of the past year. Roy T. Green specializes on acreage, while Mrs. Bertha E. Larson and Mrs. Hilda M. Commons devote their attention chiefly to houses and lots, and Mr. Endicott himself handles the sales of business properties.

Glendale Gets Dividends Through Realty Board's State Body Affiliation

Big dividends have been earned by Glendale in the year just past by 100 per cent membership of its Realty Board in the California Real Estate Association, declares its vice-president of the seventh regional district, Charles B. Guthrie of this city, past president of the local board and one of Glendale's three directors of the state association.

These dividends are summed up by Mr. Guthrie under the following five heads:

First—The impressive showing at Sacramento last October.

Second—The "plums" brought back from Sacramento.

Third—Membership of Glendale board in state association third largest, larger than Los Angeles.

Fourth—Multiple listing conference of seventh regional district, held here in November.

Fifth—Advertising value to Glendale of talks delivered by Charles B. Guthrie before twenty boards, as vice-president of the seventh regional district.

The whole state of California recognized a leader when Glendale trekked to Sacramento twelve cars strong, for the nineteenth annual convention of the California Real Estate association, held October 8 to 12, 1923.

"The advertising value this city received on that historic trip cannot be estimated," says Mr. Guthrie, "but it was large. Our board sold Glendale to the realtors of California. They will do the rest. We sold Glendale, moreover, to the public, all along the line. In dollars and cents, the cost of such an advertising campaign would have been tremendous."

"Bring Home Bacon"
"Then consider what we brought back. Peter Hanson won second place in the Home Town contest, we gained three directors on the state association, making us one of six boards in the state to have that many. And we brought home a state vice-presidency."

The Glendale directors of the California Real Estate association are E. P. Hayward, J. I. Wernette and Charles B. Guthrie. Mr. Guthrie is in addition vice-president of the seventh regional district.

With 120 members in the state association, the Glendale Realty board takes third place, ahead of Los Angeles and many other much larger cities, another fact tending to focus the attention of the state on this city, states Mr. Guthrie.

And rivaling the state convention last October, was the multiple listing conference held in Glendale on November 17, by the seventh regional district, when 165 business men of Southern California, representing twenty-eight different boards, left their business for six hours to discuss this important phase of the realty profession.

Advertising Value
But in advertising value to Glendale, it is the opinion of local realtors that the talks delivered by Charles B. Guthrie before other boards of this district, in line with his duties as vice-president of the state association, have done as much as anything else to advertise the city.

Recently Mr. Guthrie talked before the Huntington Park, Compton and Downey boards, and will make seven additional talks in January, in all of which he will stress, as he has done in the past, that he hails from Glendale "the fastest growing city in America."

Summing up his analysis of the influence of the Glendale Realty board, during the past year, in building the city, by advertising it as well as actually selling property and erecting buildings, Mr. Guthrie states:

"Indeed, the influence of the local board, through the state association, in selling Glendale to California at large, has become such that many business men realize the word realtor is coming to stand for a profession as substantial and vital in the community as that of doctor or lawyer, and with sixteen lecturers in Southern California, under the U. C. C. teaching the profession of real estate, I look for the time when realtor will be conferred as a degree, just as doctor and lawyer are today."

OAKRIDGE TRACT IS CLOSING OUT

Exclusive Residence Sites
Afford Wonderful View
Of Valley and Ocean

Calling attention to the rapid development which marked the settlement of the lower part of Oakridge tract, Guillemain Investment company, 812 South Brand boulevard, are now selling the last unit of this choice acreage situated so close to the business center of Glendale.

When this last unit at the top of the hill has been sold and developed with homes of the type being planned by the eminent architect, A. F. Leicht, it will be an exclusive residential district of which any city should be proud, according to the Guillemain company. Due to the high elevation of the sites, being situated on one of the most picturesque hills of this territory and from which can be seen the business center of Los Angeles and on south as far as the sea, homes built on this tract will be highly exclusive. Each residence, according to the subdividers, will have a site not unlike a private park, due to the varying elevation of the sloping hillside.

Already part of the Oakridge tract has ornamental street lights, and plans are under way for installing them throughout the entire area. Other improvements, such as water, gas, electric lights, etc., will be completed on the tract at an early date, it is said.

Access to the sites of Oakridge is made via a winding roadway, which is to be paved, and which will traverse the hillsides in serpentine fashion that will add to the artistic effect of the landscape. Only homes of unusual architectural beauty and design will be erected on the tract, the agents say. Two homes, one for A. S. Fielding, costing $14,000, and the other for W. L. Slanner, at a cost of $18,000, are now being built on this tract.

Unusually attractive prices for this class of property are causing many home-seekers to buy in this tract, it is pointed out, and with the liberal terms offered the sites may be purchased with payments satisfactory to all parties.

OPTIMISTIC NOTE IS WELL SOUNDED

Editorial In Evening News
Year Ago Proves Out
During 12 Months

Just a year ago today The Glendale Evening News published an editorial under the caption, "Glendale's Advancement, Steady, Genuine and Record-Making, Is Just Beginning." And now, with another year gone, a reading of that editorial shows that, in the face of facts and figures produced in today's issue, it was not too optimistic. GLENDAL'S ADVANCEMENT, STEADY, GENUINE, AND RECORD-MAKING IS JUST BEGINNING!

A year ago the building permits totaled $6,395,971, and for the year just closed they reached the TEN MILLION DOLLAR MARK!

Why not read that editorial of a year ago? Some who read it then may have thought it too optimistic, filled with too much enthusiasm. Perhaps it was, but it's enthusiasm that's put Glendale on the map; it's enthusiasm that has caused Glendale to excel its wonderful record of 1923, making 1924 a banner year—AND IT'S ENTHUSIASM THAT WILL MAKE GLENDAL'S IN 1924 BEAT THE MARK SET IN 1923!

Now read that editorial published in The Glendale Evening News of a year ago; it follows in full:

"The beginning of the year 1923 finds the city of Glendale in a process of advancement almost unprecedented in the history of municipalities. Factory and mining towns have grown up almost overnight, it is true, but for a 'City of Homes,' a city where the social life is on the highest plane, to make such progress is truly marvelous.

Ten years ago Glendale's population was less than 3000. Today, as nearly as can be estimated from public service records, the city has approximately 40,000 inhabitants.

"Real estate development experts and builders saw Glendale's future. Tract after tract has been opened, homes have sprung up and have been occupied as if by magic. Where, a year ago, there were miles and miles of vacant lots, now can be found block after block solidly built up in homes.

Increases Size
Territory has been annexed. Glendale has added to her area and extended her boundaries in every direction.

"Business men of experience and standing have seen opportunities in Glendale and have had the faith necessary to establish themselves in business and splendidly equipped business homes with large stocks of superior merchandise.

"Home seekers have been attracted in large numbers by the healthy location of Glendale, its healthful altitude, its temperate summer and winter climate, its clean, moral atmosphere, and the general air of prosperity prevalent here.

"The spirit of civic loyalty that is abroad in Glendale is a matter of pride to her citizens and it is remarkable when it is considered that Glendale is a suburban city with many of its people employed in Los Angeles, and that hundreds of her citizens are recent comers here.

"This civic pride and co-operation is one of the big factors in the continued development and advancement of Glendale.

Not On Maps!
As stated above, Glendale had less than 3000 population ten years ago. It was then only a scattered village. The name 'Glendale' could not be found on the maps, for it is a postoffice and no steam railroad. The business section, now almost solidly built up from Lexington to Colorado, and from Central to Glendale avenue, was then a series of vacant lots with an occasional business block or residence to vary the monotony of the landscape. Here homes were few and widely scattered.

"Today Glendale is a metropolis. It is on the map. It has a postoffice and is a stopping point on the Southern Pacific railroad. Glendale's mercantile center, containing many buildings of beautiful and distinctive design, is a matter of pride to every resident of the city.

"Much has been accomplished in Glendale in the past few years, but the city has not reached its highest point of development by any means. Glendale's advancement, though rapid, has been steady and genuine. There has been no mushroom growth or boom, but an honest development that is bound to continue.

"Glendale has always boasted of fine schools, and the year 1923 will find us living up to our reputation in this respect. For the school program for the coming year provides for the immediate erection of a half million dollar high school building.

Fine Churches
"Glendale churches, of nearly every denomination, have modern buildings, several dedicated the past year and others to be completed in 1924. All fraternal philanthropic and civic organizations that are found in large cities and exist for the good of the community, are represented here.

"The Glendale Evening News is glad to have participated in the phenomenal advancement of our city and, standing at the threshold of the new year, this paper promises its continued support to every movement that is for the good of the community. The News is proud to look back over the years and see so many things that we hoped for and worked for, now accomplished. And we look forward to seeing greater things accomplished in Glendale in the year 1924. The News grew up with Glendale, and we are proud that our faith in the city was justified.

"Civic loyalty and co-operation have helped to bring us to the enviable position we occupy as a city, and these same virtues will continue to carry us forward in the

Two Community Builders

H. E. BARNUM

M. WALTERS

Barnum & Walters Company Do Big Work In Developing

Lying on both sides of the Verdugo road, one of the most picturesque boulevards out of Glendale, spread the 1500 lovely acres of Sparr Heights and its hillside unit, Montecito Park, where, in the past year, over $2,000,000 worth of property has been sold and a $12,000,000 development is under way.

To H. E. Barnum and M. Walters, heads of the Barnum-Walters company, subdividers of this great enterprise, go the credit for this vision-come-true of a community in the sun-kissed Verdugo valley where life is lifted to the plane of the American ideal.

Here, in the old days of the Dons, life drifted by in a dream. Hospitable ranchos kept open house and bold caballeros sang and danced and loved with impassioned fervor. And here, too, daring bandits like Murietta and Vasquez made their nightly forays, and the dashing "vaqueros," as the Spanish cowboys were called, disported themselves by roping grizzly bears and pitting them against active range bulls, while fandangos, rodeos and festivities of all sorts mingled to make in this "dream valley" a life as care-free as the world has known.

Glorious Future
Here, amid this glorious past, Messrs. Barnum and Walters have visualized and achieved a future that will be more glorious still, where home-seekers who demand of life something more than just a box-like lot on a rectangular city lot may live and breathe the romance of the hills, yet be within a matter of minutes of the city's business heart.

A year ago Sparr Heights was raw acreage, untouched from the days of the Padres. Today, not quite a year later, it is a community of which the entire Southwest is proud, with a record of the following accomplished steps in its great $12,000,000 development:

One.—Completion and presentation to the city of the $40,000 Sparr Heights Community building.

Two.—Erection and near completion of the Oakmont Country club, with mammoth swimming pools and an eighteen-hole golf course.

Three.—Building of many miles of concrete, hard-surfaced and terraced drives through the foothills, together with complete improvements consisting of sewer mains, sidewalks, curbs, gas, light and water.

Four.—Scores of homes erected, ranging from bungalows to costly hillside estates.

Five.—Erection of stores, garages, etc., needed to serve a community.

Vision Comes True
"A year ago Sparr Heights and Montecito Park, the restricted residential section of Sparr Heights, were simply a vision," said M. Walters, member of the developing firm. "Today they are actualities and rapidly being improved to the point where we believe this will be one of the highest class residential cities in the country.

"Those who have not seen Sparr Heights in the last few months cannot possibly realize what we have accomplished here, how fast Sparr Heights and Montecito Park have progressed.

"Houses, shrouded in lacy trees and bathed in flaming flowers, with beautifully terraced and landscaped grounds, fronting on broad concrete streets, look year to come. Citizens and property owners have learned that it is to their interest to spend their money in Glendale, where it will benefit them in improvements and increased realty values. Merchants realize that Glendale is no longer a village and that Glendale people are entitled to and will have the best in merchandise and service. This co-operation that brought to Glendale the greatest holiday trade in the history of the city, continued through the year 1923, will be one of the greatest factors in keeping Glendale moving forward.

"Let us adopt as a New Year's slogan, 'Glendale for Glendaleans,' and our city will progress at a rate we have not yet dreamed of. The Glendale Evening News anticipates the coming year with pleasure. With thanks for favors and courtesies granted us the past year, we enter 1924 with a determination to keep The Glendale Evening News growing larger and better, doing our part to help Glendale advance. We promise you that in 1924, as in the past, The News shall stand for Glendale and Glendaleans, that our aim shall be to truly represent our city.

"May happiness and prosperity come to you individually, and may all the good things we anticipate for Glendale come to pass in the year 1924, is the wish of The Glendale Evening News."

W. B. KIRK TELLS OF 'EARLY DAYS'

Self Sacrifice Helps to Lay Glendale's Foundation,
He Points Out

Another "pioneer" of the city of Glendale is W. B. Kirk, now on a trip around the world, and whose interesting letters are a feature exclusively in The Glendale Evening News.

As secretary of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce in the "old days," Mr. Kirk did a lot of good work boosting for this community, as will be recalled by the "old-timers."

When The Glendale Evening News issued its tenth anniversary number on March 1, 1923, A. T. Cowan, publisher, requested Mr. Kirk to write something about Glendale, and this is what he wrote:

"Dear Mr. Cowan: Your suggestion that I write a few lines on the Tenth Anniversary of The Glendale Evening News under your management is surely cause for comment as to swift passing of time, because it hardly seems possible that it could be that long.

"One of the striking things to me as I recall our starting of a 'daily' in Glendale was the very large amount of faith you exhibited in doing such a thing at that time. It seemed to me that the time was not ripe for such an enterprise, and when you added $15,000 or $20,000 worth of machinery at once, I surely thought you were 'hushouse' as far as making any money out of it was concerned.

"The Glendale of today, however, shows that you were fully justified in your vision of the future, and I believe you have since always tried to keep in advance of the times in your management of the paper.

Build Foundation
"Many of the large number of newcomers to Glendale do not know that the foundation of the present prosperity of the city was laid firm and deep by the self-sacrifice and hard work of such men as J. C. Shorer, T. W. Watson, George Woodbury and others of the 'old-timers,' and we must not forget this in the flush of our prosperity and success.

"The year 1913 was one in which citizens of the different sections of Glendale got together as they hadn't been doing previously. Our Chamber of Commerce flourished and accomplished many things, if we do say it ourselves. Under the presidency of A. B. Heacock, and with the writer as secretary, we had a spirit of harmony among the various sections which was an omen of the good things to come. A contest for new members, under the leadership of Captains T. W. Watson and M. P. Harrison brought our membership roll to nearly 500! That was very large, considering the size of the town. A large get-together banquet at Filger hall, a picnic at Verdugo park, distribution of advertising literature, a write-up of the city in 'The Arrowhead' magazine of 40,000 copies, were among the things accomplished.

"Not the least of these, however, was the send-off we gave to The Glendale Evening News by means of a parade. Headed by the band on a truck and the officers of the Chamber of Commerce with banners and streamers, we certainly advertised Glendale and The Glendale Evening News through the city. Tropico, Eagle Rock and Casa Verdugo. These were scattered towns then, but soon will be united in a Greater Glendale.

"W. B. KIRK."

Deep Blue Yields Up Spirits for Thirsty

SEABREEZE, Fla., Jan. 1.—During the gay Yuletide season the number of persons appearing on the broad beach here with "binoculars" and "spades" increased—and there's a reason.

Early one morning recently bathers rubbed their eyes in amazement as they stumbled over floating cases of "Lewis 66." A few days later a carpenter, despoiling his work on a beach-front home, pulled from the surf a package containing four quarts of Gordon gin. At about the same time a contractor, digging sand from the dunes, unearthed two dozen bottles of German lager beer.

Hundreds of persons have been poisoned throughout the country this year from drinking bad liquor, but not one has suffered any ill effects in this vicinity—for every bottle thus far uncorked has been found to contain the "real goods," and usually bears the customs seals of foreign nations. At least, this has been the general observation of those interested.

There are no bootleggers in the triple cities of Daytona, Daytona Beach and Seabreeze. Whiskey lovers apparently are not worried over this fact, so long as the deep blue sea stands by them and sends out its "live spirits" at high tide.

Gown and Cap to Be Official 'Grad' Dress

GALT, Jan. 1.—Expensive dresses and suits will not be tolerated at the graduating exercises of the Galt Union High school this year, according to announcement by Principal E. E. Oertel.

Each senior will wear an official high school commencement gown and cap. This will make it possible for the graduates to wear their ordinary clothes, while paying $2.50 rental for the gowns and caps.

property, instances are pointed out where business sites that sold for $700 in 1921 have recently resold for $3500, on Honolulu between Ocean View; and on the next block, between Ocean View and Orange Dale, on Honolulu, lots that in 1921 sold for $400, have recently brought $1800. Whereas, residence property also has, in many instances, trebled in value in the last two years, and in some cases quadrupled.

Montrose is a community of home-owners, and that is what makes its growth so stable. In addition to affording workers in Los Angeles, Glendale, Pasadena and other points a fine suburban home, many residents possess grape vineyards, chicken and fruit ranches and small farms, while still others are retired people lured thither by the healthful climate and the magnificent view, together with an altitude ranging from 1400 to over 2000 feet.

Another advantage enjoyed by Montrose is its proximity to the extensive development just to the south, known as Sparr Heights, with its spacious community and the Oakmont Country club well under way, affording every social and recreational advantages.

The third angle of the lucky quadrangle, La Crescenta, lies just to the north and west of Montrose, at an altitude of about 2000 feet, and is a thriving community of small homes, population numbering something under 1000, being supplemented by new dwellings at the rate of about a house a day, according to reports of realtors.

Magnificent Vistas
La Crescenta was originally a French settlement, and, as its name implies, is on the summit of the rise from La Canada. This gives it a superb view, the Pacific ocean, thirty miles away, being clearly discernable from many points, together with magnificent vistas of Montrose, Glendale, Los Angeles, Hollywood, and range on range of rolling green hills.

One of the features of La Crescenta is its fine school, of Mission style, with accommodations for upwards of 300 pupils. Another feature is beautiful Michigan boulevard, running through the heart of the town, thus bringing to it motor traffic bound from San Diego to San Francisco and advertising its charm afar. La Crescenta also has trolley service and other necessary facilities to make it the desirable commuters' town it is.

People of moderate means find there the big values they must have for their money, realtors point out. And children are given an opportunity to grow up close to nature at its best. In view of these advantages, it is no wonder that values in La Crescenta have gone up over 100 per cent in the last three years and are due for further large rises. Lots can be had within the $1000 range, over and under, while acreage runs from $700 to $2000, according to location and development. Many prosperous ranches dot the section, particularly to the north.

Lovely La Canada

The completion of the lucky quadrangle is La Canada, a spot so lovely that, in the opinion of many, it represents the consummation of a dream. Lying to the north and east of Montrose, it fairly breathes the breath of orange blossoms and speaks with the song of birds—a country of gentle sloping terrain, banked with groves of citrus fruit, the rolling Verdugos to the south, the rugged Sierra Madras to the north, then any fine estates of flowering trees separated by brilliant hedges of roses, it is a veritable paradise of bloom.

"Tourists driving through from San Diego or San Francisco, says one realtor, 'invariably hold their breath at the beauty of La Canada, as they go by—and many of them return to settle here, where there is an estate for everyone from the man with moderate means to the millionaire.'

La Canada is, essentially, a community of estates. The town, from an acre to 100 and more acres, and are in the main, intensely developed with fruit trees, many of them being beautifully laid out, with houses that are works of art. Others are not at all pretentious, but every home in La Canada is alike in one respect—it is neat and trim and attractive.

Every social and recreational facility is afforded, close at hand, the Flintridge Country club being at the very border of the town, on the Pasadena side, where golf, tennis and other sports may be enjoyed. And the trails up into the canyons and the many beautiful bridle paths afford unexcelled opportunities for horseback riding.

Many of the ranchers of La Canada have grown rich from the yields of their orange groves, fruit bringing from $200 to $500 per year per acre, according to quality. One realtor pointed out an instance in his own experience, stating that he had recently received a check for $3500, in payment for this year's crop on his fine acres.

Property Trebles

In general, La Canada values are reported to have trebled in the last three years, making an average rise of 100 per cent per year. A few years ago this acreage could have been bought for a few hundred dollars per acre. Today it brings from $2000 to $4000, according to location—and it is very scarce at any price, those who had the vision to see the opportunities some years ago being reluctant to leave a spot so beautiful and so prosperous.

Many new tracts are, however, being opened up, both acreage and home sites, and, occasionally an opportunity is offered to buy out some estate-holder. These opportunities are invariably grabbed up almost the moment they are announced, realtors point out.

La Canada prides itself in its fine new school, opened up last September, with ninety pupils, and which now has 120 enrolled, a fairly accurate index of the rapid increase in population.

One contractor reports he has nine houses scheduled for construction, and others report building activities steadily advancing. The population at the present time numbers in the neighborhood of 750, but plans are being made to care for a town of 2500 people within the next five years. The altitude of from 1500 to 2000 feet makes a very healthful climate.

Call City Dwellers

Everywhere in Southern California, the people are turning toward the hills. For years these magnificent gold mines of opportunity and peace, right at the doors of Los Angeles, yet far above the turmoil incident to a great city, have stood there waiting, calling weary men and women to come to them, pleading for the little children to be given their ways to roam. And the few answered the call—while the many went by, heedless.

Today those few who early caught the vision of the hills have cashed in heavily. Everywhere, from Santa Barbara to the border, the movement toward the hills is now on. And the point is this, realtors all agree—now is the psychological moment to go to the hills. Prices, though rapidly rising, have just begun their upward climb. In five more years, hillside homes and estates will be at such a premium that it will be difficult to find anything within reason, for, once people buy in the hills and make their homes there, they are loath to leave.

There is a spell about the hills that sends the blood a little faster to the heart. There is a thrill about the hills that is never old, and particularly in springtime is the message clear, calling to come to a haven unknown in the turbulent valleys. There is a relaxation about the hills that keeps men young, wiping away worries like ill dreams that pass and are forgotten, leaving the grandeur of those imposing vistas the hills command. And there is a peace about the hills that makes for happy lives.

"My strength is in the hills."

The beautiful Burton Apartments, at the northwest corner of Central and Park avenues, built by W. T. Burton of the Burton Realty company, 200½ West Broadway. Mountain Boulevard Bears Harding Name

DENVER, Jan. 1.—The late President Warren G. Harding's memory has been honored by the Colorado highway commissioners. By resolution, adopted recently, the state highway leading to the summit of Mt. Evans, forty miles west of Denver, in the heart of the Rockies, has been designated as the "Harding Highway."

The late president, during his stay in Denver, while en route to Alaska last summer, expressed great admiration for the scenic splendors of Colorado, and it was this sentiment that prompted the naming of the highway in his honor.

The grandeur of the scenery that is being opened up by the road up Mt. Evans is unsurpassed, even in the Switzerland Alps, according to members of the highway commission.

Completion of the road, ten miles of which is already open to motorists, is expected by the end of 1924, when it will have been constructed to the base of the summit of Mt. Evans. The road is from eighteen to twenty feet wide and when completed will be a virtual "boulevard in the mountains."

Duncan & Henry Declare
They are Well Satisfied
By Volume of Sales

Specializing in East Broadway property, the firm of Duncan & Henry, 415 East Broadway, report the firm conviction that during the past six months of their association together at the above address, they have sold more property along this boulevard than any other firm.

N. L. Duncan and H. E. Henry, the two partners, both well known in Glendale, express themselves as well satisfied with the movement of property on East Broadway. With the hotel at the corner of Broadway and Glendale avenue practically assured, and several other important buildings awaiting the assurance of a sewer system, 1924 looks to them like a big year.

Another feature that tends to advance this section of the city, they feel, is that the new post-office is to be located practically

Says Ancient Quern Is Key to 'Shell Man'

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 1.—Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, chief of the Bureau of American Ethnology, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, who now is making an exploration along the Gulf coast, has uncovered a "shell man's" quern, or milling stone.

The "shell man," who made and used the quern for flour milling purposes, was among the first, if not the very first, to inhabit the North American continent, according to Dr. Fewkes.

Dr. Fewkes has made other interesting discoveries on his southward trip which now are on display here. All of the discoveries made by the famous archaeologist will later be taken to the Smithsonian Institution for more careful study and investigation.

CAMERON D. THOM HEAD OF CONCERN

Prominent Realtor Takes Big Part In Success of Sewer Bonds

Cameron D. Thom, president of the Glendale Realty company, realtors, 131½ South Brand boulevard, reports that not only 1923 the biggest year in their history, but that it produced more cash buyers.

"Whereas in 1922 and previous years it was necessary to find many houses at $500 down and easy terms, this last year we have found that a surprising number of buyers were primarily interested in the total sales price," says Mr. Thom, "and did not want to bother with terms. This is an indication not only that we are coming into a more prosperous period, but that large numbers of wealthy easterners are coming to Glendale."

Demand Continues

"Unfortunately, the demand for rental properties continues to greatly exceed the supply. Daily we turn away from eight to twelve prospective Glendadians who are unable to find temporary homes for rent, until they can look around to buy. There is a vital need for apartments and bungalow courts to rent at moderate rates."

"In August of 1923 the Glendale Realty company sold more homes than in any other month of its history. December, too, was one of our biggest months. It has been an exceedingly gratifying month for Brand boulevard properties, two large sales having been registered there within the last thirty days."

"Of recent weeks we have had several inquiries from large financial interests of the type who erect the 'own your own' apartment houses, such structures as are now so popular in Hollywood and Long Beach. I am satisfied that if the sewer bonds carry, which seems certain, one or more of these structures will grace the Glendale skyline before many months."

Vote for Bonds

"The sewer question is the greatest issue Glendale ever faced, and it MUST pass at the polls on January 2."

The following members of his selling organization, Mr. Thom states, have been largely responsible for the decided measure of success enjoyed during 1923 by the Glendale Realty company:

R. N. Greenlaw, M. Gannon and Frank Askew, salesmen, each well known and enjoying a large following; and Mrs. L. W. Bradley, a recent acquisition, who, by reason of her social prominence is a big asset to the firm.

Growth of Business Depends on Passage of Sewer Bonds, Says Plumb

Glendale is on the verge of a period of even greater prosperity with the advent of 1924 than has been her lot any time in the past, not excepting the year that has just closed, and which is conceded to have been the most successful year in the city's history, in the opinion of W. Wallace Plumb, of the W. Wallace Plumb company, realtors, 229 North Brand boulevard.

Contingent upon this imminent wave of increased prosperity, says Mr. Plumb, is the successful outcome of the sewer bond issue which is to be voted on January 8.

Sewer Essential

"If the sewer bonds fail to carry," he asserted, "it will simply mean that a lot of us will have to go out of business. It will mean that Glendale will suffer a setback which cannot be corrected in many years to come, no matter what other attempts toward improvement and development are made. The sewer system proposed for Glendale is the one thing upon which the future of this city hinges. If the election carries, it will sweep the city forward in a mammoth wave of unprecedented prosperity; if it fails—well, the results are apparent to every resident of Glendale."

Pointing to the immense real estate activities in the city during 1923, Mr. Plumb says that his firm has been especially favored with a generous share of the business. Dealing in real estate, investments and exchanges, this firm, Mr. Plumb points out, not only has enjoyed an unusually good business in Glendale the past year, but their activities have extended to Alhambra, where results have been equally satisfactory.

A member of the Glendale Realty Board, as well as the State and National real estate associations, this firm is recognized as one of the most influential and substantial in the city.

Picture Shows Rapid Progress Being Made on New Sanitarium

This picture, taken recently, shows the rapid progress being made on the new Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital. The formal opening will take place the latter part of February or the first of March, it is expected. The cost of the "health plant" is about $550,000 and it is located on an inspiring site between Wilson and Sycamore canyon road, east of Verdugo road. It is owned by a corporation representing the Seventh-day Adventist denomination.

More Than Half Million Dollars Is Being

By KATHERINE V. SINKS
Of The Evening News Staff

Glendale, "The Battle Creek of the West," is to be one of the possible future realizations of "The Fastest Growing City in the United States, with the completion and formal opening the latter part of February or first part of March of the wonderful new plant of the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital, erected at an approximate cost of $550,000 on an inspiring hilltop site between Wilson avenue and Sycamore canyon road, east of Verdugo road.

Owned by the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital corporation, representing the Seventh Day Adventist denomination, the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital is one of Glendale's oldest established institutions as well as the largest, and the new building project that has been in progress for over a year has been watched with interest by Glendaleans, who are to share in the civic pride that will rise from future success, when the old institution in its new location will draw peoples from all parts of the globe.

Happy Combination
Glendale's salubrious and healthful climate and peaceful atmosphere and the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital are a happy combination, and the growth of city and institution has been harmonious during years past.

The present status on the construction work shows that work on the main building is done in the major part. The carpenter work was finished this past week and also the work on the floors in the lobby and kitchen. The plastering work on the medical and hydrotherapy buildings remains to be done and will consume the greater part of the coming two months.

The building project has been a monstrous task, and back of its developments and successes one finds the personalities of the architect, Alfred F. Priest of Glendale; of the members of the supervising board, and W. E. Whallin, who has superintended the construction.

Members of this supervising board are: W. M. Adams, president of the Southern California Seventh Day Adventist Conference, president; W. D. Salisbury, vice-president; C. E. Kimlin, manager of the institution, secretary; Dr. H. G. Westphal, medical director of the institution; Dr. W. J. Johnson, house physician; E. M. Emerson, secretary-treasurer of the Pacific Union Conference of the Seventh Day Adventist church; G. W. Reaser, business agent of the Southern California Conference of the Seventh Day Adventist church.

This City Is Headquarters For Pacific Union Conference

Glendale is headquarters for the Pacific Union conference of the Seventh Day Adventists, comprising eight local conferences in the three southwestern states, as follows:

California conference, with headquarters at Oakland; Northern California at Lodi; Central California at Fresno; Southern California at Los Angeles; Southern Eastern California at Riverside; Arizona at Phoenix; Nevada at Reno, and Utah at Ogden.

There are 16,400 members in the conference, with 333 church workers and 205 churches. In eleven months this last year, the Pacific Union Adventists raised $621,623 from tithing; $322,602 mission funds; $9978 specific home funds; making a total of nearly a million dollars, in addition to upwards of $80,000 church, church school and poor funds.

Conference Heads

Elder J. L. McElhany is president of the Pacific Union conference; B. M. Emerson, secretary-treasurer; F. E. Painter, field missionary secretary; Elder W. W. Ruble, educational and missionary volunteer; Elder David Voith, home missionary secretary; Dr. P. T. Magann, medical missionary secretary; Elder W. F. Martin, religious liberty and press bureau, and T. L. Copeland, auditor.

The conference publishes The Pacific Union Recorder, a weekly folio, devoted to the Adventists' progress. It also supervises the Glendale, Paradise Valley and St. Helena sanitariums; the Pacific Union college at St. Helena; boarding academies at Phoenix, Ariz., Arlington and Lodi, Cal., and other academies at Glendale, Fresno, Oakland, Los Angeles and Mountain View.

Finance Big Project

The Loma Linda sanitarium, College of Medical Evangelists and White Memorial hospital also are in the Pacific Union jurisdiction, although operated under the auspices of the general conference, as is the Pacific Press Publishing association at Mountain View, Cal.

Particularly notable is the work of the conference in financing the new Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital plant, which is the finest equipped medical institution of its kind in the west.

Adventist Church

Following the establishment in 1905 of the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital, the Glendale Seventh Day Adventist church was organized, January 27, 1906, with Elder George W. Reaser presiding at the organization gathering. There were about thirty charter members.

Services were at first held in the Sanitarium building; then the frame church, purchased of the Baptists, was moved onto the lot on the southwest corner of Wilson avenue and Isabel street.

This building soon proved too small for the rapidly growing congregation, and a larger building was erected about four years ago on the corner of California avenue and Isabel street. At the present time this building is much too small for the congregation, as the membership now is over 700.

Elder R. W. Parmelee is pastor, and the associate elders are James Howarth, H. L. Taylor, A. T. Hopman and Dr. C. A. Burrows.

Deacons are C. E. Swartsfager, W. S. Shearn, James Lamkins, C. R. Lagourge, William Black, Henry Transtrom, W. D. King, E. E. Covert, I. C. Booker, J. B. Carpenter, L. H. Englehart; and deaconesses, Mesdames L. B. Hyatt, Swamer, T. C. Howell, James Howarth, John Nichol, H. Munce, Marietta, L. R. Davidson, Lucy Dransfield and Vickery.

Mrs. C. B. Towler is clerk of the church; Miss M. E. Learned, treasurer, and C. H. Jones, chorister.

Glendale Academy

About 1907 a small church school of perhaps one dozen pupils representing grades one to eight, was organized by the few Seventh Day Adventists residing in Glendale at that time.

From that small beginning the work has been steadily growing, and, during the last three years, high school work has been offered. The enrollment thus far has almost reached the 400 mark.

The new academy erected in the beautiful Sycamore canyon, east of the city, is a two-story stucco building, with eight large class rooms, a number of smaller rooms, offices, and spacious auditorium. Other buildings located near the academy are a new manual training and grammar grade building.

It is the purpose of the academy to give the youth in attendance an all-around training, preparing (Continued on page 6)

H. N. Landon Well Known For Popular Grande Vista Subdivision, Fine Residences

H. N. Landon, subdivider, of 213 West Broadway, is best known for his popular, high class tract, Grande Vista, now practically sold out, with the exception of two or three level lots and a few villa sites.

Two years ago Mr. Landon began operating in Glendale. His record since then has been one of consistent success, culminating in his marketing of the above tract, located on Mountain street and adjoining L. C. Brand's "Miradero" on the west.

Many fine homes are now rising or will rise shortly at Grande Vista, among them a $30,000 Italian type villa for Donald Barbee, designed by S. S. Beran; a $25,000 mansion for E. A. Key, now being built by Roy E. Diem; a $22,000 colonial residence for S. S. Beran, designed and being built for himself; and a $12,000 home for G. F. McGuire, sales manager for the H. N. Landon company.

Attractive Home

Mr. Barbee's home will have distinctive lines formed with California stucco, its large Spanish tile roof, and its landscape windows and elevated setting in the Grande Vista highlands, while its exterior will present an appearance of beauty and comfort.

The interior of this magnificent home, with high coved living and dining room ceilings, converted lighting system, parquet floors, blue gum finish and hand-decorated walls, will further excite the admiration of the visitor. The bath room floors and kitchen drainboard are to be inlaid with white and blue Mexican tile, while the side walls of the bath will be finished with glazed tile.

The unit controlled system of heating will be employed throughout the house.

Mr. Barbee, the owner, who was attracted from the east by California's proverbial climate, is the active manager of the Nash Sales Company, Inc., located on South Maryland avenue.

Beautiful Site

The home of Mr. Key will occupy one of the beautiful villa sites on the high ground at the rear of the tract, with two floors and seven rooms, the ground plan being 41x52 feet. It will be of stucco, in a very beautiful design, the work of Architect Frederick Hust, Los Angeles.

Reporting on the building and buying activities at Grande Vista Mr. McGuire states:

"We find that a number of Hollywood people who have owned magnificent homes are buying and planning to build at Grande Vista.

"They have found it advisable to sell their former homes when prices rose to the point where it made it no longer economical to maintain them, and with their profits are again seeking foothill locations.

"That they choose Grande Vista indicates clearly that they consider this section of Glendale another Hollywood, for beauty of view and residential desirability.

Children's Playground

"To further enhance Grande Vista, we are putting in a children's playground in one of the level canyons. Tennis courts, horse-shoe grounds, swings and other sports facilities will be installed.

"Lots at Grande Vista range in price from $3000 to $20,000, with adequate restrictions. Improvements include gas, water, electricity, winding drives, ornamental street lights, a beautiful parkway and other distinctive features. The location is at the head of Grand View avenue, on Mountain street, adjoining 'Miradero,' the castle estate of L. C. Brand. It is convenient to schools, trolleys, markets, business section, clubs and every other facility."

Grande Vista is approached by driving up Grand View avenue to its head, or driving up Central avenue, then out Kenneth road and into Grand View.

From the tract, which is open daily and on Sundays, a magnificent view of the entire San Fernando valley can be had, from Eagle Rock to Owensmouth, with Griffith Park hills in the foreground.

Start Spinning Mill in China, Worry Japs

TOKIO, Jan. 1. — Marshal Chang Tso-lin, in addition to being a soldier of some note in China, has recently added to his interests by starting a spinning company of 30,000 spindles in Mukden, in the war lord's domain of Manchuria. Japanese spinning men are somewhat worried over this new venture of the Chinese chieftain, for they point out that the Japanese yarn sale in Manchuria is already decreasing, and they fear that the operation of a big company by Chang will seriously hurt the already decreased sales of Japanese yarns.

Chang Tso-lin's company began operation on November 16. Its capital is 4,500,000 yen.

GENERAL CONSTRUCTION CO. IS ACTIVE BUILDER

President Arthur M. Yale Tells Of Big Program In Glendale

Picture of the charming duplex built for Mrs. E. G. Bray at 704 North Kenwood street, by the General Construction company. Of salmon stucco with green trim and a variegated tile roof, the work of Donald MacFarlane, the structure is of such unique design that it was photographed by Paul Green, head of the famous firm of Wicks & Green, Buffalo, architects, to hang in their offices in that city.

With over $300,000 borrowed during 1923, for construction purposes, and more than 80 per cent of it spent in Glendale, the General Construction company has run a payroll of close to $1000 a working day in this city in the year just past, reports Arthur M. Yale, president of the General Construction company, 203 East Harvard street.

Expenditure of such a large sum of money in Glendale by this company has added materially to the prosperity the city has enjoyed, offering not only employment to numbers of laborers and artisans, but furnishing an outlet for local products and creating a demand for the goods of local merchants.

Many New Homes

Some twenty multiple residences have been constructed here during the year by his company, Mr. Yale states, among them their own two-story brick store and apartment at the northeast corner of Maryland avenue and Harvard street, valued, with the ground, in excess of $90,000; a one-story brick garage at 219 West Colorado street for Francis J. W. Henry and J. Herbert Smith; a two-story store and apartment building and annex at the northwest corner of Orange and Hawthorne streets, for Mrs. Mary Carpenter, comprising twenty-two apartments, six rooms, and ten stores; the beautiful duplex for Mrs. E. G. Bray at 704

North Kenwood street; the English type residence for Dr. A. E. Mark at 439 Kenneth road, and many other fine structures in and about the city.

In addition, Mr. Yale reports that the General Construction company is putting up a 1000-seat theatre in Inglewood and a thirty-two-room apartment hotel in Hollywood, while the program for 1924 includes a large bungalow court in Glendale, for families with children only, a special feature of which will be a playground in the rear.

Claim Much Insanity Due to Corn Liquor

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 1. — "Corn liquor drives people insane," declared Judge H. B. Abernathy, who passes upon hundreds of liquor cases in the courts of Birmingham each month.

An average of two to three victims of "corn" are sent to the Alabama insane asylum each month from Jefferson county alone, asserted the judge.

A total of five persons were sent to the asylum during the past week. In each case the victim was a heavy drinker, according to the judge.

FIRM TO LAUNCH NEW SUBDIVISION

Horn & McDill Starting Off
With Clearly Defined
Program for 1924

Exemplifying their faith in the future of Glendale, Horn & McDill, realtors, 203 Lawson building, are entering the New Year with a full program of business activities before them, including the subdivision of a large tract of land, in the northeast section of the city, known as Glendale Crest. That this property is going to find a ready market is evidenced, George D. McDill, of this firm says, by the fact that already several homes are going up on recently purchased sites.

This tract, Mr. McDill points out, is unusually well located for home building, it being situated only three blocks from the new high school and two blocks from a car line. Lots are selling at from $1,500 to $5,000 each. Improvements, including streets, lights, gas water, etc., are now being made on this tract.

Enviably Location

"Glendale Crest," says Mr. McDill, "commands one of the most artistic views of any place in the city, lying, as it does, on the scenic slopes of the foothills, in the northeastern edge of town, yet within close proximity of the business center, the schools, churches; in fact, all that Glendale has to offer."

Besides the tremendous activities of this firm in real estate, Mr. McDill points out that their recently added insurance department is broadening the scope of their work in Glendale and vicinity. Whether it is life, accident, health, fire, automobile, damages of all kinds, Mr. McDill says they have an insurance policy to cover it, as they are now prepared to write twenty-three distinct policies. One particular policy, which has proved invaluable many times to its holders, he said, is the water and flood insurance, which protects property owners from all damages which come from the elements.

"Vote for the bonds," is one of the slogans of this firm.

The Story of the Growth of Our Firm Is Almost as Phenomenal as That of the City We Are Trying to Serve.

It is with considerable pride that we introduce to you our organization, which we picture below. Up until ninety days ago, our force (exclusive of the Construction Department) consisted of four salesmen and a stenographer but, owing to the amazing growth of our business, we found it necessary to increase our sales force over double and to acquire the services of an efficient office manager to handle the many details in conjunction with the workings of a high-class Real Estate and Investment business.

Since organizing just two years ago, with a much smaller selling organization, we have sold several millions of dollars' worth of listed property, besides our Subdivisions, which has totaled many thousands of dollars, in the course of which we have made considerable profits for our many clients and friends.

We are laying great plans for the future and are constantly increasing our facilities and perfecting our methods, to be of service to our clients. It will be worth your while to become acquainted with our representatives, who hold an enviable position in our community and possess the highest degree of personality, integrity and courtesy.

Glendale Heights Extension Offers Big Bargain To Investors and Homeseekers

Surrounded by scenes of home development that evidence the activity increasing daily in this particular tract, the Glendale Heights Extension offers one of the best examples of civic enterprise and community growth in Glendale territory.

Where but a few weeks ago it was not unlike the green-crowned hills in whose shadows it lies, this subdivision now is a bee-hive of home building.

The tract is being developed by Will P. Hope, H. C. Hardin and Frank J. Weldon, whose enterprise in home development in Kansas City made for them a name that has followed them to the Pacific coast.

This tract is situated at the intersection of Palmer avenue and Adams street and is just south of Glendale Heights. Improvements on this property have developed to an extent that home-seekers are choosing sites every day from among the many choice lots offered for sale. This is evidenced by the large number of new buildings seen going up in that vicinity.

Sales Satisfactory
"Sales have been most satisfactory," says Mr. Hardin, "and we are contemplating an unprecedented rush for home-sites after the New Year. While improvements have not been completed on the tract, owing to the lack of time for full development since work was started, we are highly pleased with the showing so far. People are showing their faith in Glendale Heights Extension by purchasing lots early, thus taking advantage of the saving to be made by buying before the tract has been picked over."

From this tract, situated on the familiar hill, topped by a eucalyptus grove, a view can be had of the business district of Los Angeles, Signal Hill oilfield and the ocean.

Title to this property is in the hands of the Guaranty and Trust company of Los Angeles, which organization issues all contracts and deeds and to whom all money is paid. Hope-Hardin-Weldon Realty company are the selling agents and do not complete the contracts, they state.

Hal C. Hardin of this firm, is having a fine home erected on the tract, exemplifying the faith he has in this section. The tract is only twenty minutes by car from the business district of Los Angeles and is located within walking distance of 5-cent carfare.

Was Champion Walker, But All 'In His Mind'

BUYRUS, Ohio, Jan. 1.—One of the most eccentric characters in this part of the country for many years, Joshua Augustein, 76, recently died at the Crawford County infirmary.

In his younger days Augustein was a "heel-and-toe" walker of some repute. As he grew older he became obsessed with the idea that he was "a world-beater by birth." He never tired of showing his collection of medals and diplomas, as champion heel-and-toe walker, to those who disputed his claim.

Among the alleged donors of medals, certifying to his ability as a pedestrian, were King Edward VII, Theodore Roosevelt and, in fact, any person who, for the time being, was in the public eye. His local friends kept him well supplied with medals, made from highly polished brass, copper or tin, and set with any flashy bit of glass picked up at Bucyrus stores.

In his mind Augustein received fabulous offers from various persons for his collection of medals, but asserted he would never part with them.

Calls Conference to Discuss Farm Lands

The second California farm land conference under auspices of the California Real Estate association, third regional district, Vice President Thomas W. McManus, presiding, has been called for Fresno, Saturday, January 26, 1924. It will be held at the Hotel Californian, upon invitation of the Fresno Realty board by D. Richard Ainsley, president.

The program will be arranged by the state association with the co-operation of the California Approved Land Settlement association. Invitations to participate in this farm district discussion will

These pictures show the development work in and about the close-in sub-division known as Glendale Heights Extension. The property provides large and slightly lots, only 20 minutes from Los Angeles, via Adams street, York boulevard, Verdugo road and San Fernando road. The tract is located just south of Glendale Heights, which sold out in record time a year ago and where prices have greatly increased, it is announced.

FIRM ACTIVE IN BUILDING FIELD

S. S. Beran Has Constructed Many Glendale Homes in Past Year

Home building in Glendale besides being a business of great magnitude is an art with the S. S. Beran company, general building contractors, 305-307 South Brand boulevard. The number of distinctive houses erected by this firm looms large in the more than $10,000,000 building permit total for the year 1923.

In the month of November alone the Beran company took out $158,000 in permits, which places them among the major operators in the real estate, building and loan field here. More than two score homes and store buildings built by the Beran company in this vicinity during the last year are as follows, and well worthy of inspection on the part of those planning a place of their own:

J. B. Garson, six rooms, 1421 East Broadway.

The move back to the land is fast assuming pre-eminent shape, and a big swing of the pendulum to the neglected country districts may be expected as a result of a steadily increasing desire by people to invest in approved productive marketable crop lands.

State Expenses Were One Time Much Lower

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 1.—When the Department of Grounds and Buildings makes estimates for the running of the State Capitol the most of them take six figures, not counting the cents column. The other day a contract was awarded for $90,000 to provide bronze doors for a new office building under construction.

Sixty or seventy years ago, however, a great many of the state activities cost less than it does now to provide nuts for the squirrels which are kept in the Capitol park.

Records of the "old days" recently unearthed from the files contain the following items:

To mending a bucket.....$0.25
Mending candlesticks and lantern.....1.10
Mending 2 kettles standing in window.....25
Eight cups for the Franklin stoves......80
Putting glass in 2 lanterns.....1.90

Stanford to Remain Practically Intact

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Jan. 1.—Coach Andy Kerr will turn over to Glenn Warner, when he comes to Stanford from Pittsburgh, all but four of the eleven which started against the California Bears in their last encounter. These are evenly distributed between the backfield and the line.

Bob Cravens and Dick Paville will be lost from the forward wall, while from the secondary line will go Captain Scotchey Campbell and Norman Cleveland. Kerr has several first-rate substitutes with which to fill in these vacancies and will no doubt, with Warner, be able to find strong material from the membership of the freshman squad, which last year defeated the California first-year men by a 12-to-0 score—the first Stanford freshman victory since 1903.

Among the reserves of last year's squad Fred Ludeke and Fred Loomis, both tackles, will be missing next season. Both varsity tackles, Johnston and Shipkey, however, will have another year.

Vital Issues Facing U. S. Chamber Meeting

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 1.—The big vital issues of the west, problems of national importance, will be afforded expression at the western regional convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to be held in San Francisco, January 29 and 30. This is the first divisional meeting called under the new decentralization plan of the Chamber and will bring together the commercial and industrial representatives of eleven western states.

The program for the meeting is now in the process of formation, according to Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles banker and western vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. It is already determined, however, that one of the big topics of discussion will be that of transportation, which is considered one of the most important issues of the day having to do with the continued development and prosperity of the west and yet a problem national in its scope.

The national organization has recently completed an extensive study of this whole problem through the medium of five committees composed of leaders in the industrial life of the nation. These reports which have just been submitted to the national officers will in all probability be a guide for the discussion to be held in San Francisco.

According to Julius Barnes, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who will be one of the principal speakers at the regional convention at San Francisco, this study was conducted in response to a general demand for an intelligent understanding of the nation's transportation situation.

Other subjects that will find a place in the discussion of the west's business leaders will be immigration, taxation and possibly trade with the Orient, big reclamation and hydro-electric projects and distribution through co-operative marketing.

Rabbit Skin Is Now Stylish in England

LONDON, Jan. 1.—The humble rabbit skin has at last come into its own and is rapidly ousting ermine and other fashionable furs from public favor here.

Baroness de Brien, member of an old Dutch family, is the chief exponent of the new fur. She has opened a salon in aristocratic Mount Row, where she sells the transformed skins to many well-known people, including the Duchess of York and Lady Louis Mountbatten, who have both bought items of wearing apparel from fur coats to fur foot warmers, from the baroness' store.

The transformed rabbit fur looks neither nasty nor cheap, and it is doubtful if the uninitiated would recognize it.

Skins are first treated by a special preparation, after which they are dyed to many colors and into replicas of expensive chinchilla and ermine coats, motor rugs and even opera cloaks. It is as imitation chinchilla, however, that the rabbit skin gives the best results.

Society evidently appreciates the fact that, in addition to looking as good as the originals, the new fur is much cheaper than its more aristocratic fellows.

Japanese have organized a company to transport freight by cable lines from mountainous districts to railway terminals.

Strong Wire Is Made From Pure Rock Salt

MOSCOW, Jan. 1.—Manufacture of wire stronger than steel has been accomplished by the use of rock salt by Professor Joffe of the Petrograd Academy of Science. Professor Joffe's discovery of wire made from rock salt came after a series of extraordinary experiments in the mutability of metals by structural chemistry. Rock salt, the crystals of which normally begin to decay at a pressure of one and one-tenth pounds on 1-65th of an inch, resisted at a test a pressure of 330 pounds.

Professor Joffe discovered that by submitting the rock salt to high heat pressure before the elementary crystals began to decay he arrested the decay by changing the structural arrangement of the atoms and molecules, and this change increased the durability and ductility of the substance three hundred times.

If the discovery of Professor Joffe can be applied to metals, it may mean a revolution in science. If the breaking point of steel is 1923 has passed and gone down into the history of Glendale. The population has increased over 10,000; building permits went over the $10,000,000 mark; property values have doubled and trebled and many other important developments have taken place.

Greetings for the New Year

NOW—

Be it resolved: That the citizens of this city work to increase the population of Glendale 20,000 people this year; building permits over $20,000,000; and property values will take care of themselves.

Never in the history of the United States has there been an equal of Glendale in rapid growth and increasing property values. The population is increasing over 1000 people every month, and, as a result, real estate values will continue to increase accordingly. Therefore, buy Glendale property, where your money will be the safest and give the greatest returns.

'DAN' BOWLER IS PROMINENT HERE

Realtor Takes Great Pride In Selling Properties At Sparr Heights

In October, 1922, there came to Glendale from the middle west a man who had made a place for himself and a wide acquaintance among men of business in both the states of Wisconsin, where he was born, and Iowa, where he had made his greatest success up to that time as a business man. The name of this man is D. F. Bowler, better known among his associates as just "Dan" Bowler. He had been associated in Iowa with State Senator Francis of that state, and had handled for him what is known as Francis Sites, located on Spirit Lake—a place made famous as the summer residence and pleasure resort for half a million people who live in the states of Iowa and Minnesota. Bowler had finished his work there, and came here with Senator Francis, who had become interested with others in the promotion of Sparr Heights. It did not take Mr. Bowler long to decide to make his home in Glendale, and located a home for his large and interesting family on the corner of Lomita and Glendale avenue.

Soon after his arrival in Glendale Mr. Bowler opened a real estate office at 200 East Broadway, and became the Glendale agent for the sale of lots in Sparr Heights, and does a general business in real estate and investments. He is also associated with A. J. Mailoux and E. L. McMahon in what is known as the M.-M.-B. Building and Investment Company, building and selling high-class residences in Sparr Heights. But Mr. Bowler's greatest interest in Glendale has been centered in the development of Sparr Heights, which tract he considers the most desirable residence tract in all Southern California.

Exclusive Homesites

When he starts talking on this subject he seems to live in another atmosphere; "for where," says he, "can you find another tract which can show the same effort on the part of the owners to prepare exclusive homesites for exclusive people. This is especially true of Montecito Park, just across the boulevard from the Oakmont Country Club, where every street is paved, curbing, sidewalks, sewers laid, and conduits for all wires, electric and telephone, and the streets and drives so laid out by a landscape architect as to make possible the most beautiful grounds for every home, not overlooking the opportunities for sunken gardens, and all other surroundings to make the residence attractive, and every lot in this subdivision overlooks the golf links and recreation grounds of the Country Club. Where in all California can you find its equal?"

Mr. Bowler has brought to Glendale the vision of the sculptor who can see in his block of granite or marble the figure he is about to create. He can see in Glendale a future great residence city of two or three hundred thousand people, and believes that Southern California is destined to have six to ten millions population within the next ten years. No one who talks with him can fail to become an optimist in all things. With him this is contagious. He sees no clouds on the business horizon—nothing but sunshine. He was successful before he came to Glendale, and has not taken any backward steps since coming to this city. He is a booster for the sewers, belongs to the Glendale Realty Board, the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, and takes an interest in all matters of public concern. His office is a busy place, and he has surrounded himself with a staff of capable and courteous sales people whom it is a pleasure to meet.

DELPHIANS ARE IN SECOND YEAR

Alpha Delta Chapter Makes Study of Drama From Earliest to Latest

The Alpha Delta chapter of the Delphians is in the second year of its organization in Glendale and is making a study of the drama from the earliest times to the present. Their programs so far this year have included the study of the best known of the Greek dramatists and of the miracle and morality plays.

An interesting chapter meeting in November featured the Miracle play of "The Three Maries" presented by members of the chapter with music from the cantata, "The Three Maries," sung by Miss Isabel Isgrig, Mrs. Roger Fitz and Glenn Dolberg.

A luncheon at the Egyptian Village followed the morning meeting. Mrs. Paul C. Mason was the toastmistress and toasted the members with clever rhymes. The officers for the present year are: Mrs. P. O. Lucas, president; Mrs. Barton Manbert, first vice-president; Mrs. E. B. Alsberg, second vice-president; Miss Martha Cox, secretary; Mrs. Paul C. Mason, leader of Lotus group; Mrs. B. W. Bolton, leader of the Ivy group.

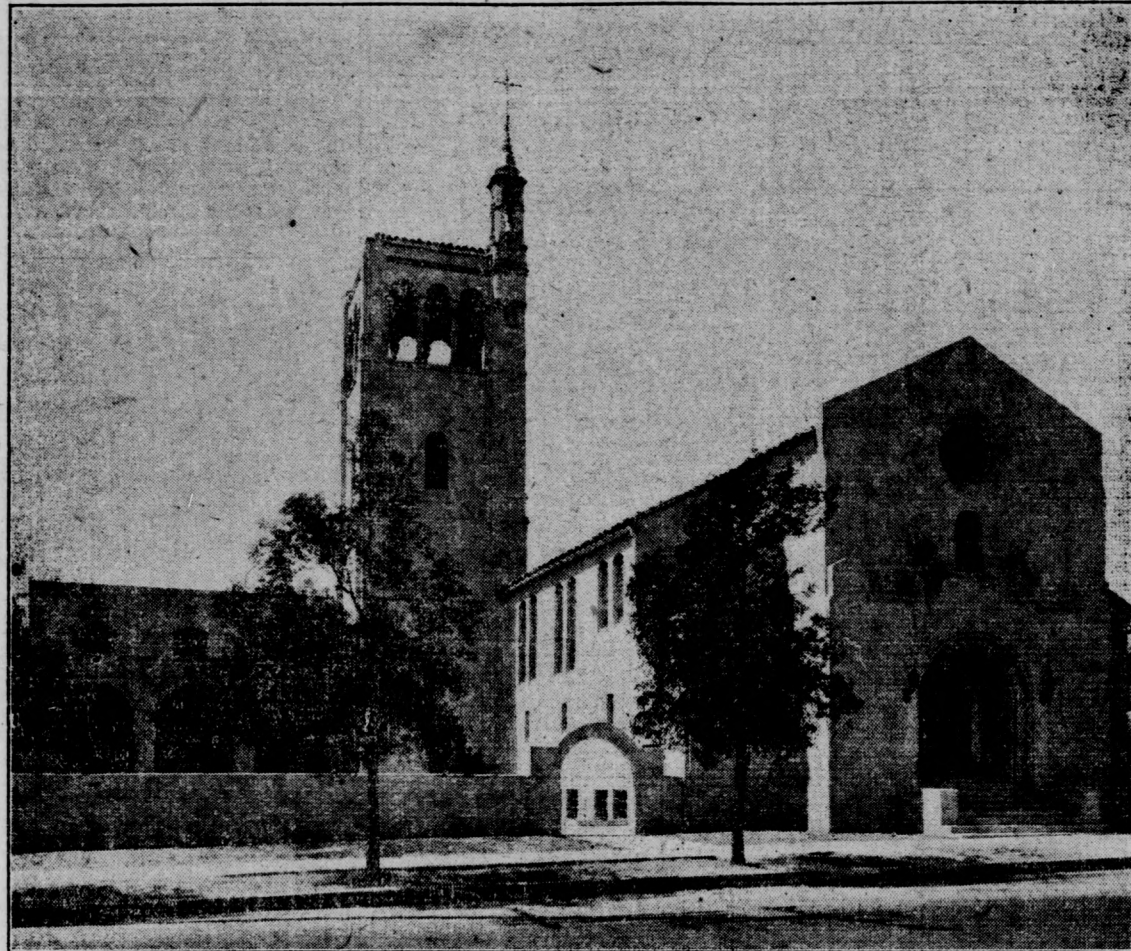

ERECT RADIO STATION

For communicating with fishing fleets the Norwegian government will erect a radio telephone station at Vardo, on its north coast.

If the blamed pedestrians would only stay off the streets the traffic problem would be much easier to solve.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH BUILDING COMPLETED

Spanish-Colonial Style Of Architecture Used For New Structure

Picture of the new Congregational church at Central and Wilson. It is of Spanish-Colonial design and the pastor is Rev. C. M. Calderwood.

An outstanding event in Glendale church life during the past year was the completion and formal opening of the new Congregational church building at the northwest corner of Central and Wilson avenues.

Carlton Monroe Winslow was the architect and he took for his inspiration the Spanish-Colonial style of architecture, letting the California atmosphere dominate. In the exterior of the church building there is a happy combining of architectural units into a dignified structure of worship; a building that is entirely harmonious with California's unique historic background and tendency to preserve that background through the coming years.

Built in the shape of a letter L, enclosing a walled garden on the southeast corner of the property, the buff stucco finished building faces east, while its artistic and inspiring tower rises for ninety-five feet toward the heavens. The entrance into the chapel proper is on Central avenue. Features of this facade are stone steps, the massive oak doors, adorned with specially designed wrought iron handles, the circular windows and cast stone ornaments above, and the artistic electric fixtures on either side of the doors.

The cost of the building and equipment is given as $95,000. Value of the property, on which the building stands is quoted as $15,000.

Rev. C. M. Calderwood is the pastor of the church.

LOCAL MERCHANTS IN ORGANIZATION

Attorney Owen C. Emery Is President, F. H. Pilling Body's Secretary

The Glendale Merchants' association, comprising 130 members whose mercantile and professional business makes necessary a co-operative credit bureau, was organized three years ago with Frank H. Pilling as secretary. Officers this year are Attorney Owen C. Emery, president; W. P. Potter, first vice-president; H. M. Butts, second vice-president; H. S. Webb, treasurer; W. H. Hooper, C. A. Stuart and O. W. Andersen, members of the executive committee in addition to the officers.

Weekly luncheons at 12:15 p. m. Mondays are held at which time the members hear business reports and consider the ratings of the 18,000 credit customers listed in the city of Glendale. They meet at the Egyptian Village. An annual picnic is the only function of the year in which the merchants shine, although their holiday closing committee enables the employers and employees to enjoy many festive occasions.

C. J. Hatz is chairman of the merchants' permanent advertising committee of the association, which publishes 15,000 copies of The Glendale Shopping News which is distributed each Saturday. It is printed in the commercial department of The Glendale Evening News office. H. W. McGuire is kept busy attending to the detail work of the Shopping News.

Gravedigger Working On Own Burial Plot

LONDON, Jan. 1.—John Evans, a Glamorganshire gravedigger, although still hale and hearty, is preparing a commodious and well-appointed grave for himself in the burial ground in which he has worked most of his life. The site was presented to him by clients, and other interests have also presented him with a stone slab to cover it.

Evans declares he has no intention of dying yet.

Fight Commission Is Created In Atlanta

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 1.—Boxing, as a profession, received a tremendous boost in the South recently when Atlanta, long a southern center for boxers, created a boxing commission. The ordinance creating the commission provides that it be composed of five men, to be appointed by the mayor, and subject to removal at his pleasure. The commission will collect 5 per cent of the receipts at all matches to be put in a general fund for its own maintenance.

The commission will issue licenses to boxers, managers, seconds, and will determine under what conditions, as to weight, number of rounds, and other details, a match may be held.

It was generally thought here that such a commission will place boxing on a much higher plane in this section, eliminating boxing sharks and promoters who heretofore have victimized Atlanta fans, thereby decreasing their interest

Western Solons Urge Connecting Highways

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 1.—Congressmen from eleven western states will urge construction of four highways from the Pacific coast through intermountain states to connect with transcontinental highways in Middle Western states, it was announced by Harvey Toy, chairman of the state highway commission, on his return from a conference at Washington, D. C.

Western congressional representatives will center their activities on the Victory highway across Utah and Nevada and entering California by the Truckee river canyon; the Arrowhead Trail across Utah and Nevada into Los Angeles; the Oregon Trail across Wyoming and Idaho, and the National Highway across Arizona and New Mexico.

Hiccoughs 48 Hours, Result Not Serious

LODI, Jan. 1.—Barring an extreme tenderness in his throat, due to a sudden attack of hiccupping at the rate of five times a minute for forty-eight hours, Contractor E. L. French is little the worse for his strange experience.

This morning he took nourishment and spoke for the first time in two days.

The attack came on without warning and it is estimated that French hiccupped 15,000 times during the forty-eight hour period.

Injured Knee Peril to Athlete's Tryouts

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 1.—Injuries received in the Syracuse-Pittsburgh football clash in New York last October threaten to keep Chester Bowman, Orange flash, from the American Olympic team. Healing of an injury to his knee—Bowman badly tore it in the game with the Panthers—is essential if Bowman is to compete in the Olympic tryouts. To give his protege every opportunity for Olympic competition, Coach Tom Keane, of the Orange track forces, has directed Bowman to remain out of indoor track work. Since Bowman helped win every race with the championship Syracuse quartet last year his speed is sure to be missed this season.

Venetian Gondola To Face Flivver Peril

VENICE, Jan. 1.—The age-old Venetian gondola is threatened by the "flivver."

For centuries Venice has been approachable only by gondola, hence motor-cars and horse-drawn vehicles have been unknown in the streets of Venice.

Now a project has been undertaken for joining Venice to the mainland by a bridge. This will make Venice available to motor-cars and will probably cut in upon the romantic business of the gondoliers.

The proposed bridge will be nearly two miles long and will cost about $1,500,000. It is expected to take three years for its completion.

The question of the bridge has been the subject of a feud for the last century. The sentimentalists and the artists have argued against the bridge, but now the bridge is a certainty.

KEEP Glendale Clean

To the commercial, civic, social and religious organizations that have made possible the Glendale of today, we extend greetings and congratulations.

A great work has been accomplished, but the door of opportunity is now flung wide to Glendale and when the news is flashed abroad on January 8 that she has voted sufficient bonds for an adequate sewer system, this city will have taken the greatest forward step in her history.

Glendale Must Have a Sewer System!

After the bonds are passed let's take up the matter, seriously, of making Glendale the most beautiful city in Southern California which, translated, means in the world. Plant pepper trees, palms and geraniums until our residential streets are bowers of lace-like greenery spotted with that riot of color which commands the attention of all. Unity of purpose—co-operation—will cause Glendale to stand out in 1924 like the sun on a cloudless day.

These personalities give a composite spirit of art, business, professional ability, humanitarian interest and spiritual development that is to create an uplifting and peace-giving atmosphere to the institution, to be known worldwide.

On Fine Tract

The new building is located on a tract of thirty acres of land. Oak, walnut and various kinds of fruit trees are already thriving on the property and furnish attractive surroundings for the sanitarium. The building is located on the highest part of the acreage and a winding concrete road, arched by native oak trees, leads up to the main entrance, facing to the south and west.

The main building is 415 feet long and three stories high on the wings and four stories in the center. There are 131 private outside rooms, each with private lavatory and toilet, and several with private baths.

Through the main entrance on the first floor one enters a large lobby, and directly back of that is a large parlor, dining room and kitchen. On the second floor there will be accommodations for the nurses. The dining room will accommodate 150 persons and commands a wonderful view of Sycamore canyon and the Pasadena mountains in the background.

High Efficiency

Back of the main building are two smaller buildings of two stories each. One building is known as the hydrotherapy building and the other as the medical building. Back of these is the laundry building.

The hydrotherapy building is 46 by 152 feet and is to be equipped for all kinds of baths and treatments for both men and women. On the ground floor there will be additional accommodations for nurses and an assembly room.

In the medical building there will be doctors' offices and waiting rooms on the first floor and on the second floor laboratories and a small operating room. On the ground floor of this building there will be more accommodations for nurses.

Both buildings are connected to the main hall of the main building.

In the main building there are three elevators, two for passenger service and one for freight. The buildings are of Class A construction with steel, brick and concrete used. The exterior finish is brick. A splendid system of steam heat will be used.

In the interior, pine doors with mahogany panels have been used, and mahogany bases in the rooms. The floors are cement and are to be covered with carpet.

The approximate cost of $550,000 covers only the construction; the furnishings and equipment are to be extra. The architect, construction superintendent and supervising board have co-operated most loyally and trips have been made far and near to visit other institutions with a view to receiving new and valuable ideas.

Arthur Campbell, Pioneer Here, Predicts City to Have More Development

Glendale, according to Arthur Campbell, has passed the experimental stage and is destined to become a large city—and Mr. Campbell should know, for he has been intimately identified with the city practically from its inception, residing here for the past twenty-one years and having been at all times a leading factor in its development.

Reporting from his office at 110-A East Broadway, Arthur Campbell, realtor, states that he has sold during the past twelve months 136 pieces of property, thirty-one of which were residences, ranging in price from $3,200 to $36,000, twenty-one of which were business property and the balance home-sites and acreage.

Has Many Friends

Mr. Campbell attributes this volume of business largely to his intimate personal following, a considerable circle of friends and patrons who have always connected with him with square dealing, and with the fact that his long residence here and intimate knowledge of affairs makes him very conversant and accurate with real estate values in Glendale and vicinity.

Mr. Campbell believes that installing the sewer system will mark the beginning of a new era of development for Glendale, of greater magnitude than has ever before been experienced. He believes that the lack of a sewerage system has retarded the building program of the city to a great extent, especially among the larger type of business houses, hotels and apartments. He points with pride to the $600,000 new high school building, the $500,000 hospital, the new six-story bank building on the corner of Brand and Broadway, the many imposing business blocks and the hundreds of fine residences that have been erected here the past twelve months.

Future Assured

The credit for Glendale being "the fastest growing city in America," Mr. Campbell attributes chiefly to the activities of the local Chamber of Commerce, the Realty board and the local newspapers. Judicious advertising is just as essential to the growth of a city, he thinks, as it is to the growth of a business concern, and yet with all these factors at work, he realizes that the very best advertising Glendale receives lies in her matchless climate, her wonderful location and her high class of citizenship.

At the rate that good citizens from all parts of the United States are locating here and building permanent homes, Mr. Campbell feels that the future of the city is assured and that the fastest part of its growth will be from now on.

Just now he is witnessing the completion of his own splendid residence at Campbell Heights, an inspiring location that commands an unobstructed view of the entire city and surrounding country, from which vantage point he hopes to view during 1924 a growth such as Glendale has never before seen.

What the world needs is unvarnished food and the unvarnished truth.

present hospital will be maintained at the present place, the southeast corner of East Wilson avenue and North Kenwood street. At a later date it is planned to build a hospital building adjoining the new sanitarium.

Reports Activity

The Stewart Realty company, realtors, 214 Lawson building, corner North Brand boulevard and Wilson avenue, reports sale of considerable Brand boulevard property during 1923.

Mrs. S. B. Stewart, proprietor of this company, was formerly located at 219 East Broadway. She specializes in sale of homes, yet is interested in a number of business and industrial properties as well. Commenting on prospects for 1924, she states that she has never seen a time when things looked as favorable for the realty business.

"On a recent trip to Washington and Oregon," says Mrs. Stewart, "I found everywhere the desire to sell out and come to southern California. If only a small percentage of those desirous of getting south should actually come, the entire southwest would become thickly populated overnight! And this same condition exists all over the United States. I can, therefore, see nothing but continued and increasing prosperity for this section of the country, and particularly Glendale, so favorably located."

On Mrs. Stewart's sales staff are Mrs. Lue B. Nichols, who is building a flat on West Windsor road, and C. H. Packer, who comes from Oregon, where he was with the public service commission.

ANNIVERSARY OF FIRM OBSERVED

Dietrich Realty Company Is Year Old; Handles Many Important Deals

The Dietrich Realty company, realtors, 133 1/2 South Brand boulevard, celebrate today their first anniversary. Though only an infant in the Glendale real estate business, this firm reports for the 1923 sale of well over $1,000,000 worth of property, which they feel is just cause for celebration.

Mrs. E. R. Dietrich, the original owner, married last June Perry E. Gaskill of Ogden, Utah, who bought a half-interest in the company and is now a co-partner with Mrs. Gaskill in the work of this successful organization.

Associated with the owners is a corps of efficient salesmen, amongst whom are John A. Fisher, Fred L. Perry, C. W. Wilcox and Mrs. E. T. Crosswell.

Pleasant Relations

Commenting on the year's business, Mrs. Gaskill says: "The most satisfactory feature of the whole year has been the pleasant relations that have been established between the firm and its clients. Once a buyer has been sold, he brings his friends and relatives to have their needs filled, and they, in turn, bring theirs, and so the chain seems endless. When we have a customer we absolutely forget about possible commissions and we try to find for him exactly what he wants for the most reasonable price possible. We have not, during the past year, received a single complaint after a deal was closed, that anyone has been misled, or had bought undesirable property or paid too much."

"A satisfied customer is a joy to any conscientious salesman's heart, and is the best advertisement any real estate firm can have. Glendale residents are buying Glendale property. This fact alone should be enough to satisfy any easterner that Glendale property is a safe, sane investment."

"We firmly believe that, with the sewers assured, our business city will number 100,000 citizens by January 1, 1928."

Black Currant Bush Is Menace to Trees

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 1.—War on the black currant bush as a menace to the forests of California was declared by federal and state officials and representatives of lumber interests at a conference held in the offices of the State Department of Agriculture. The black currant bush is accused of transmitting the white pine blister rust to forest trees and in the state of Washington, it is reported to have spread the disease from one end of the state to the other.

G. H. Hecke, chief of the state department of agriculture, said that while the state maintains a strict quarantine against importation of current and gooseberry bushes, the mere presence of such bushes invites the disease.

J. C. Sherer, City Treasurer And Pioneer Resident Here, Writes About 'Days of Past'

One of the best posted men in Glendale on the city's development is J. C. Sherer, pioneer, former newspaperman and now city treasurer. Mr. Sherer recently published a large, illustrated volume on "Glendale and Vicinity," it containing many facts of interest. When The Glendale Evening News issued a special edition on March 1, 1923, in celebration of its tenth anniversary, Mr. Sherer wrote an article entitled, "The Glendale of Ten Years Ago." It is reproduced herewith in full:

By J. C. SHERER
Glendale City Treasurer.

A decade in the life of a community in this age of generation, when the world is moving at a speed that the old globe never before attained, may work great transformations. That the ten years just ending has done this in the case of Glendale, becomes apparent to any one who will simply stop for a while and watch the procession of events rush by.

Indeed, one might go further, and assert that the period mentioned, has been fraught with more significance in the life of the whole world than any other period of similar brevity in the record of universal history. And yet, if out of this period we should be able to take that very considerable portion covered by the great world war, and substitute an equal number of years of world peace, would the result add to or take from the sum of the things achieved? Perhaps the change in Glendale is simply of degree and not of kind. The quality of our people has not changed; increasing numbers have brought no new element essential to progress, and, fortunately, none that has tended to retard it.

Progressive Success

As a progressive people builded in the beginning, so have their progressive successors in ever increasing numbers, continued the building under favoring conditions supplied by nature, as they have been, now are and as we fervently hope they may continue in the decade now beginning and in those to follow.

The estimated population of Glendale in 1913 was 6,000 people. The city was in the midst of a charter election; that instrument having been framed by a committee of freeholders, was being discussed in the press, in mass meetings and between citizens all over the city. In a short time it came to an issue at the polls and was rejected, for a period of eight years, as it proved, for the one under which the city is now working is not radically different. As we glance over the papers of that date, the impression is received that the people used the columns of the local newspaper in which to express themselves in regard to matters of local importance more than they do today. It had just been decided that the city would allow Andrew Carnegie to donate Glendale the sum of $12,500 for a library. It strikes the reader of the issue of the same paper in which this decision is announced, that the citizen who writes favoring the rejection of Mr. Carnegie's gift, need not have worried about it on account of the rising or any other generation, for, as a matter of fact, but few of Glendale's people ever give the donor the tribute of a thought, as they enjoy the fruits of his favor.

The assessment roll of the city in 1913 gave Glendale a valuation of $3,643,685. This has been multiplied about six times by our most recent assessment valuation. The city lighting department had been functioning since 1909, and had about 1,800 consumers. The question of municipal water was being debated, but did not materialize into city ownership until two years later.

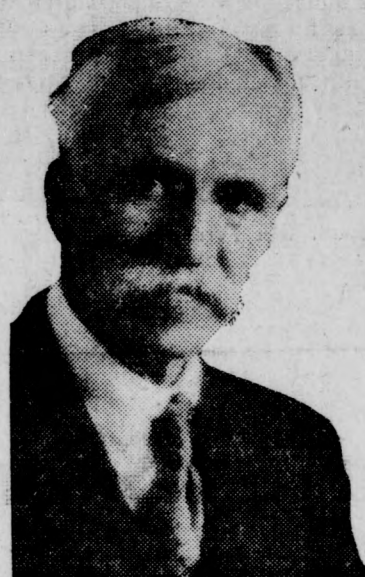

Real Estate Market

There was considerable doing in real estate, the market being considerably better in fact than it became a little later, as a period of inaction set in shortly afterward which lasted until after the close of the war. Messrs. Jones and Evans had just bought eight lots on Brand boulevard north of the Country Clubhouse, for a consideration of about $16,000. The best corner lots on Broadway were worth not over $4,000. The Peckham building on Broadway, corner of Isabel street, had just been completed. J. H. Flower was starting a brick block on Broadway, west of Brand. The park question was being considered, various citizens expressing themselves on the subject in the columns of the two weekly papers then existing. The subject seems to have been made a live one by a park committee of the Tuesday Afternoon club. The favorite plan appears to have favored four small parks in different portions of the city.

Reverting to real estate, the town site of Montrose had its opening on Washington's birthday, 1913. The First National bank building on the corner of Broadway and Brand was in course of construction, to cost $13,000, and it is Glendale's first three-story building. The Central avenue school building had been contracted for at a cost of $12,000.

Lively C. of C.

There was a lively Chamber of Commerce functioning, although it was, of course, a small concern compared with the one that Glendale boasts of today. The News of that day was located in a small frame building on Glendale avenue north of Broadway. The proprietor had been conducting it as a weekly newspaper for six years, in competition for the most of the time with another weekly publication located on the other side of town. It had a very fair subscription list and was well established. But the time had come when it should pass into the hands of another who was ready to take up the work and carry it into a wider field of usefulness, and as it passed, on March 1, 1913, into the possession of the present proprietor of the paper, who has established it in quarters that suggest, only by contrast, the humble surroundings in which he found it.

In January of 1913, Southern California had a "cold spell," such as had not been experienced here for many years, resulting in serious damage to the citrus crop. The Iowa papers were commenting on it with a spirit of commiseration that was beautiful to see. In appreciation of the efforts of the eastern editors, the editor of the News of an issue of January, 1913, perpetrated the following:

My Frosted Friend from Iowa.

A man blew in from Iowa; the bloom upon his nose; he showed plainly that quite recently that organ had been froze. An ulcer of tremendous size his body front encased. A fur cap with the earflaps down upon his head was placed; The arctic in his hobbling feet were number twenty-one— And if I lie an inch in this I'd better not be run. For I do love the world of truth and from it rarely swerve. The I confess that Iowan did get upon my nerve. I noticed by his halting gait that tender were his toes. "Quoth I, 'What is the matter, sir?' He simply answered 'Froze.' He brought an orange at a stand— no sooner did he close His hand upon the pesky fruit than I, and to myself I said, 'I guess my friend from Iowa has taken to his bed. Or else that freezing turn of his has gone into his groin. And they have postpaid him. In ice, back to Des Moines. And then one day I came on him out in a sunny place. A frozen orange in his hand and heavy in his face. Said I to him, 'Good sir, reflect, those oranges are froze.' Says he, 'Young man, I've bought this place, here where this orange grows; I'd rather have the frost in it than have it in my toes.' J. C. S.

EXTEND AREA OF FIRM'S BUSINESS

Hardwood Floors Installed In Many Buildings By Glendale Concern

Many big jobs have been done by the Glendale Hardwood Flooring company, in the three years they have been located at 304 East Broadway, reports H. E. Wilson, who, with his brother, Sam Wilson, has built up this prosperous business.

Not only in Glendale but in Los Angeles, Huntington Park and other surrounding communities the company has put in hardwood floors for apartments, bungalow courts, office buildings and private residences.

Among the large jobs completed in Glendale during 1923 are the Lawson building at Wilson avenue and Brand boulevard, the Burn-Davis building at Broadway and Maryland avenue, the Dorcas street and Columbus avenue schools, and the Burton apartments at Central and Park avenues.

Important Jobs

Other jobs reported include floors at 575 and 579 South street, for E. P. Ranson; 1447 Cleveland street, 1437 North Columbus avenue and 618, 621, 630 and 634 West Pioneer drive, for Nelson Brothers; the T. D. Meddick home at 1520 Ridgeway drive; a duplex at 321 Stocker street and a residence on Virginia avenue, just off Kenneth road, for Dick Michels; a residence at 1431 North Pacific avenue and three houses on Hill avenue, Eagle Rock, for H. A. Michel; an apartment at 128 East Lomita avenue, for Ike Klein; and a number of schools and other structures for Elmer Elliott, Jan Groen and other contractors.

These creditable jobs establish the Glendale Hardwood Flooring company as a leader in this field in Glendale and show the proprietors, H. E. and Sam Wilson, to enjoy the confidence of builders big and small.

HELPS IRONER

To lessen the labor of ironing a spring attachment for ironing boards that helps lift the weight of flatirons has been invented.

Bentley Lumber Company Is Factor In Commercial Development of Glendale

Keeping pace with the growth of Glendale, the Bentley Lumber company, 460 West Los Feliz road, is an important factor in the building and development of this city. Established here ten years ago, the company today operates one of the largest lumber yards in Southern California.

Starting with a one-team delivery system, this company has grown until today its deliveries call for the use of eight motor trucks, which may be said to epitomize the growth of the firm better than in any other way. The concern started in 1914 after purchasing the business of the Valley Lumber company, continuing operations under the firm name of Bentley-Schoeneman Lumber company. This name was used until the Schoeneman interests were acquired by John Bentley and sons, who now conduct the firm under its present name.

John Bentley is the president; J. Ray Bentley, vice president and general manager; Roger Bentley, second vice president and yard superintendent, and George H. Bentley, treasurer.

Use Modern Methods

Modern methods of the Bentley Lumber company in handling materials are in evidence by the use of a tractor and eleven specially designed lumber conveyors. Lumber is loaded from the railroad cars to the conveyors which is then removed by the tractor to the proper place of piling.

Deliveries are placed on the conveyor by expert loaders, which in turn are removed by the tractor to the proper place of piling.

Deliveries are placed on the conveyor by expert loaders, which in turn are removed by the tractor to an automatic hoist which lifts the lumber into the air. Huge trucks are then driven under the load, the lumber lowered and sent on its way to the job.

The company's plant covers a three-acre site, and the stocks that are carried on hand seldom vary more than a few thousand feet from the 2,000,000 feet which they try to keep on hand in order to be sure of meeting all demands that are made. The Bentley Lumber company has an investment here of over $350,000 and carries seventy-five men on the payroll.

The sources of the company's lumber supply are in Oregon and Washington, where they buy their stocks from saw mills. This permits of freedom from any restrictions which might be imposed upon them if they were to purchase all stocks through one channel. It also permits them to choose when they go on the open market and to take advantage of the competition, it is pointed out by the company officials.

Dry In Own Kilns

All finish lumber at the Bentley Lumber company is dried in their own kiln. Unusual care and treatment are used by this company in handling its finish lumber.

One department in which the firm specializes is that of furnishing plans and expert advice to home builders, maintaining a service department which is charged with this duty alone. The management points out that the firm is not in the building business, but the service department is in position.

Landon Heights Full Sized Lots Offer Homeseekers Every Facility of City

In offering Landon Heights to the public of Glendale and surrounding territory, H. N. Landon of 213 West Broadway, well known subdivider of Grande Vista, associates his name with what he considers one of the finest medium-priced tracts in Southern California.

Landon Heights is located in La Crescenta, on Ramsdell avenue between Honolulu and Michigan avenues, and offers just 100 lots, all sixty feet frontage and full sized, many of which have already been sold. Each lot is covered with fine bearing grapevines.

"We are selling these fine lots on terms that will move them almost overnight," says Mr. Landon. "Prices range from $700 up on terms of $50 and $100 down and $15 per month. These terms include improvements and reasonable restrictions have been placed on the property, to ensure good medium-priced homes."

Offer Fine View

"The lots are all level and offer a panoramic view of the La Crescenta and La Canada valleys that is unexcelled, while many of the lots overlook Los Angeles and offer a view of the ocean. Here in these high, healthful hills, on large, level lots, a community of average homes will be built, close to street cars and to the business center, schools and other essentials of city life, yet serenely remote from the noise and dust of the city.

"No fogs, moreover, reach Units 2 and 3 of Grande Vista, which makes the property particularly desirable. No more delightful place for children can be imagined. And trails lead almost from the doors off into the green Verdugo and La Crescenta hills. The Oakmont, Flintridge and Sunset Canyon Country clubs are all within easy reach, and Los Angeles street, the new boulevard, goes by within a few feet, while Michigan avenue, that great thoroughfare connecting Pasadena and San Fernando, via the foothills, is right at hand.

Adjoins Big Estate

"Unit 3 adjoins the million-acre estate of Bissell, the carpet-sweeper king, and Unit 2 adjoins the La Crescenta school. From every angle this property is superior and is bound to sell fast. We selected it with the same care we exercised in choosing Grande Vista proper, the high-class Moun-

1924—Greetings

Health, homes, happiness and prosperity in California are our paramount blessings and when all are enjoyed in the city of Glendale the gift is supreme.

For Glendale claims a choice location in that western land of sunshine and flowers that lured the pioneers across the plains in '49.

The passing years have held many treasures in store for the thriving little community near the rolling Verdugo Hills, and today Glendale is synonymous with civic progress and pride, moral and spiritual development, scenic beauty, educational advancement and thrift.

In the heart of Glendale's Business Section is located our Realty and Insurance office, and we are justly proud of the part we have had in the building up and promotion of this section of Southern California during the past 28 years.

Have I Done My Share?

DID I DO MY PART IN 1923?

Glendale building permits in the year just closing reached the enormous total of more than $10,000,000. Can this record be duplicated anywhere in the United States?

In 1923 I constructed over $100,000 worth of buildings on San Fernando Boulevard. But listen, IN 1924 I WILL PUT UP MORE THAN $200,000 WORTH OF BUSINESS AND INDUSTRIAL STRUCTURES along that highway. These will be located principally, in the Central Manufacturing district which centers around the corner of Pacific avenue and San Fernando boulevard. The construction of these buildings will mean unheard of real estate value increases. It will result in thousands of gold dollars being poured into the pockets of those who purchase property in that section NOW.

Glendale Needs Industries. I need capital. I have sold every building erected by me on San Fernando boulevard, that I wanted to sell, before it was finished. This city must have manufactures but she has no one to adequately finance them. I have had to finance this Central Industrial district alone, and can only erect industrial and commercial plants as I sell. I invite the people of Glendale and surrounding territory to get in and share the profits with me. I cannot supply the demand that comes to me for industrial plants. I have applications from industrial concerns to fill twenty-five buildings RIGHT NOW—and others are coming in daily. Come down and help me provide Glendale with a payroll. I know I can make quick, absolutely certain money for you.

In December, 1922, I offered a profit of 33 1-3 per cent to the investors who bought property through my office in the Central Industrial section during that year. Did I have any takers to this offer? I DID NOT! Why? Because some lots in that section increased FOUR HUNDRED PER CENT in that short twelve months. All of them doubled in value.

I am going to repeat this offer for those who bought property from me in that section this year. For the next thirty days I will buy, at an increase of 33 1-3 per cent., any lots in this industrial district purchased through my office in 1923. Bring in your property.

Do you know why I make this offer? I will tell you. I make it because I know—ABSOLUTELY KNOW—that no one buying property in that section this year would take an increase of 33 1-3 per cent on their investment. These buyers would not consider such an increase. Better get in and secure a few of these easy earned "iron dollars."

A little study will show you the value of San Fernando boulevard property. When you look beneath the "surface" you find hidden values that you never dreamed existed. I can tell you facts that will open your eyes—that will set you to thinking—that will compel you to cast your lot with me. Don't give this industrial section "snap judgment." Don't take anyone's word for it. Come down and let me actually "show" you.

San Fernando boulevard runs through the very heart of Glendale. It is the heaviest travelled state highway in Southern California. The Central Industrial section is the best lighted thoroughfare in Glendale RIGHT NOW. Within a year this boulevard will be a brilliant WHITE WAY from city limit to city limit. The widening of San Fernando boulevard is assured. The paving of this thoroughfare from curb to curb after being widened, is inevitable.

Mr. Investor, do all these facts mean anything to you? They are just a few of the improvements that are to be made, but they should set you to thinking. A careful consideration cannot help but show you that when these improvements are made your bank account will grow enormously—if you buy RIGHT NOW in Central Industrial district.

I have made money for myself and also for dozens of investors. And I have no intention of quitting now. When I came to Glendale two years ago I saw the possibilities of the San Fernando boulevard district. I still believe in Glendale, especially in San Fernando boulevard—and enthusiastically the Central Industrial portion.

I am going to open 1924 making money for myself and my clients, and I'm going to continue to make it every day throughout the entire twelve months. If you want to make money let's travel together.

My appeal is your opportunity.

Business Chiefs Look for New Year to Be Sound, Even Better Than Past One; Give Reasons for Optimistic Outlook

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—America faces one of its greatest post-war business years in 1924. A majority of business leaders look for "continued improvement" over 1923, regarded generally as a good year. The most pessimistic prediction looks to the new year with "conservative optimism."

This is the consensus compiled by International News Service from bankers, merchants and manufacturers from coast to coast. Business barometers cited in proof of the hopeful view are the conditions of stocks, the building boom, improvements and additions to railroad equipment, increased savings deposits, a rush for life insurance, sound employment conditions and the vastly improved conditions of the American farmer.

The steel industry is conceded to be the most reliable "business barometer."

Good in 1923, Better in 1924, Belief

Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, found business good in 1923.

"I look for it to be even better in 1924," he said. "There are no limits to the possibility of industry and business in the United States. American prosperity has by no means touched the highwater mark."

A similar note is sounded by James H. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, who believes America is "over-emphasizing the troubles of Europe."

"So far as America is concerned," he said, "there has been a constantly improving situation in business and I look for this to continue."

Daniel J. Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, is "highly encouraged" by 1924 prospects for the railroads. He does not expect freight tonnage to equal that of 1923—the record of American transportation history.

"We can hardly expect the country to do a great export business while present disturbed conditions in Europe continue," he said.

Retail Trade Will Excel Past Year

Thomas E. Wilson, Chicago packer, said: "We will have prosperity in 1924. Good business will prevail, provided business men give it an opportunity and continue to sound an optimistic note."

"Retail trade for 1924 will greatly exceed that of 1923, which was 20 to 25 per cent better than in 1923," declared Thomas May of (Continued on page 4)

Huge Increase In Realty Transfers Compared to 1922

Real estate transfers in Southern California increased $506,684,000 in 1923, as compared with 1922, as indicated by sales of documentary stamps in the Internal Revenue office, according to a statement made by Collector Rex Goodell.

Total sales of documentary stamps for the calendar year were $1,403,607, as compared with $896,923 for 1922. Deducting from this total the stamps used for other purposes than real estate transfers, the sales of stamps for the latter purpose only indicate that the real estate transfers for 1923 reached the staggering sum of $1,367,607,000, as against $860,923,000 in 1922.

Sales of stamps of all classes for 1923 were $2,009,967, which, compared with a total of $1,444,829 for 1922 shows an increase of $565,138, or 39 per cent. "Sales of documentary and other classes of revenue stamps are a sure barometer of business conditions," said Collector Goodell. "Their use is required on business transactions of many kinds and when the sales of stamps increases, business necessarily must advance, for no one is buying revenue stamps for the fun of it."

Collector Goodell, in referring to the wonderful growth of Southern California, as indicated by revenue receipts, called attention to the fact that the stamp sales alone for 1923 were greater than the entire receipts of the Southern California revenue district for 1914, and that stamp sales were only 4 per cent of the total receipts of the Southern California district for 1923.

Railroads Big Factor In Continuing Prosperity And Confidence

By R. E. KELLEY
Executive Department, Southern Pacific Company.

In general business 1923 has been a good year and the same general prosperity should continue through 1924. The railroads have been called upon to move the greatest volume of business in the history of the country, and the public are in accord upon the fact that it has been moved by the railroads in a way that responds to the business wants of the people for fair despatch.

When the railroads earn money by their services, it is distributed back again among the people in wages and in payment for rolling stock, material for upkeep and expansion and for general supplies. The railroads in 1923 have devoted immense sums, amounting to some one thousand three hundred millions of dollars, to the buying of locomotives, passenger train cars, freight train cars, roadway and other machinery, shops and shop tools. These large expenditures have played an important part in the prosperity of the country, for they affect every line of business and every kind of production.

If the railroads were only permitted to do their work in confidence that they could go ahead in a business-like way without new and unknown legislation intended to change the basis for their doing business, that condition of confidence would probably be the greatest aid to the continuance of prosperity. Every man of business knows that if the rules under which he does business are subject to change, or (Continued on page 4)

PUBLIC DEBT RETIRES IN 30 YEARS

U. S. Treasury's Estimate Is Given as Proof Of Startling Claim

By H. K. REYNOLDS
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—About the best news the American taxpayer has received from the Federal government recently was the announcement of Gerrard B. Winston, assistant secretary of the treasury, that in less than thirty years most of the public debt of the United States—now running well over $22,000,000,000—would be substantially retired.

Winston's announcement takes on added significance when it is pointed out that approximately one-third of the money collected by the government in taxes each year goes to pay the interest on that big debt. If the treasury's calculations are correct, and they have been made under the direction of Secretary Mellon himself, the public debt of this country in 1953 will be very small in comparison to the present figures; and the way will be definitely opened for a considerable reduction in federal taxation.

Before the World War the public debt totaled only about $1,000,000,000. There were some 2 per cent bonds maturing in 1930, a 4 per cent loan of 1930, and certain Panama Canal bonds then outstanding. The public debt jumped at the beginning of the war, and the peak was reached in August, 1919, when the figure was more than $26,500,000,000. The last treasury statement put the debt at $22,100,000,000, consisting of $1,000,000,000 of pre-war debt, nearly $15,000,000,000 of 4 per cent Liberty Bonds, $760,000,000 of 4½ per cent Treasury Bonds of 1947-52, $4,000,000,000 of Treasury certificates maturing in less than a (Continued on page 4)

Glendale's Wealth Per Capita Puts City Far Ahead

From a financial standpoint there are few cities in Southern California so favorably situated as Glendale.

With resources totaling $14,000,000 in eight strong banks each person in the 50,000 population would be able to claim $280 as an average share in liquid wealth of the city.

The assessed valuation of property here is within a few thousand dollars of $22,000, or $440 per capita, according to the Glendale tax roll.

10 MILLION DOLLARS

Past ten million dollars in building permits for the year of 1923, Glendale will, city officials say, start out the new year with new construction prospects and the building mark for 1924 will keep the community in the front rank.

OUTLOOK EXCELLENT

The outlook for big business on the Pacific coast is excellent. Southern California will, of course, continue to be the big white spot in the glare of prosperity and Glendale will set new records.

WELL EXPERIENCED

The people are indeed fortunate in that the various financial institutions of the community are headed and officered by men of long banking experience. They are capable of giving expert advice on investments.

Model and Modern Institutions Here Show Great Prosperity of People; Clearing House Is Now Under Way

By GIL A. COWAN
Of The Evening News Staff.

Glendale bank resources approximate $14,000,000! Such was the astounding information compiled by The Glendale Evening News from a recapitulation of the deposits, capital, surplus, undivided profits and permanent improvements of eight strong financial institutions which have been built here.

And this great figure does not include the total resources of the parent institutions of the Security Trust & Savings and the two Pacific-Southwest banks which operate here. Other local banks are the First National bank in Glendale, the Glendale State bank, the Glendale Savings bank, the Federal Commercial & Savings bank and the Community Savings bank.

Highly Experienced
The Security Trust succeeded the old First National bank of Glendale a little over a year ago while the Pacific-Southwest had previously purchased the old Bank of Glendale on Glendale avenue and its Brand boulevard branch. It was in the First National bank and the Bank of Glendale that practically all of Glendale's present financial chieftains obtained their valuable experience which now is serving the city well.

Not alone in the soundness of the banks financially do they reflect credit upon Glendale, but their model and modern institutions which are described in other columns are matters of civic pride. Hardly a month passes without some important major building improvement being announced by one of Glendale's banks and the past week has seen the opening of the remodeled quarters of the Glendale avenue branch of the Pacific-Southwest.

To Open Branch

The Federal Commercial & Savings bank will open a branch on East Broadway early this year while the Security will go into their new home, a six-story structure at the corner of Broadway and Brand boulevard. The First National in Glendale has building plans under way.

The Glendale Clearing House association began functioning on December 11, 1922, and indicative of the growth of Glendale their report on the total checks going through local banks December 18 to 24, 1923, as compared with the same period of 1922 is most gratifying. The Christmas week's business this past year showed $3,082,043.82 clearings as compared with $1,864,010.47 the year before, or a gain of $1,218,033.35.

FINANCE COMPANY LUSTY YOUNGSTER

Organization Four Months of Age Makes Good Showing
In Short Time

Lon Baird, Max Green and J. F. Lilly are wearing happy faces today. Their new "four months old baby," as they term the Valley Mortgage & Finance company, "has two new teeth," as they express it, which is just another way of saying that the company declared today two dividends—8 per cent on its preferred and 6 per cent on its common stock.

Explaining how this is possible, Mr. Baird states:

"We have a low overhead. I am drawing no salary for the first year, and both Mr. Lilly and Mr. Green are giving the company their full time at extremely reasonable salaries. Either of them could draw much better pay with other connections if they were willing to take a salaried position. We have in these men a very competent management for the loan department. Both have had a long and successful experience in business, just the kind of experience that fits into our particular business, and they are handling it well.

Loans Secured

"In the second place, we make no unsecured loans. There is good sound value back of every loan, and by reason of the short time most of these loans run we get an attractive return on the money.

"We also make some very satisfactory loans that the banks, by reason of their inexperience, do not care for, as for example, private loans on automobiles."

Both Mr. Green and Mr. Lilly are thoroughly trained in auto finance, and these loans are amply secured by the notes of the borrowers, by the autos, and by adequate insurance against loss by fire, theft, confiscation and embezzlement.

"Our principal business is the discounting of gilt-edge mortgages and trust deeds so as to yield handsome returns, but we have in mind at all times safety first, and dividends afterwards," said Mr. Green.

Insurance Branch

Asked concerning the insurance branch of the business, Mr. Baird was even more enthusiastic, he being the manager of this department. Inquiry elicited the fact that the company has over $2,000,000 of insurance risks on its books, yielding enough profit to take care of all overhead expense, and a considerable part of the salary expense.

It is not strange, therefore, that this new company should so quickly enter the dividend ranks, both as to its preferred and common stock.

The company has a comfortable

He was first associated with the First National bank of this city, in the capacity of vice-president. When the Security Trust & Savings bank of Los Angeles took over that institution as its Glendale branch, Mr. Kitterman became vice-president of the large institution, and manager of the local branch.

Golden State Building Loan Association Proves Big Help In City Growth

By CHARLES N. ELDER

Manager Golden State Building Loan Association

Much has been said about the wonderful growth of Glendale. So much has been said, in fact, that the publicity and advertising is causing people to come here in increasing numbers. It is predicted that we will have the greatest influx in population this winter that Glendale has ever had. This means that we should build more homes at once and have them ready to sell to these people when they come.

There is an appalling need for more homes. Not apartments and bungalow courts, but four, five and six room modern, well-built, single residence homes, built on lots at least fifty feet wide. One family living comfortably in its own home is a greater asset to Glendale than two families crowded into small rented apartments.

A rented apartment can never be a real home in the highest and truest sense of the word. A community composed of renting tenants always lacks the highest type of patriotism and civic pride.

Make it possible for a man to procure a home he can call his own, and at once he becomes a better citizen. He acquires new respect and dignity for himself and his fellowman; he is steadier and more dependable and immediately takes an active interest in the welfare of his community and assists in its upbuilding. The home is the fountain source from which flows the purest patriotism, the noblest endeavors and the most unselfish and efficient service. In fact, it has been truly said that the American home is the safeguard of American liberty. Therefore, all practical encouragement and assistance should be given the man who wants to build his own home.

Strength to Community—The Golden State Building Loan association is helping to finance many new homes in Glendale. A great many investors have added to the fund, co-operating in the true Glendale spirit of boosting for the city's growth. The company is specializing in single residence loans, and is instrumental in bringing many people to Glendale, and in developing the cooperation of all public-spirited citizens. Thoughtful people are coming more and more to appreciate that in this type of financial institution is found the most potent and efficient plan of saving and borrowing.

Remember that a building loan association, like a bank, has two sides to it; the investing or depositing side and the borrowing side. Many people think of a building loan association only as a place to BORROW money, while in fact it is the safest known place to DEPOSIT money with the highest rate of interest obtainable and yet have your money where you can get it when you need it.

Building loan associations gather up the savings of small investors and lend them safely and profitably. Thus habits of thrift and economy are instilled and encouraged and the practical results of these habits—the accumulated savings—are loaned to build more homes, adding wealth to the community and fostering a patriotic and home-loving citizenship.

CHARLES N. ELDER

Constructive Ideals

Any institution that hopes to succeed must have constructive ideals. It must give the investors a good return on their money, which must be used to benefit the greatest number of people in the community that it serves. Therefore, no institution in the world could be any better calculated to deserve the confidence of the people than the Golden State Building Loan Association. In its fundamental principles and the application of its functions it commends itself as absolutely reliable and the most practical system by which men, women and children can easily provide for their future by laying aside a little each month against the time unforeseen and unknown; an institution which is devoting its resources and endeavors in providing homes and reserve funds for the people is rendering a great service to humanity, the value and influence of which can only be measured by the history of future generations.

Your money deposited in the Golden State Building Loan Association does more than earn six per cent interest for you. It helps to make possible the building of more homes, more work for the building trades, more business for Glendale's merchants, more growth for the city and more prosperity for everyone who lives here.

BANK'S NEW HOME SHOWS PROGRESS

Security's Building Will Be Monument to Growth of Institution

One of the milestones which mark the year 1923 as of special significance in the history of Glendale has been the erection of the new building of the Glendale branch of the Security Trust & Savings bank at Brand boulevard and Broadway. Six stories high, fully modern in construction, it is built of steel, concrete, brick and terra cotta. The building would be a credit to Los Angeles or to any other large city.

The new building, which the branch will occupy early in 1924, covers an area of 86 by 89 feet. The entire lower floor, except the building lobby, will be occupied by the bank. There will be a large and completely appointed safe deposit department in the basement. The five upper stories have been divided into modern offices, many of which have been applied for by the business and professional men of Glendale. The exterior of the building is of terra cotta; the interior trimming in solid mahogany, and the bank's quarters will be in marble, mahogany and bronze, giving to Glendale a bank with a spacious and strikingly handsome interior.

Policy of Bank

The uniform policy of the Security bank is to promote the growth and prosperity of every community in which it has a branch, and in Glendale this policy has resulted in a very strong growth. The total deposits of the Glendale branch at the beginning of the year were just over $2,205,000, while at the end of the year the total exceeded $3,500,000, a gain in one year of nearly 60 per cent. Prior to its merger with the Security organization, the branch, then the First National Bank of Glendale, was the oldest and the largest bank in the city, always identified with the upbuilding of the city and its business interests. R. F. Kitterman, its present manager, is vice-president of the Security bank. Charles H. Toll, for many years one of the leading citizens of Glendale, and one of the senior vice-presidents of Security, has joined his influence with that of the local management to make the Security bank a real factor in the city.

Under the banking laws, a bank with large capital and surplus is able to make larger extensions of credit to any individual borrower than a bank with smaller capital. With its loaning ability based upon its capital and surplus of $10,500,000, the Security Trust & Savings bank has become an important influence in the development of larger business and commercial enterprises in Glendale.

To the People of Glendale!

It is our sincere hope and belief that Glendale will enjoy during 1924 a continuance of the prosperity and harmony that has made of it one of the most rapidly developing communities in the country during 1923.

Glendale also has several private financial institutions which are described elsewhere and it is safe to predict that another year will see banks here with resources close to $20,000,000 which tells in figures the prosperity of the city much more plainly than words.

Tuolumne County Has Deed To Twain Cabin

STOCKTON, Jan. 1.—Mark Twain's old cabin on "Jackass Hill," near Sonora, has been deeded to Tuolumne county as a memorial to the famous author by W. J. Loring and James A. Gillis.

Gillis, who is known throughout the "mother lode" section as "Jim Gillis," lived in the cabin through a winter with Twain before he became famous. Loring is a mining capitalist.

First National Bank In Glendale Has Well Known Financiers Directing Policy

The First National Bank in Glendale, 1261 South Brand boulevard, enters into the fourteenth year of its history with 1924, being founded in March of 1910 as the Bank of Tropic.

Starting with four employees, its staff now numbers twenty-one, and the total deposits as of December 28, 1923, were $1,328,404.62. Originally capitalized at $250,000, the capital now stands at $500,000, and the bank enjoys a surplus of $500,000 and an additional $10,000 of undivided profits, the report shows.

William W. Lee, president of the First National Bank in Glendale, was for fifteen years president of the First National Bank of Glendale. In 1922 he became president of the Glendale National bank, which was changed to the First National Bank in Glendale on January 1, 1923.

University Graduate
Mr. Lee came originally from New London, Iowa, and is a graduate of the Iowa Wesleyan university, with a degree of B. S. He was with the New London National bank for sixteen years, serving as cashier for the majority of this time.

Other officers of the First National Bank in Glendale are: W. S. Richardson, vice-president; John A. Logan, cashier; and Dan Campbell, chairman of the board of directors, who number, in addition, W. W. Lee, John A. Logan, O. S. Richardson, W. H. Bullis and B. F. Lytle.

The First National Bank in Glendale owns the two-story brick building it occupies at the northwest corner of Brand boulevard and Cypress street, which was erected in 1917.

Pioneer Resident

Dan Campbell, who was the first president of the institution, when it was known as the Bank of Tropic, is well known in Glendale, as is E. W. Richardson, its first vice-president. John A. Logan, one of the organizers of the Bank of Tropic and its first cashier, who is the bank's present cashier, came originally from Oakland. He is also vice-president of the Community Savings & Commercial Bank of Glendale.

Much of the success the First National Bank in Glendale has enjoyed, according to Mr. Lee, is due to the fact that it is a friendly institution, always eager to lend a helping hand in the service of its customers and the community.

ASSESSED VALUATION

The assessed valuation of property here is practically $22,000,000 and the per capita wealth puts Glendale far ahead of other cities.

GLENDALE PROUD OF THREE BANDS

Claims Four, But Community Organization Includes
P. O. Musicians

Glendale boasts of four bands, although in reality they are three.

The Elks' organization is the oldest and has thirty-five musicians under the management of C. M. Burke. R. L. Kenny has served as director for some time.

The Scouts' band, which won first prize at San Diego in statewide competition last November, has fifty-two members, with G. O. Russell as manager and William Osterman as director.

Both the Elks' and Scouts' bands are handsomely uniformed and do much to advertise this city at the conventions of their respective orders, as well as playing on special occasions.

The Community band, under the management of Al Holcomb, has a personnel of twenty-five members of the Postoffice Letter Carriers' band. The Community band is directed by Arthur Balue.

Yolo Farm Isolated In Boundary Dispute

YUBA CITY, Jan. 1.—Supervisor R. Edson of Yolo county, owns 600 acres of land in this vicinity which at present is in "No Man's Land."

Boundary lines between Yolo and Sutter counties are designated in law as the middle of the Sacramento river. Recently the river changed its course and the Edson tract now is in Sutter county after being designated as in Yolo county since California became a state.

The matter was brought to a head when the Yolo county board of supervisors asked the Sutter county board to undertake road work adjoining the Edson place.

Glendale Savings Bank Doubles Its Facilities For Handling Business

In the last year the Glendale Savings bank, located at the southwest corner of Broadway and Brand boulevard, has doubled its facilities for caring for a greatly increased business. Marble and mahogany fixtures in the commodious banking room lend modernity to the banking quarters. Eight people are employed in conducting the business.

Savings accounts, escrows, collections and the sale of travelers' checks comprise the service now rendered. A per cent interest being paid. Total resources the first of the year are in the neighborhood of $1,025,000, a steady growth when it is considered the bank was organized but a few short years ago and has only $50,000 capitalization. However, the next year will see many important changes. It is anticipated, with the great growth of the city making mandatory increased capital and greater service on the part of this local institution.

Bank's Officers
The officers of the Glendale Savings bank are: W. E. Perrin, president; C. E. Wetmore, vice-president; F. L. Thompson, vice-president; H. E. Francy, secretary-cashier; A. G. Cornwell, assistant secretary, and Dr. A. W. Teel and David Francy additional members of the board of directors.

With increased vault room a large number of safety deposit boxes have recently been added by the bank for the convenience of clients.

Glendale State Bank Is Home Institution Having Confidence of Community

Showing total assets of approximately $1,400,000 on December 28, 1923, the Glendale State bank presents a highly creditable set of books for the two years and three months' period since it opened its doors on October 1, 1921, contrasting sharply with the statement of December 31, 1921, when the total assets were $440,854.24, and with that of December 29, 1922, when they were $907,399.98—a gain of practically $500,000 a year for two successive years.

This is the report made by A. R. Eastman, president and founder of the Glendale State bank. When it is taken into consideration that for 1923 the bank paid 12 per cent in dividends and placed 7 1/2 per cent to surplus, and in addition recognized the co-operation of its competent working force with a Christmas bonus of half a month's salary, contingent only on length service during the past year, it is seen that this strictly independent Glendale bank is entering 1924 with a record beyond that that reflects the greatest credit on its officers, directors and stockholders.

Officers of Bank
The officers of the Glendale State bank are the following: A. R. Eastman, president; Oma A. Fish, vice-president; George E. Farmer, cashier and Leroy R. Black, assistant cashier.

The directors are: A. R. Eastman, Oma A. Fish, W. E. Evans, H. W. Walker, J. J. Nesom, C. D. Lusby, C. E. Kimlin, Peter L. Perry and D. J. Hanna, all well known Glendale business men and property owners.

The Glendale State bank was founded by Mr. Eastman because he could see that the city was growing by leaps and bounds and was in need of another independent bank. When he decided to take the step, he resigned as manager of the Glendale avenue and Brand boulevard branches of the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings bank, a position he had held since coming to Glendale from Los Angeles, where for ten years he had been making loans with his own capital. Before that he was for many years in the banking business in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma, selling out the bank in Guthrie, Okla., of which he was president, when he came to California. Guthrie was at that time the capital of the state.

Many Interested
In gathering together his stockholders, Mr. Eastman was fortunate enough to get approximately eighty-five representative business men, all of Glendale. The support these men have lent to the Glendale State bank in the years since its organization, he feels, have helped the officers and directors to make of it the outstanding success it has been.

Starting with four employees, sixteen are now on the salary list. Mr. Eastman reports, and a crowd department that opened with one clerk now requires four to handle the large volume of its business, showing that not less remarkable than Glendale's growth in the past two years has been that of the Glendale State bank.

Show Confidence
The institution enters 1924 with a paid up capital of $100,000 and a surplus of $7500, another evidence of its successful operation and ample proof that Mr. Eastman's judgment was sound when in October of 1921 he founded the bank. But that the public have placed their confidence in the institution and are patronizing it increasingly is the outstanding conclusion to be drawn from the closing report of 1923.

A. R. Eastman, president of the Glendale State bank, is president of the recently organized Glendale Clearing House, president of the People's Finance & Thrift company, making loans to salaried rector and treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce, director and secretary of the Oakmont Country club, director of Community Service, Treasurer of the new $350,000 Glendale Presbyterian church, a Rotarian and an Elk.

C. D. Lusby is president and treasurer, W. E. Lusby is vice-president and secretary, and Dr. C. R. Lusby is vice-president, the last two mentioned being sons of the former, who is a long-established banker here. W. E. Lusby formerly was with the National City bank of New York.

The Lusby Mortgage & Investment company deals in mortgages on improved city real estate, bonds and insurance. They are in position to loan a large amount of money on proper appraisal. Mr. Lusby stating that the general situation of mortgage investments has never been better than are prevalent at present, particularly in Glendale.

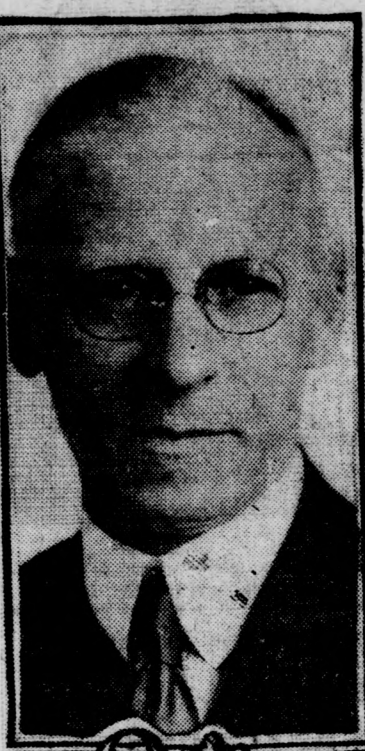

Good Security
Reasons for plenty of money being available here is due to the fact that it is largely a city of homes with a substantial American population of professional and retired people. Then, too, the city finances are conservative, a low tax rate and a growing population combine to make doubly safe every dollar invested in first mortgages.

The Lusby Mortgage & Investment company has well fitted banking quarters at 233 South Brand boulevard, and through their connections are able to aid all classes of investors and borrowers. Their service is building a large clientele among residents of Glendale, as well as investors from outside.

"Growing values in a growing community make for the soundness of mortgage investments. Mortgage loans in Glendale are the soundest kind of investments." GLENDALE IN 1906 SHOWN BY FILES

Anniversary Number Gives
Some Interesting Facts About 'Old Days'

Vivid pictures of the Glendale of 1906 are contained in the 20-page "Anniversary Number" of The Glendale News, published in that year.

There is a half-page illustration showing "That Part of the Valley Wherein is Located Glendale and Tropic; Also Showing Scenes Along the L. A. Inter-Urban Railway." Scarcely a house is visible throughout the valley, in that picture of 1906; whereas today the entire stretch of 20 miles is dotted thick.

Another illustration is captioned "4000 Mission Style Depot of the Inter-Urban Railway Company, at Fourth Street, Glendale," the view being the recently demolished structure at the corner of Brand boulevard and what is now called Broadway. The thought comes, how much of a depot could be built today for $4000?

Other Pictures
Other illustrations show the residences of Ezra F. Parker, "No. 95, Lomita Park"; L. C. Akeley, "Seventh Street"; the old adobe, "La Ramada," at that time a Spanish restaurant; the residences of Wilmet Parcher; "Ard Eevin," foothill home of Dan Campbell; homes of Lester Jones, E. D. Goode, C. A. Weidenfeller, L. C. Brand, F. W. McIntyre, N. C. Burch, C. G. Wilkinson and others.

Pictures are shown of the Episcopal, Calvary Baptist, Presbyterian and First Presbyterian churches. The Glendale public school system is given a page, with illustrations and reading matter that point to the following facts—enrollment in the grammar school, 226 pupils, with six teachers; enrollment in the high school, 75 pupils, with five teachers.

A resume of high school athletics is given, including the following boys' basketball lineup: Captain, Ray Goode, center; Cover Melrose and Ray Bond, forwards; Edwin Adams and Earl Bond, guards. Seventeen years make a difference—in the citizens as well as in the city of Glendale.

We are grateful to our friends and customers for their good will and patronage during our first four months of business.

We extend to you our best wishes for the new year.

SANTA'S GIFT

Our stocking was not hung up in vain. Santa brought us two very acceptable gifts—a dividend at the rate of 8% per annum on our Preferred Stock and another dividend at the rate of 6% on Common Stock, payable January 1st.

OUR LOCATION

Won't you drop in and see how comfortably we are situated and our fine facilities for doing business. We have a large suite at 211 East Broadway (formerly known as Webb's Court, now re-christened "Mercantile Place").

LOAN SERVICE

We are especially equipped to place the money of clients on first mortgages. We know values. We know how the papers should be prepared and how to properly protect the money through escrow. We will never submit to you a loan we would not willingly make with our own money. After the loan is made we will watch to see that taxes are paid, and that proper insurance covers the risk. This service is free to the lender. Let us know when you have money coming in, and we will have a good loan ready for you so you will lose no interest.

OUR OWN STOCK

Some of the keenest investors in Glendale and vicinity are buying our preferred stock. It pays 8% per annum and is free from city, state and county taxes. Out of the company's earnings we must pay this 8% on the preferred stock first of all. It is, therefore, a first lien on our profits. With each purchase of five shares of preferred stock (selling for $500) we give free one share of common stock, worth, we believe, at least $100. This makes a 20% profit on your investment to begin with.

SOURCES OF PROFIT

We make money, first from interest; second, from commissions on our extensive insurance business; third, from bonuses on money loaned on first mortgages; fourth, from discounts on mortgages and trust deeds bought outright; fifth, from short-time loans on automobiles; sixth, from special service rendered to clients. Practically the entire capital of the company is earning every minute at good rates.

With low overhead, efficient office assistance, very moderate salaries for officers, and hard work, we know this investment is a winner from the start.

PUBLIC DEBT TO BE WIPED OUT

Twenty-Two Billions Retired In 30 Years Predicts U. S. Treasury

year, and $330,000,000 of Treasury savings securities.

Ever since the end of the war the Treasury Department has been hard at it in getting the public debt as low as possible. During the war the Treasury carried a cash balance of $1,125,000,000 to take care of unexpected large expenditures. When peacetime operations started this balance was too large, and it was used to reduce the debt. Since then the debt has been reduced as follows: 1920, $1,185,000,000; 1921, $322,000,000; 1922, $1,014,000,000; 1923 $614,000,000—the figures referring to the government's fiscal year.

One of the biggest problems now confronting the Treasury is the wiping off of the $22,000,000,000 debt. Congress lent a hand at the end of the war by passing the Victory Loan act, which established a "cumulative sinking fund" calculated to retire the debt—less money received from our foreign debtors—in about twenty-five years. It was figured the sinking fund would retire half of the debt—$10,000,000,000—and that the foreign governments which borrowed from the United States during the war would make up the other half.

Creditors "Slow Pay"
It was necessary to make a change in the government's fund plans, however, when it became apparent that it was going to be hard to get some of the debtor nations to pay, for a while at least.

Thus far the settlement of the $11,000,000,000 foreign indebtedness has progressed only to the point of a debt-finding agreement with Great Britain. Cuba has paid her debt, and Finland's agreement is ready for Congressional approval; but the latter obligations were so small that they make no appreciable difference in the larger totals.

The British debt, aggregating $4,600,000,000, will be paid during the next 62 years in United States securities at par.

"So long, therefore," explains Secretary Winston, "our obligations of the United States can be acquired in the market below par we may expect to receive our own securities and not cash. This is an advantage in expediting payment of the public debt, because under the law securities received are canceled."

(This means that Great Britain can buy a $100 Liberty Bond in the United States for $97 and turn it in to the Treasury Department for a $100 credit on her debt, thus saving $3. This will amount to considerable in paying a debt running into hundreds of millions.)

In reducing the public debt the Treasury also uses any surplus revenues which it happens to have at the end of a fiscal year.

Plan Explained
Explaining the question of wiping out the debt, Secretary Winston says:

"Eliminating the question of general foreign debt payment and not relying on surplus revenues, which are uncertain, but based solely on the sinking fund as at present constituted and the British refunding scheme as executed, it is believed that the public debt should be substantially retired by 1952, which year happens to be the maturity date of

Prosperity Will Continue Throughout 1924, Prediction Made by Business Leaders

Los Angeles, president of the May Department Stores.

"Los Angeles" building record of $175,000,000 in 1923 will be eclipsed in 1924," promises Sylvester Weaver, former premier of the Chamber of Commerce.

In the mountain districts, with prospects for better wages, the outlook is good, declared A. E. Wilson, Denver investment banker.

W. P. McPhee, Denver building material manufacturer, looks for some curtailment in building activities because of high wages and high cost of materials.

"Harvest has been bountiful and the nation is at work—the business outlook for 1924 I regard as very promising," says J. Ogden Armour of Chicago.

Pacific Coast Outlook Is Excellent

Life insurance applications increased 25 per cent and a better outlook for 1924 is expected by Robert D. Lay, vice-president of the National Life Insurance company of Chicago.

"Applications for life insurance are an infallible index of the financial situation," he said. "The past few years have been very low."

"Business interests of the Pacific coast have every reason to view the advent of 1924 with conservative optimism," says Herbert Fleishhaker, San Francisco banker. "Commodity prices are firm; there is no unemployment problem; our population is steadily increasing and our buying power apparently well stabilized."

William Wrigley, Chicago gum manufacturer and baseball magnate, is a "bull on the business outlook." He expects 1924 to be a "world-beater in a business sense."

The farmer's opinion is expressed by Homer Miller of Des Moines, president of the Iowa National bank.

"The outlook for 1924 is favorable," he said. "Merchants are buying sparingly and there is no inflation. That augurs well for prosperity."

Government Officials Are Optimistic

Edgar Sensenich of Portland, president of the Oregon Bankers' association, looks forward to an "even more prosperous 1924" for Oregon, "which experienced the most satisfactory business year of its history in 1923."

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover said: "We have never had a clearer situation than at present. We have more employment at higher real wages than ever before, more buying power than in a decade and a larger demand for homes and an extensive buying of building materials."

Henry G. Dawes, controller of the currency, said: "In the past year profits of national banks were $203,500,000 notwithstanding the writing off of $160,000,000 in losses. Dividends of $179,000,000 were paid, setting a record in the history of national banks. This reflects the eminently satisfactory condition of national banks and forecasts their ability to fully meet the demands of 1924. National banks reflect the national business outlook."

Great Year Is Ahead Of Country, Predicted

threat of change he seeks "safety first" by taking no chances. Yet the railroads are expected to go forward and find the money at the very time they are threatened with some new kind of deal.

The fact is the owners and managements of the railroads have confidence in the sound common sense of the people of this country and believe the people at large desire the railroads to have such treatment and to make such earnings as will enable them to continue to improve and expand their properties used for transportation purposes.

History is merely repeating itself. Prosperity arrives whenever the railroads and the people work together in the activities of business. The railroads the last maturing funded obligations of the United States, the Treasury 4½s. There are many contingencies which affect this estimate, but it is safe to assume that a plan of refunding that part of the maturing debt, which cannot be presently met, to maturity dates within the next thirty years is a sound policy to be pursued."

During the next five years the government will need to retire a total of $7,400,000,000 in notes and Liberty Bonds. It has not been decided what form this refunding will take, as it will depend upon the condition of the money market at the time the offerings are made.

and the people using them have shown a fine spirit of co-operation during 1923 which has been helpful to all. The same helpful spirit of co-operation throughout 1924 will bring new achievements and more prosperity.

The railroads are now regulated by law as to their earnings, their expenditures and their labor bills. To this the roads do not object, but have a right to object to loose statements which pass for facts that mislead the public in respect to the railroads having earnings guaranteed to them, and in other matters. There is no guaranty of earnings in the Transportation Act or anywhere else. Even if there were such a guaranty, the railroads of the United States have not earned any sum that could be called a fair return, notwithstanding the big business they have done this year. The fact is the railroads ask only for fair play in their desire to give good service at fair rates, and it is hard to believe the public will permit any new law to hamper the roads and to slow down the general prosperity.

STRONG CONCERNS

Banks of Glendale are unusually strong, as is shown by facts and figures published in this section of The Glendale Evening News. The city is also provided with well financed trust and mortgage companies.

Federal Commercial, Savings Bank Makes Big Record; Opens Another Institution

Phenomenal growth has been enjoyed by the Federal Commercial & Savings bank, North Brand boulevard and Wilson avenue, in the little over four months since it opened its doors on August 11, 1923, $500,000 in deposits being the record made.

Indeed, so great has been the prosperity enjoyed by this new bank that it has been found advisable to open another at 612 East Broadway which was formally opened last Saturday, Dec. 29, with J. V. Rea, vice-president of the parent bank, in charge, assisted by George T. Harness, assistant cashier.

Another Bank
The East Broadway bank of the Federal Commercial & Savings bank is a complete institution, states Mr. Cooper, containing commercial, savings and escrow departments, and will serve that section of the city with the same fidelity as the parent bank serves the Brand boulevard section. At a recent banquet, held at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse, to celebrate the successful launching of the Federal Commercial & Savings bank, 140 stockholders, directors and officers enjoyed a fine program of speakers headed by Ora Monette of Los Angeles, president of the Bank of America, who spoke on "Co-operation of Stockholders."

The officers of the Federal Commercial & Savings bank are: C. C. Cooper, president; J. V. Rea, vice-president and cashier; Paul E. Stillman, vice-president; William A. McCormack, assistant cashier; Walter P. Lewellyn, manager of escrow department. The directors are: C. C. Cooper, E. Emery, B. D. Erwin, V. M. Hollister, W. C. Landerdale, W. P. Lewellyn, William McMillan, J. V. Rea, H. S. Webb. Identified with the Federal Commercial & Savings bank and controlled by the same management and stockholders is the Federal Mortgage company.

There are at present 115 stockholders in the Federal Commercial & Savings bank, all of them Glendale citizens and property owners.

C. C. Cooper, president of the bank, is a past president of the Glendale Rotary club and Chamber of Commerce, and is at the present time president of the Federal Mortgage company, treasurer of Community Service, and a member of the Oakmont and Flintridge Country clubs.

He has lived in Glendale four years, coming from Lincoln, Neb., where he was president of a bank. Prior to organizing the Federal Commercial & Savings bank, he was president of the First National bank and the First Savings bank of Glendale, before they merged into the Glendale branch of the Security Trust & Savings bank.

THEATRES CATER TO EVERY TASTE

Motion Pictures, Vaudeville and Drama Furnished Amusement Lovers

Theatres are a source of pleasure to Glendale, there being four here at present and one more planned.

The magnificent Glendale theatre is under the management of W. A. Howe. It seats 250 people and has a stage adapted to the presentation of standard vaudeville each Saturday. It boasts of "the southland's greatest organ" played by Paul Carson and a $20,000 addition is being made by the Estey organ manufactory which will give the Glendale theatre the ultimate in musical accompaniment for its first run picture programs. Many previews are staged at the Glendale theatre by Hollywood producers on account of its excellent facilities and representative audiences.

The Gateway theatre opened on July 20, 1923, and was erected at a cost of $80,000. F. A. Miller and B. E. Loper are the principal stockholders, the former operating the California theatre in Los Angeles. Mr. Loper is manager of the Gateway, which seats 900 people. It is conveniently located on San Fernando road near Brand boulevard and has the selection of the best of all pictures. The Morton organ will be enlarged this year while a large free auto park and a searchlight are two features of the house.

Play at Club House
The Tuesday Afternoon club theatre is the home of Royal Stock company playing selected comedy dramas four nights each week, with Charles R. Royal directing Miss Edythe Elliott and Rodney Hildebrand and an all-star cast. This house accommodates 800 people and vies with the two Glendale Union High school auditoriums in the presentation of local productions.

The T. D. & L. theatre with 1000 seats is playing to capacity houses under the management of H. A. Albright, who features First National and Paramount film programs and vaudeville. It is affiliated with the West Coast circuit which now has plans out for a 2200 seat house on North Brand boulevard between Wilson avenue and California street which will cost $1,250,000, it is stated. It will be a class A store and office building as well, running through the block to Maryland avenue.

PREDICTS HEAVY REALTY ACTIVITY

R. N. Stryker Sees Bright Future for North Brand Boulevard This Year

R. N. Stryker, realtor, 217 North Brand boulevard, reports for 1923 heavy activity in North Brand boulevard frontage and prophesies for 1924 a remarkable development along this portion of Glendale's fast growing business street.

"With a large theater assured and a Class A hotel certain if the bonds are voted," says Mr. Stryker, "North Brand boulevard will bear close watching by investors in the year ahead. Several other large enterprises are being planned and great numbers of people are pouring into the section, owing to the large subdivisions that have recently been opened up in the northeast quarter of the city."

Mr. Stryker has been established for two and one-half years at the above location, and is thoroughly conversant with values there and elsewhere. His firm

Insane Mother Sets Her Children Ablaze

UTE, Iowa, Jan. 1.—Mrs. Fred Vauss, under hospital care for burns on her face and neck, sought in vain yesterday for an answer to her question: "Where are my babies?"

A three-months' old baby and deals in business and residential property.

On the R. N. Stryker sales force are M. C. Calkins and F. G. Latta, both experts in values and salesmen of years of experience.

Eldon, 15 months old, were dead after their mother's insane frenzy had converted the smallest child into an oil-soaked torch and imprisoned the older brother, with his sister Irene, six, in a closet filled with blazing, oil-soaked clothing.

Fred Vauss, father of the fire victims, said he was working in the barn yard of their farm home when Mrs. Vauss wrapped the baby in blankets, laid it on the bed, poured kerosene over its clothing and set fire to it, then poured oil over clothing in a closet, set it ablaze and locked Eldon and Irene in.

The little girl broke the lock on the closet door and escaped from the flaming room. The father broke a closet window and got Eldon out, but the boy died from his burns in a hospital.

The father attempted to reach the baby's blazing form on the bed with a rake, but the bed was too far from the window and the flames made it impossible to enter the room.

Happy New Year

A retrospective glance over the year 1923, shows a real epoch in the history and growth of Glendale.

The building permits of 1923 exceeded all previous years by a wonderful margin totaling $10,000,000.

In population, Glendale also made a wonderful advance, adding over 10,000 population based on figures issued by the telephone and public service companies.

The First National Bank in Glendale, too, has kept pace with the city in this most remarkable growth, and emerges on the last day of the year a greater and stronger financial institution in every way, than in any time in its history.

As this bank is strictly a "Glendale Bank" in every sense of the word, it is with no little pride that we can point to our share in the upbuilding of the community and sincerely trust that we can be of as great assistance in the new year to come, as in the year just past. Every officer and employee of this bank believes in A FRIENDLY, HELPFUL SERVICE.

AIRPLANE PLANT LOCAL INDUSTRY

Plan to Turn Out One Plane
Each Week Throughout Present Year

Situated west of the Southern Pacific railroad tracks at the junction of Grandview avenue and San Fernando road is the Glendale Airport. Although not municipally owned or controlled, it is run on very liberal terms by the Glendale Airport association, of which Roy L. Kent is president.

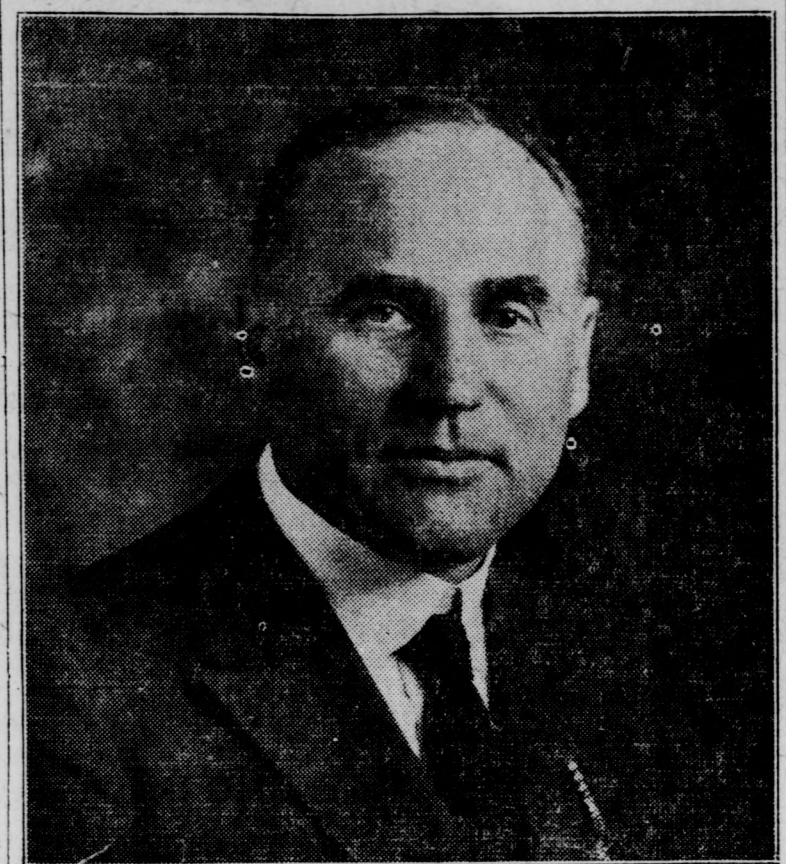

In the hangars on this field are twelve privately owned "ships," the property of Glendale citizens. The site, comprising thirty-three acres, provides an excellent landing field. A visit to the field on Saturday afternoon shows the lucky Glendadians who are the possessors of the "air busses" taking off for their weekend holiday.

Although not connected with the Airport association, the management of the field is really in the hands of W. B. Kinner, president of the Kinner Airplane and Motor Corporation of California, whose office and factory site on the field is leased by him from the association.

Organized last spring, this factory is now a going concern, actually engaged in the manufacture, repair and rebuilding of airplanes and motors. Mr. Kinner is a well known aeronautical engineer and is the designer of the Kinner "Airster," as well as the Kinner motor, both Glendale products. There are two of these famous machines on the floor of the factory at the present time, ready for delivery to customers who have purchased them. Mr. Kinner states he has orders now for two four-seaters to be built for Dr. T. C. Young and L. B. Montigo of Long Beach.

Is Like Roadster
"The name 'Airster,' in the aircraft industry, is synonymous to the term roadster, as applied in the automobile industry," said Mr. Kinner. "The Kinner Airster was designed and built with safety the first consideration. The basic principles are such as to provide increased efficiency, stability and durability and so simple and convenient as to render the plane readily controlled. Great care and thought have been expended to produce a plane which any person can fly with a few hours of instruction, and the Kinner Airster now bears the same relation to other makes of airplanes as does the light automobile in its line. The cost of operation is always a point worthy of consideration. The Kinner Airster, carrying two persons, may

HERMAN NELSON PIONEER HERE Prominent Banker And Builder Of Community

HERMAN NELSON came to Glendale in 1912, when it was a town of about 3000. He is a native of Iowa, where he was trained in the banking business. He is a vice president of the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings Bank and manager of its Glendale avenue branch.

Herman Nelson, vice-president of the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings bank and manager of the Glendale Avenue branch of that organization, has had a most interesting part in the growth of Glendale, for he came here from Iowa in 1912, when Glendale was but a town of 3,000 inhabitants. Glendale was just then waking up to its possibilities and starting on the climb leading to the record of being the fastest growing city in the United States.

he flown at an approximate cost of two cents per mile."

If present plans are carried out, the production of the plant will be one plane per week in 1924. Mr. Kinner stated that he could easily place 1,000 airplanes in southern California if he could guarantee delivery at a certain date.

Before February 1 an "aerial taxi" service, with established rates, will be instituted. Service to all towns with a flying field will be maintained at reasonable rates. He now has several planes engaged in the passenger carrying business, at $5 per flight of ten minutes, or $15 per hour.

Before coming to California Mr. Nelson had had much experience in banking in Iowa, his native state. When he arrived in California he naturally became interested in financial activities and the result is that he is an officer of prominence in the Pacific-Southwest organization.

Mr. Nelson is a loyal Glendadian and actively interested in keeping Glendale "The fastest growing city in the United States."

LONDON, Jan. 1.—Anything may happen in a London fog.

FIREMEN, POLICE AIDED BY FUNDS

Association Takes Care of Sick Members; Is Only
In Its Infancy

Organized to take care of police officers and firemen who may be injured or laid up on account of sickness, the Policemen's and Firemen's Relief Association has been in operation for just over a year, and during that time has been of inestimable help to several of its members.

The association is in no sense a charitable one, following the lines of fraternal insurance organizations, although, of course, on a much smaller scale. W. J. Royle, lieutenant of the police department, was chosen as the first president in the latter part of 1922, and a short time ago was re-elected. It is due to his ability in handling the affairs of the association that it has functioned so splendidly. He has with him as officers: R. E. Dodsworth, vice-president; E. C. Fairfield, treasurer; Tom Philp, secretary; Johnny Myers, George Meyers, R. Baugh, M. E. Collins and Al Moniot as directors.

Contributions Made
While membership is not compulsory on the part of anyone, all men joining either department has had the matter presented to him in such way that without exception they have consented to become members of the association. The dues are fifty cents per month, and this fund is augmented by the frequent gifts to the departments from some citizen to whom they have rendered noteworthy service.

The benefit fund was originally started by the proceeds of the showing of "The Third Alarm," the great fire department scene, which were given to the association by William A. Howe, manager of the Glendale Theatre. Last year the association realized a large sum from the first annual dance. The second dance will be given shortly after the first of the year, when the fund will be further augmented.

Student Volunteers Meet In Convention

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 1.—More than six thousand young men and women representing fairly a cross section of the religious life of the youth of America, particularly as typified in institutions of higher learning, assembled here Saturday for the opening sessions of the ninth annual student volunteer convention.

Inspired with fervid zeal for service, they came great distances. Every state was represented as well as the provinces of Canada. Foreign missions, the selling of Christianity to the heathens, the life project of many, is the animating motive of the student volunteer movement. Therefore, dogmatic and scholastic differences as well as the great controversial questions agitating the so-called modernists and fundamentalists were disregarded.

The convention proper opened with addresses by Dr. Walter H. Judd of the University of Nebraska; Dr. Joseph Robbins of New York, chairman of the convention, and the Rev. Paul Blanchard of Boston.

In 1920 Miss Gladys Sharpe gathered sixteen Glendale girls into a Girl Scout troop, with participation in the Armistice Day parade of that year as their feature activity, and now that group has augmented itself into four troops of over 100 girls and a Glendale Girl Scouts' council sponsored by prominent local clubwomen.

Miss Gladys Sharpe is still captain of Troop 1. The other three troops are: Troop 2, Mrs. H. B. Lockwood; Troop 3, Mrs. R. C. Horner; Troop 4, Miss Margaret Sharpe.

The council was organized within recent weeks, and is to meet four times a year. Meetings of the executive board are to be held every month.

Tom Mix Recovering From Gunshot Wound

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1.—Tom Mix, famous cowboy hero of the movies, was expected back at his studio today, after recovering from a severe wound which he received when he was accidentally shot by his own gun.

Mix, it was revealed today, was shot last Saturday at his home, when a revolver fell from his pocket and discharged as he tried to keep a rifle, which was hanging on a wall, from falling. The bullet from the pistol first struck the actor in the fleshy part of his lower left arm, then took a course to his back and lodged near the spine.

When your heart is without a sentinel, its ragged edges will prick your fellowman.

Railroad Rates and Transportation Costs

Railroad Supplies Up 100%
Freight Rates - 32 3-10%
Passenger Fares 35 3-10%

Freight rates and passenger fares on the Union Pacific System have advanced less than half as much as the increase in the cost of engines, cars and other principal items of railroad expense.

Comparing pre-war prices with those of today we find:

Commodity	Pre-War Price	Present Price	Pct. of Increase
Rail, per ton	30.00	43.00	43%
Freight Locomotive	26,000.00	64,000.00	146%
Freight Car	1,100.00	2,500.00	127%
Ties, each	.35	.84	140%
Steel (bridges, tanks, etc.) per ton	50.00	96.00	92%
Steel Passenger Coach	12,000.00	25,000.00	108%
Cotton Waste, per lb.	.05	.095	90%
Block Signals, per mile	1,200.00	2,500.00	108%
Switch Lamps, each	4.04	8.40	108%
Fuel, per ton	2.11	3.38	60%
Average annual earnings, per employee	(1912) 884.01	(1922) 1,808.47	104.6%
Taxes	4,668,875.00	13,251,552.00	280%

In the face of these increases, freight rates on the Union Pacific System during the same time have increased only 32.3 per cent and passenger fares 35.3 per cent.

In 1913 we received for hauling a ton of freight one mile, 9.7 mills; for hauling a passenger one mile, 2 1/2 c. In 1923, these rates were 1.285 and 3.035 respectively. The 1923 freight rate represents a reduction of about 11% under 1921 and passenger fares about 8% under 1921.

In order to earn enough gross revenue to purchase a pint of ink, it is necessary for us to haul one ton of freight 42 miles; for a cross tie, 65 miles; a hand lantern, 91 miles; one freight car wheel, 117 miles; and one monkey wrench 97 miles.

To pay for a day of track labor it is necessary to haul one ton of freight 236 miles. For a day's wages of a freight train crew 2680 miles. For a day's wages of a machinist 461 miles. For a ton of fuel 263 miles.

The railroads of the United States maintain the lowest rates and the lowest capitalization per mile, while paying the highest wages of any country in the world.

So long as the railroads' cost of doing business remains at the present high level a general reduction of freight and passenger rates cannot safely be made. Constructive suggestions are always welcome.

RAIL LINES RECOGNIZE CITY'S IMPORTANCE AS TRANSPORTATION CENTER

Three Transcontinental Systems Entering Glendale, and Two Interurban Roads Give Service; Build Large Stations

By GIL A. COWAN
Of The Evening News Staff.

With the three transcontinental transportation lines entering Southern California represented by city ticket offices in Glendale, as well as two interurban lines, this city may be considered one of the important rail centers in the southland.

Because of its logical location and greatly increased population the Southern Pacific company has built a $100,000 station; the Union Pacific will spend $35,000 in a station here this year; the Glendale & Montrose line's depot, just completed, cost $20,000, and the Security Trust & Savings bank will build a $15,000 station for the Pacific Electric on a twenty-foot frontage on North Brand boulevard this year after completing their own six-story edifice.

The Southern Pacific station which will be dedicated about the first of February is personal recognition for this "fastest growing city in America" on the part of William Spruille, president of the Southern Pacific company.

It will serve not only Glendale but Pasadena and Hollywood as well with practically all trains stopping here. At present there are twenty-two trains daily on the Southern Pacific board here.

Clyde L. Thedaker is Southern Pacific agent, with Ray Fanset and K. E. Korber as ticket clerks; L. C. Ricks, clerk, and L. A. Smith, baggage man. The depot is located at Cerritos avenue and Los Angeles street, in the southern section of the city, near where three thoroughfares converge.

Pacific Electric

H. L. Le Grand is agent for the Pacific Electric and city ticket agent for the Southern Pacific, with temporary offices at 121 South Brand boulevard. W. H. Bowers is assistant ticket agent and J. H. Turner assistant freight agent. The American Railway Express business also handled by Mr. Le Grand is in charge of W. W. Foster, chief clerk; W. W. Burton and C. Forsythe. The latter office is at 135 North Maryland avenue.

The Pacific Electric runs 144 trains daily on the Glendale-Los Angeles line and has five local buses in operation here.

Union Pacific

The Union Pacific depot is located at the northwest corner of California street and Glendale avenue, where A. J. Vail is the freight agent in charge. On this site the Union Pacific plans $150,000 in station and terminal improvements during the coming year. C. A. Redmond is district passenger agent, with offices at 129 South Brand boulevard, where J. M. Greaves is city ticket agent. The Union Pacific has three trains east and three inbound daily at the Los Angeles station, and two baggage trains are run from Glendale daily.

The Santa Fe system has city ticket offices at 119 East Broadway, where rail and steamship tickets, as well as Pullman tickets to all points, are handled. Five trains depart from Los Angeles daily to eastern points, while there are four trains to San Diego. San Francisco also may be reached via the Santa Fe. J. M. Powers is passenger agent; S. M. Sullivan, ticket agent; R. C. Horner, traveling passenger agent, and John A. Marvel, baggage agent in Glendale.

Glendale & Montrose
The Glendale & Montrose railroad, which has headquarters here, serves La Crescenta, Montrose and Eagle Rock, while soon after the first of the year it will inaugurate a Los Angeles service, connecting with the Los Angeles city railways which are known as the yellow cars.

William G. Henshaw of San Francisco is president of the Glendale & Montrose railway corporation; Loren Barton of Los Angeles is vice-president; Val Haresnape of Los Angeles is secretary and treasurer; P. L. Hatch of this city is general manager; W. M. Mills, auditor, and W. A. Mulligan, mechanical superintendent.

Seven passenger trainmen are employed, while a freight crew of three, three carmen men, seven track laborers and two office assistants are employed locally. This force will be augmented as the service grows.

The Glendale & Montrose railway is the ONLY interurban line in Los Angeles county not owned or operated by the Pacific Electric or Los Angeles railway corporations, it is said.

Film Star Defendant In $10,000 Note Suit

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1.—Lila Lee, film actress, was the defendant today in a superior court action started by the Merchants' & Manufacturers' Securities company to collect $10,000, which the actress is claimed to owe on a promissory note.

Miss Lee, who in private life is Mrs. James Kirkwood, is alleged to have made out a note for the sum asked in favor of Augusta Appel, in Chicago, on October 4, last. The name of Miss Lee's mother is said to be Augusta Appel. However, the relationship was not mentioned. The note, it is alleged, was turned over to the securities company for collection by Augusta Appel. In the court action the full amount of the note, plus 6 per cent interest, is asked.

Chateau de Qualite Enjoys
Increase of Business
Since Opening

The possibilities of Glendale as a business location for the firm that combines a superior quality of merchandise with excellence of service is demonstrated in the case of the Chateau de Qualite, the restaurant that was opened on November 1 at 108 East Broadway by F. M. Edwards and George B. Dennis.

Ever since the first day the firm opened for business the patronage it has received has shown an abundant appreciation on the part of the Glendale public for an establishment that adheres to high standards in the quality and preparation of its food, and the service furnished its patrons.

Expert Assistants

The Chateau de Qualite is staffed by expert chefs and deft waitresses, all under the direct supervision of Mr. Dennis, who looks after the individual comfort of every customer who enters the place.

The restful tones of the decorations are also one of the features of the cafe, and guests there find a distinct and welcome change in the atmosphere that surrounds them while they dine.

A specialty of which Edwards & Dennis are proud is the quality of their candies, which are made in the Edwards factory in Los Angeles and that are rated among the highest class confectionery to be found anywhere.

FRESNO, Jan. 1.—Disillusionment, after a short week of marital bliss, confronted Mrs. Ray Kohl, the girl wife of Ray Kohl, as she sat in court and learned that her husband was a former inmate of the Oklahoma penitentiary, charged with murder and on a leave of absence granted by ex-Governor J. Kohl informed his young wife that in his vocation of detective, he had to go out and make an arrest. The next day he was arrested and charged with entering the home of Artemas P. Shepard, 3101 Mariposa street, and holding him up at the point of a revolver.

To Each and All Greetings!

Salutations! The year 1923 has been good to us—and let our fervent wish be that 1924 will find us at peace with the world and ourselves.

Blessed with almost everything the good Providence could give us, far removed from the strife and tribulations of the other side of the world, we are indeed thankful that the opening of the new year finds us in such an enviable position.

And 1924 dawns with the greatest of hope—that hope for continued prosperity; a greater unity of purpose and a better feeling of brotherly love.

Once more we extend to you a happy and healthy New Year.

Opens a new era in the History of the Glendale & Montrose Railway

Our plans to better serve Glendale and its environs have now, indeed, become a practical reality—and this month sees the fruition of years of planning and toil—our fondest dreams realized—the joining of Glendale and the Verdugo Hill communities to Los Angeles at a popular fare—transportation so cheap that the residential sections served by us will be more rapidly built up.

In addition to a purely commercial service, the Glendale and Montrose Railway traverses a right-of-way of wondrous scenic beauty.

Today the Green Verdugo Hills are as green as in those years gone by, the distances of valley as alluring and the surrounding country still some of the choicest in the Golden State.

One cannot journey along the hills to the north without being inspired with thankfulness for the blessings of nature and life.

For years we have served the people of Glendale and other foothill communities and we greet our friends made in this service, also the newcomers to Glendale who have as yet undiscovered the wealth of scenic beauty in the distant hills.

On this, the first day of the New Year, may we join hearts and hands in thanksgiving for the beauties of Glendale, our home city. We are entering another year of history and may it hold treasures of health, happiness and prosperity for you all, is our sincerest New Year's wish.

There Is Nothing Depressing About Forest Lawn Memorial Park

The Little Church of the Flowers at Forest Lawn

It is a supreme expression of solemnity without sadness; a place of indescribable beauty you will instinctively appreciate—located as it is, "Among the Hills"—close to the heart of nature, in one of the most beautiful sites in Southern California. Everything that art, science and loving care can devise has been planned for different forms of burial—be it earth burial, mausoleum crypt, cremation, columbarium niche or private vault.

Additions to Town's Original Area May Be Increased in Near Future

The corporate limits of Glendale at the present time comprise 10,370.24 acres, representing the original townsite of 1486 acres and the area of fourteen districts that have been annexed to the city from time to time.

This will undoubtedly be materially increased in the near future by the addition of 600 acres southwest of the Southern Pacific railroad tracks, between Glendale and Burbank. Petitions requesting a special election for the purpose of voting on this question are now being circulated. The sentiment of the residents of this section seems to be strongly in favor of annexation.

Only one district was annexed to the city in 1923, known as the Flower street district, of 194.59 acres.

List of Additions
Following is a complete list of the annexations to the city since its incorporation:

Original townsite, February 16, 1906, 1486 acres.

V. M. HOLLISTER'S WORK AIDS CITY

V. M. HOLLISTER, former president of the Chamber of Commerce and prominent community booster.

One of the best known citizens of Glendale is V. M. Hollister, owner and manager of the Valley Supply company, located at Maryland and Wilson. Mr. Hollister is a former president of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce and also a former president of Community Service. He takes an active part in all civic affairs and is always aiding in any movement having for its purpose the upbuilding of Glendale.

Ever since coming to Glendale in 1917 from Wisconsin, his native state, Mr. Hollister has been an ardent booster for Glendale and has taken an active interest in the city's growth during recent years.

Under his regime the Chamber of Commerce was greatly developed and succeeded in bringing the city of Glendale nation-wide recognition.

Mr. Hollister's attitude to his home city and fellow citizens is fully voiced in his farewell message to the Chamber of Commerce. He said, "We do not see ourselves as others see us; we do not measure our acts as others measure them, and if all would come forward and record their criticisms and offer their suggestions, it would add wonderfully to those endeavoring to shape the destiny of this community and her splendid people."

In his interest in civic affairs Mr. Hollister is a Community Service enthusiast and when that movement was introduced into Glendale he was one of its active supporters and was elected president to the local organization.

Mr. Hollister is a member of the Elks lodge. His home is located at 416 North Louise street.

The ancient wheeze quoted above originated in this column in 1917, and since that time has appeared in all the principal cities in the United States. We see it is now doing a tour of Europe. It comes back to us via the "Lit. Digest," not much the worse for wear. We hope it is making a hit in Sweden. It always went pretty well over here, particularly in vaudeville.

A. H. VOELKER IN CHARGE OF OFFICE

ARTHUR H. VOELKER, Manager of the Glendale branch of the Frank Meline company.

So satisfying has been the growth of the Glendale office of the Frank Meline company, 227 South Brand boulevard, since they opened September 8, 1923, that a special insurance department has now been added, reports Arthur H. Voelker, manager.

Previously the insurance business of the Glendale branch was handled through the Los Angeles office, Mr. Voelker states. The new department will be in charge of Mrs. V. M. Carmack and will handle all branches of insurance. Another recent addition to the organization is a loan department, in charge of G. E. Douglas, assistant manager.

The personnel of the Glendale office of the Frank Meline company includes, in addition to those listed above, the following salesmen, each an expert: C. P. Haskins, C. A. Copp, J. N. Campbell, D. L. Calloway, P. C. Brown, J. N. Haegenson, William Christy, Walter E. Vaughn and W. M. Irwin, with Mrs. Vera G. Dunn as secretary.

Large Organization
Arthur H. Voelker, manager of the Glendale branch, was previously manager of the Western avenue branch of the company, Los Angeles. He states that the Frank Meline company is one of the largest aggregations of realtors in the world, with fifteen branch offices and thirty-five tract offices, the total personnel running up into the hundreds.

Every phase of real estate activity is covered by the Glendale branch of this great organization, states Mr. Voelker, from sales of lots in their beautiful view subdivision, La Canada Hills, to business and residential property, including rentals and a notary service.

"We are well pleased with the reception we have received in the four months we have had the office here," says Mr. Voelker, "and face 1924 fully equipped to be of still greater service, confident that our branch of the Frank Meline company will do an increasing volume of business."

Piedmont Park and Lexington Drive, Glendale, Calif.

The Glendale Research Hospital Has Reached a High Degree of Eminence Through Its Scientific Methods, Its Conduct and Its Location

Glendale is favorably known as an ideal location for Sanitariums and Hospitals. There are several good reasons for this. The climatic conditions are ideal for hospital work, and Glendale is also well known for the number of highly competent physicians, surgeons and specialists in medical practice.

One of the most modern and highly equipped hospitals in Glendale and all Southern California, is the Glendale Research Hospital, which is a new, up-to-date hospital, constructed throughout in accordance with the most recent requirements of hygiene and prophylactic science.

The location of this institution is ideal—it being situated in a quiet residential portion of the city; the building is fire-proof and each room well and daintily furnished. The equipment includes the highest class surgical instruments, research laboratories and an X-ray department.

During the past year, the third of this hospital's existence, a phenomenal record for SERVICE to the community has been made—and every effort will be made to even serve the people better during the coming year of 1924.

URGE SAFETY EDUCATION PROGRAM

Drivers' Big Hazard Met at Crossings; Move to Change System

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Pursuing its policy of pointing the way to new developments in the process of automobile betterment, the National Motorists association, through its headquarters at the national capital, has asked the cooperation of its 350 or more affiliated automobile clubs in the work of helping the pedestrian keep out of the way of motor cars.

Pointing out that "the pedestrian's problem is the motorist's problem," Fred H. Caley, executive secretary of the N. M. A., declares that "no motorist can feel reasonably safe or comfortable so long as the pedestrian is an ever-present hazard to him, and it has thus become a feature of automobile safety to have safe pedestrian regulation."

"The cities have failed to regulate the pedestrian," says Caley, "so the walking public has set out to 'walk for itself.' Therefore, it remains for the automobile clubs throughout the country to handle the situation as an automobile problem, and repeat their successful efforts with respect to automobile regulation."

Need for Regulation
"Considering the remarkable number of cars on the streets, and the rapidity with which the automobile has come into use in the narrow streets of crowded cities, automobile traffic is exceptionally well handled. Much of this is due to the efforts made by automobile clubs to advocate good laws and insist upon their proper enforcement."

"The one hope for the present muddle, and the solution to the increasing number of traffic accidents, is for the automobile clubs to apply their experience to the pedestrian."

FRANK TALKS FOR TRADE PLANNED

Free and Open Discussions Will Take Place at Annual Convention

Many Pacific coast motor car merchants are planning to attend the seventh annual convention of the National Automobile Dealers' association which will be held during the Chicago show.

The meeting is open to all automobile dealers in the United States. At least one thousand of them are expected to gather at the La Salle hotel where the convention will be held January 28 to 31, 1924.

At these gatherings it has become the custom for members of the retail trade to "talk right out in meeting" and tell really what they think. For instance C. M. Gambill, vice-president of the association, who has been in the automobile business for eighteen years, is of the opinion that a motor car dealer is entitled to a net profit of five per cent upon his gross business and believes that his operation plan should be based with that as a goal.

Must Have Profit
"While it is unfortunately true," he says, "that the great majority of dealers are not averaging a net profit of five per cent upon the gross volume of their business, still it can be done and it must be done if dealers are to continue to remain in business."

"This cannot be effected if the dealer has in mind only the sale of new automobiles. But the dealer who is bending his efforts to become a complete automotive transportation merchant, serving the needs of all his present owners of new cars as well as attempting to sell to his as yet untouched market, will make that profit."

"To my mind today a dealer to be successful must have first."

NEW RECORD FOR YEAR REACHED

Production Is Far Above 1922; Total For 1923 About 4,000,000

Production reports totaling 325,125 cars and trucks made in November, submitted at the directors' meeting of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, bring the eleven months' output to 3,717,709, which indicates that the year's total will reach 4,000,000. This will be a gain of more than 50 per cent over 1922 which was in itself a record year.

Leaders in the automobile industry believe the increase to be due to the national need for more transportation facilities, to the rapid development of suburban areas, and to the fact that better car values for the money are being offered than at any previous time, due to the economies of large scale production.

Dealers throughout the country predict that motor car sales in the next few months will exceed last winter. Improvement in the motor truck market also is expected in the larger cities.

The monthly totals of motor vehicle production comparing 1922 and 1923 are as follows:

January	91,210	243,241
February	122,461	276,812
March	172,878	364,542
April	219,708	382,182
May	256,375	393,409
June	289,193	377,063
July	347,065	327,612
August	274,061	344,626
September	206,994	327,365
October	238,191	365,107
November	237,391	325,125
Totals	2,365,512	3,717,709

Five Millions to Be Expended on State's Highways

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 1.—Construction work to the total of $5,000,000 for widening and thickening the existing paved state highways will be placed under contract in California within the next few months, plans and specifications for which are now under preparation. In some instances bids already have been called for.

This expenditure will be made from funds derived from the state's share of the new gasoline tax and motor vehicle license fees and is in addition to other work contemplated and to be paid for from the state highway bond funds.

While it is impossible to make a definite statement at this time regarding the location of all of the rebuilding work under consideration, the contracts to be advertised will include paving of some nine miles south of Sacramento on the Stockton route; paving south of Stockton in the Manteca section; rebuilding of the highway between Oceanside and San Diego; rebuilding of the Rincon Causeway in Ventura county; widening of the highway in the Calabasas section of Los Angeles county; widening and repaving of the Pacific Highway north of Redding, in Shasta and Siskiyou counties.

Other similar work will be undertaken where the need appears most urgent because of traffic conditions and the necessity for saving old pavements from destruction.

It is estimated that the state's share of the gasoline tax and the motor vehicle fees will be at least $7,500,000 for 1924, which is 50 per cent in excess of present revenues for maintenance and reconstruction. The commission will receive its first allotment from the gasoline tax in May, 1924.

HEALTH, HAPPINESS AND EFFICIENCY DEMAND CAR; INDUSTRY AID TO CITY

Glendale Dealers Have Attractive Buildings and Large Amount of Capital Invested in Business; Deserve Complete Support

By H. THOMPSON RICH
Of The Evening News Staff.

From the standpoint of efficiency alone, if one refuses to consider health, pleasure and convenience, the 1924 family without an automobile is going to be under an increased handicap. As the city grows beyond the present population of 50,000, the outlying districts must necessarily care for the brunt of the increase, as the centers are already thickly populated. The result is that distance is going to be a prime factor.

The automobile annihilates distance, saving time and energy, which are valuable. The automobile therefore becomes a prime factor in economy, and the few cents a day required to operate the modern motor car is nothing compared with the saving effected, while the initial investment, made easy by monthly payments, should be regarded in the same light as money paid into a home, as an automobile is scarcely less essential.

Good Investment
Considering their advantages, cars are ridiculously cheap. Only by the most advanced methods of quantity production, are we enabled for $1000 or so to ride around in such a perfect piece of mechanism as the modern automobile. A few years ago, before the problems of quantity production were mastered by the manufacturers, cars cost over twice what they do today.

The present overlaps the future. Today a dawning era of automobiles presages a tomorrow of the automobile supreme — of cities where traffic problems have been solved by underground tunnels and elevated roadbeds; of highways leading across the American continent from north to south and east to west; of boulevards for busses and trucks and others for private vehicles; and of innumerable developments along the frontiers, opening up vast stretches of now inaccessible land for settlement.

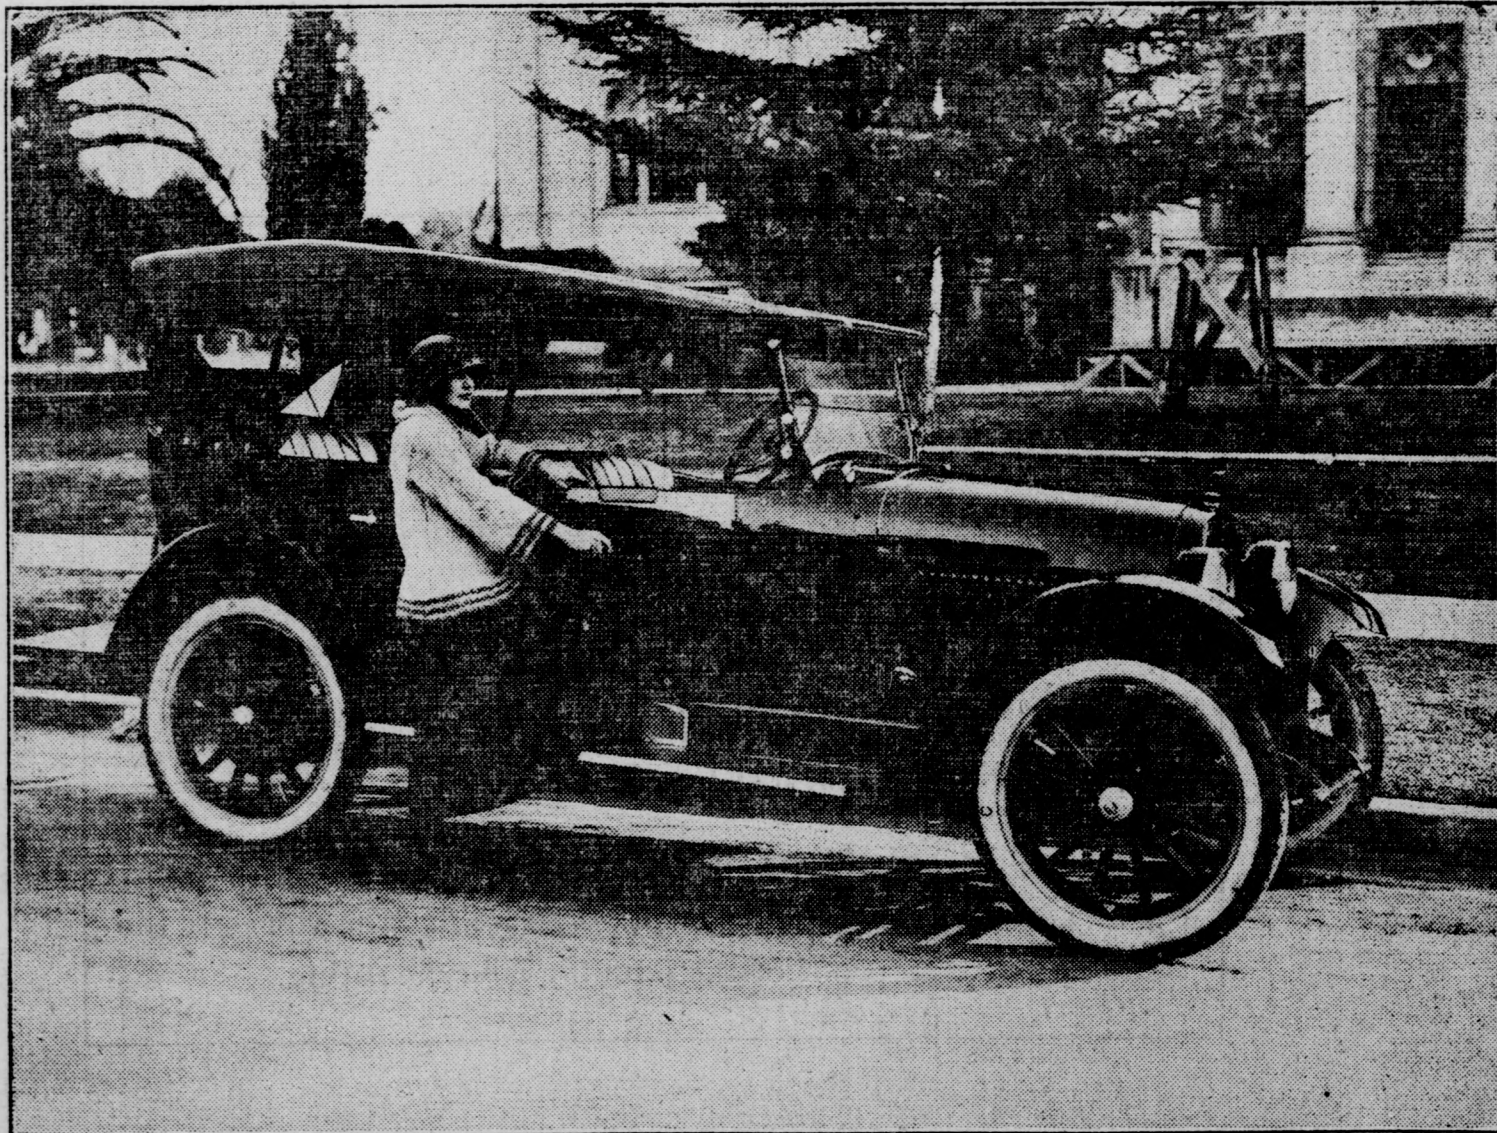

In Glendale, as elsewhere, the automobile industry has more than played its part in the great program of city building of the past five years. It has made fortunes for man, enriched all, and stands waiting to bring health and prosperity to those who but ask of this modern Aladdin.

Starting small it has grown with Glendale until today it represents an investment of millions of dollars in substantial construction.

Along Brand boulevard, Broadway, Central avenue, San Fernando road, Colorado street, Harvard street, Wilson avenue and other thoroughfares in the business heart of the city, fine buildings attest the progress of this infant industry that in Glendale as elsewhere has been the prodigy of America.

Mrs. Board's first words, when being shown the car she had won, were, "My, what a beautiful automobile." And when being taken for a ride in it (she does not drive a car as yet), she exclaimed, "How smoothly and quietly it runs."

Beauty, combined with easy riding qualities, has always been an important factor in Nash construction. Coupled with this, the Nash-perfected valve-in-head motor and other striking qualities places this Nash Four Touring foremost among its price competitors. All in all, it's a value without precedent or parallel. You'll agree when you have inspected it.

local telephone directory and you will find that in Glendale there are listed twenty-five new car dealers, twenty-three garages, six accessory companies, five tire shops, four battery stations, two auto top establishments, two auto painting shops, besides auto electricians, wrecking companies, and a host of used car dealers.

Look around the streets, and on innumerable corners you will see service stations, many of them representing material investments and all of them busy.

And what house but has its own private garage? Socially as well as commercially, the automobile industry has meant much in the development of this city. It is safe to state that there is no one in Glendale who has not in some way or another been benefited by the tremendous growth of this industry locally in the past five years.

The payroll alone of all the hundreds of mechanics, salesmen and other employees on the staffs of the various organizations run close to $20,000 a week, money that in the main flows back through the rills of trade into the rivers of community prosperity.

Great Outdoors
To the residents of California the low cost of automobiles has been an inestimable boon. With miles upon miles of smooth boulevards leading to the hills and the sea, the man of moderate means has at his command the playgrounds of this western wonderland, where he and his family can disport themselves at every season of the year, and at an outlay that is absurdly low in proportion to the benefits he receives from the relaxation he enjoys.

As a result deliveries of automobiles to the California distributors reach a volume that is hard to obtain when the dealers in other parts of the country are clamoring for their quotas. This New Year sees a full supply of practically every model of most makes of cars available for immediate delivery, thus helping materially in the solution of the "which make?" problem for those whose desires are centered on the pleasure vehicles that make life in California so well worth living.

Joseph Wilson, New Head Of Local Legion, Outlines Plans For Coming Year

"With the services of our new paid adjutant, who will devote all his time to the post's affairs, I expect to make 1924 the banner year of the American Legion in Glendale," said Joseph A. Wilson, 328 North Jackson street, newly elected commander of the local post, who will assume his duties the first meeting night in January.

"We hope that the people of Glendale realize that the Legion strongly supports any move for the welfare of the community. We have been handicapped, however, in the past by the fact that all officers have been men whose time had been privately occupied and were therefore not able to give as much time to the Legion affairs as they might otherwise have done. Consequently some may think that we have not done our share, concentrating our efforts on behalf of the ex-soldier.

Aid Community
"But we realize that while the ex-soldier is, of course, our primary charge, we know that by aiding the community we assist him, and from now on we will be seen, more prominently than before, shoulder to shoulder with the other organizations of the city."

Glendale post No. 127 of the American Legion was formed in 1919 with Dru Nicolas as the first commander. Since then Emil O. Kiefer, James F. McBryde and Chalmers Day have served as the head of the organization. The membership at the present time is 250, and it is expected that this will be doubled the coming year. E. E. McWain, formerly adjutant of the South Pasadena post, has been selected as the first paid adjutant and will be the liaison officer between the public and the Legion. He will have charge of the Legion affairs, promoting them, and will have his office at the Legion hall, 610 East Broadway.

Want Own Home
The entire membership is looking forward to the time when they will own their own home, and to this end every effort is being exerted. If present plans materialize, the dream will probably be realized before the end of the year.

The Legion numbers in its membership the leading professional and business men of the city, and is one of the most enthusiastic organizations in the city.

In addition to Commander Wilson the following officers will serve in 1924: First vice-commander, W. H. Regelin; second vice-commander, E. W. Gilliland; sergeant-at-arms, A. Hammond; historian, Ivan Crocker; treasurer, W. A. McCormack; executive committee, W. H. Reeves, Dwight Stephenson, W. W. Wittmeyer, Chalmers D. Day and A. L. Kaeding; trustees, Col. John D. Fraser, Harley G. Preston and E.

L. Hayward; delegate to the inter-post council, James F. McBryde, Don Packer and Al Dix.

D. H. WEBB HEADS HARDWARE PLANT

DONALD H. WEBB, manager of Glendale Hardware company.

Donald H. Webb, manager of the Glendale Hardware company, 601 East Broadway, took over this store with his father, James Webb, in 1916. In the years that followed he has established himself as one of the leading merchants of the city and has become associated with many business, civic and social organizations, among them the Chamber of Commerce, Elks, Masons, Kiwanis club, of which he is at present secretary, Merchants' Credit association and Sunset Canyon Country club.

SERVICE BOOSTS CIZEK BUSINESS

Battery Firm Enjoys Rapid Growth Since Founded Four Years Ago

As specialists in storage battery and electric service, including starter and magneto work, the Cizek Auto-Electric company, 300 South Brand boulevard, is recognized in Glendale as well qualified to hold this position. This firm was established four years ago by E. W. Cizek, formerly proprietor of the Willard storage battery service station at Manjoc, Wis., and Henry Kuhn, who operated a Willard service station at Grand Rapids and Detroit, Mich., before coming to Glendale.

Besides being the official sales and service station for Willard batteries, and Gabriel snubbers in Glendale, this firm handles a complete line of radio batteries. Cizek company was among the first to be designated as an official headlight testing station.

Starting business with three mechanics and electricians, this firm has grown to where it now requires a force of nine men, headed by Duke Tepper, chief electrician, who was manager of the electrical department of a large Los Angeles firm before coming to Glendale.

AUTOS INCREASE PROPERTY VALUE

Prices of Rural Lands Rise As Good Roads Follow Motor Car's Trail

The effect of the automobile in increasing the values of rural property is stressed by C. L. Smith, Chevrolet agent, Colorado and Orange streets, who declares that the automobile renders land more valuable by making it more accessible.

"The matter is complicated," he asserts, "by the fact that the demand for good roads inevitably follows the advent of the motor car. The question as to who should pay the taxes for the roads naturally arises, and much of this burden is laid on the automobile owner in the form of higher automobile taxes."

"Those urging such taxes disregard the immense benefit to adjacent property owners from those same roads. Highway systems that have been built through rural communities have in every instance, vastly increased the value of the farm land in their

One of the big business events of 1923 was the opening of his new store building at the above address on North Brand boulevard.

Charge Storage Eggs Sold as 'Fresh' Ones

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 1.—Owing to frequent complaints by housewives that eggs purchased as "fresh" later are discovered to be storage holdovers, Health Officer C. Joyce Hall announces a campaign to enforce the law requiring dealers to label correctly the kind of eggs they have for sale.

Dr. Joyce warns that unless storekeepers label eggs either as "fresh," "pullet," or "storage," they will be prosecuted. Inspectors will be on duty and dealers who "mix" the grades will be severely treated, said the health officer.

Immediate vicinity, and a careful consideration of these facts ought to deter legislative bodies from levying new taxes on the automobile owners, who are taxed pretty heavily already, and who are cheerfully paying the amounts assessed against them, doing their share, and more than their share, toward the maintenance of the highways of the entire country."

FINDS GLENDALE BUSINESS GROWS

Paint and Wallpaper Firm Has Just Closed Year of Prosperity

Starting as a small business four years ago under the name of Harry Moore Co., Inc., this firm has now grown to be one of the largest of its kind in Glendale and offers a line of paints and wallpaper complete in every detail, according to M. Alexander, president and manager. This concern is located at 304 East Broadway. "From the very start we have done a large business in Glendale," says Mr. Alexander, who last April assumed the management of this firm, affiliating its interests with the Sunset Paint company of Los Angeles. This company carries a complete line of Sunset paint goods, in addition to wall-papers and the well-known line of Kyanize varnishes and enamels.

The Sunset products, Mr. Alexander says, have been used on the new Ferber store, the Lawson building and the Montrose & Glendale railway depot in Glendale, and the Stang hotel in Los Angeles.

"Our business in 1923 doubled what it was in 1922," continued Mr. Alexander, "and from all appearances the record will be true of 1924. It is the rapid growth of Glendale which has brought the remarkable business that we have enjoyed."

Associated with Mr. Alexander are H. A. Hendricksen as vice-president and H. Hendricksen as secretary-treasurer.

Here's Fine Drink If Your Stomach's Strong

YORKVILLE, Ohio, Jan. 1.—A unique drink, popular among local "hootch hounds," is made by using sweet spirits of nitre as a base. A small hole is chopped in a cake of ice. A channel is formed from the hole in the edge of the ice, where a bottle or a can is placed. The spirits of nitre is poured into the "ice pond." As it runs out through the channel the ether in the liquid is frozen. The product emptying into the container is credited with being pure alcohol.

WELCOME 1924

Serving in the capacity of helping to provide comfortable, dependable and economic transportation for some of the good people in this community has been our share in the prosperity that the city of Glendale has enjoyed during the year just closed.

1923 was a big year—in fact the greatest in our history, more than double the number of Buicks having been sold and delivered this year than in 1922. However, big as 1923 has been, we anticipate much greater things for 1924.

It is in line with these expectations that our new home on Brand at Maple, now nearly completed, is being provided.

Here in our new quarters a much larger scope of service can be rendered. 11,250 square feet of floor space all devoted to Buick service, which brings to mind the truism—"He Profits Most Who Serves Best" and that's our thought for the new year.

Yesterday marked the close of the most prosperous year in our history and we extend our sincere thanks and appreciation to the many friends and patrons who made it possible.

Once more we have passed another milestone in our history—once more another milestone of progress in Glendale—and once more we stand on the threshold of another year. To you, our friends and patrons, we extend the greetings of the season.

New Ascot Speedway Opening January 6

With the completion of the course and two huge grandstands but a few days away, New Ascot
Speedway's opening, set for next Sunday, January 6, looms as the next big event on the speed calendar.

Racing experts declare that Paul Derkum has produced for President George R. Bentel and his associates in the Ascot enterprise, by far the most spectacular auto race track in the country. Derkum had but one instruction from Bentel, "Build for the spectacular and safety."

"Instead of being too small in circumference," said Derkum,
"New Ascot will be too big if anything. The width is sixty feet, ten feet more than it is across the board tracks, with an addition of forty feet of horse track inside with no fence between. This makes the track practically 100 feet wide. The turns are banked fifteen feet, with the quadruple radius design employed. The element of competition and close finishes on this new track will provide that something which is missing in nine out of ten auto racing contests.

Bentel says he will have thirty-five drivers ready to face the starter on opening day, and that the number will be increased from time to time. Many of the fast 183 and 300-cubic inch cars which were shelved with the 122-inch edict, will be seen in action at Ascot.

The events will range from ten to fifty miles in distance. With but ten drivers allowed to start at one time, qualifying heats will have to be run.

GROWING DEMAND FOR STAR AUTOS

Local Agency Is Expecting Triple Business During
Year of 1924

"If the last sixty days can be taken as a criterion," says W. W.
Prindle, sales manager for Dilley
& Armstrong, 115 West Harvard street, local distributors of Star automobiles, "I am confident that our business this year will triple that of 1923."

Mr. Prindle pointed out that while they have been able to make very satisfactory deliveries on most models of the Star, it is feared that those contemplating the purchase of closed models will meet a shortage unless orders are placed within a very short time.

"The demand for closed Star cars is so great that we are taxed to capacity to make deliveries even now," continued Mr. Prindle, "and with the increase in business we expect from the outset of the New Year we are going to be kept busy getting enough cars to fill orders."

Grows Rapidly
Established in Glendale only a year ago, the Star agency, Mr.
Prindle says, has grown so rapidly that plans are already being considered for expanding their quarters, although nothing definite is announced. That the Star car is meeting with universal favor is indicated, according to Mr. Prindle, by the fact that production the first year of this make's existence reached 125,000.

Dilley & Armstrong agency is operated by C. A. Dilley and J. P.
Armstrong, with a sales force of six men, under the management of Mr. Prindle.

"I will give to the world the greatest light car value ever produced" —W. C. Durant.

THE BIRTH of the original Star Car dates back to the Summer of 1922—just a year ago.

Much interest was displayed by the public in the new light car, and on the part of the motor-wise there was an immediate recognition of the wonderful qualities contained in the chassis.

From this class were recruited 125,000 owners within the year just passed. They are men and women who know about cars, who respect their own judgment and who act on it.

They realized that despite an absence of the outer emblems of quality, usually associated with cars of the highest grade, the Star Car could compete with the best of them for intrinsic merit. They bought and they have not regretted. In that year the average cost for replacements has been only 25¢ per car—a phenomenally low rate, and one which bespeaks the correctness of design of the Star Car.

RECORD YEAR IN PACKER HISTORY

Studebaker Agents Plan For New Homes to Handle Growing Business

The year that is just closing, witnessed the establishment of the highest record for sales in the history of the Packer Auto Co., 245 South Brand boulevard, Studebaker distributors, according to Robt. Conover, sales manager, and the prospects for the coming year are such as to encourage the belief that the figures for 1923 will be far surpassed.

In order to handle the growing business in this territory, the Packer Auto company is now planning the immediate erection of a branch establishment in Eagle Rock, that will be able to care for the trade in that district, and as soon as this has been started, the firm will also begin building a home for Studebaker in this city, that will rank among the finest establishments of its kind in the state.

The building, which will stand at the corner of Central avenue and Colorado street, will be of two stories, and will cover a space of 127 feet by more than 200, embracing modern show-

Sale of Subdivision Will Be Followed by Opening Of New Boulevard Tract

Magnolia Boulevard Manor will be completely sold out within ten days, prophesies F. D. Tweeddale, realty broker with his Burbank office at the corner of Magnolia boulevard and Buena Vista avenues, and to meet the continued demand for property on Magnolia boulevard, he announces that within three months he will open up his second tract in this section.

Magnolia Boulevard Manor is located between Burbank and Lankershim, where a great deal of activity is under way. Being less than one and one-fourth miles from the center of Burbank, the tract possesses decided advantages, Mr. Tweeddale points out, while opportunities for handsome profits exist on every hand.

"With the curbs and sidewalks now in and electricity, gas and water going in rapidly," says Mr. Tweeddale, "the home-seeker as well as the investor knows he is safe in buying at Magnolia Boulevard Manor, where 50x138-foot lots are selling for $795, and only 20 per cent down, with payments of but 2 per cent a month, while business lots may be had for $50 and corners at $60 per front foot.

Development noted

"You do not have to be farsighted to see the opportunities here for profit, which are not based on speculation, prophecy, conjecture or visualization but on the actual trend of development, which has already surrounded and engulfed the tract. With thousands of home-seekers overflowing from Hollywood, through Universal City and Lankershim, and crowding up from Burbank, the day is not far distant when all this section will be built up solid.

"Here is the garden spot of the San Fernando valley, where in the near future fortunes will be reaped by those who have the vision to invest now, while prices are cheap. Imagine how rich you would have been had you bought in the heart of Hollywood or Glendale a few years ago. You can do the same thing here now—and make yourself independent for life."

"The new models that were placed on the market during the summer aroused a wave of enthusiasm that speedily translated itself into a steady flow of orders for the new models, especially for the closed cars, and this flood is growing stronger with every passing month. Another element in our present sales volume has been the improved Buick valve-in-head engine, which marks a startling advancement in automotive construction, but one that is only in keeping with Buick's leadership in the industry, a leadership that stands unchallenged the world over."

L. A. County Leads In Registration of Cars

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 1.—Anticipating an increase of at least 30 per cent in Los Angeles county automobile registrations during 1924, Will C. Marsh, superintendent of the state motor vehicle department announced today that approximately 200 additional employees will be put on the state payroll in the Southern metropolitan next month.

"Los Angeles county's registrations for the year just ending show an increase of nearly 40 per cent," said Marsh. "Making a very conservative estimate, I should say that 1924 will see another jump of at least 10 per cent. If State Controller Ray L. Riley will permit the expenditure, I propose to add nearly 200 workers to our Los Angeles office force when we begin distribution of license plates on January 14."

Superintendent Marsh said Los Angeles had registered 400,000 automobiles during the last twelve months. In addition to this, approximately 30,000 motorcycles, trucks and trailers have been licensed.

Total collections taken from the southern county are placed at $4,000,000. Collections for the entire state amount to $10,500,000 from approximately 1,000,000 registrations of all classes.

Los Angeles tops the combined registrations of San Francisco, Alameda, Fresno, Orange, San Diego and Sacramento counties, Marsh announced. San Francisco, which ranks second in the state, has but slightly more than 85,000 registered cars,

A Happy New Year for EVERYBODY

What you buy and What you get

When you buy an automobile you acquire the ownership of a marvelous piece of machinery.

But, from the moment of purchase your interest centers upon the performance of the machine rather than upon its specifications.

The value of the car as a piece of machinery depends upon the organization that made it. Its value as a transportation unit depends upon the local organization that sells it.

From both standpoints Maxwell and Chalmers values are a conceded fact among Glendale motorists.

ELKS LODGE ONE OF STRONGEST IN SOUTH

ORGANIZATION HAS FINE CLUB HOME, MEMBERSHIP LIST NOW TOTALS 1650

Band One of Best Anywhere and Program of Concerts Musical Treat; Lodge Plays Big Part in Upbuilding City

By H. THOMPSON RICH
Of The Evening News Staff.

Instituted October 14, 1912, with twenty-seven charter members, the Glendale lodge of Elks, No. 1289, numbers a present membership of 1650 and is one of the strongest lodges in Southern California.

The present clubhouse on East Colorado street was built in 1917 and in 1921 a lot directly in the rear was purchased, facing on Elk avenue, so that when the time comes the building may be added to, increasing its capacity and efficiency.

As the large debt contracted by the local lodge in erecting their fine building is now nearly cleared off, it is believed that the coming months will see developed a more broadly constructive program with regard to the city, than heretofore has been possible.

Lodge Has Band

Outstanding among Elk organizations in Glendale is their band, of which William Osterman is director and C. M. Burke manager, which was such a credit and advertisement to the city at the state convention held at Eureka last September. This band frequently gives concerts at the clubhouse, during the summer months, and a feature of the city life is parking your car on East Colorado street, on an evening, in the vicinity of the clubhouse, and enjoying the high grade harmony dispensed by these capable musicians.

The biggest event in the Elk year, from the members' viewpoint, is the annual installation of officers held at the clubhouse on April 2, 1923. For this event hundreds of Elks were present from Glendale and surrounding points.

Impressive Services

Last year the acting grand lodge of installing officers were entertained at a 5:30 o'clock dinner at the Harriett Mae tea rooms, and the installation ceremonies began at 8 o'clock, a large number of Elks crowding the spacious hall, which was beautifully decorated with wreaths of flowers for the occasion. Pictures of the elective officers installed at this ceremony and now holding office in the local Elks' lodge appear elsewhere in this issue. These men are all prominent in the city business or social life.

James A. Appfel, present exalted ruler of the Glendale Elks' lodge, is a jewelry manufacturer with his business in Los Angeles, whose residence is at 347 North Maryland avenue.

Arthur H. Dibbern, past exalted ruler, just retired, and elected a delegate to the grand lodge, is a local jeweler whose residence is at 512 East Loma avenue.

Earl S. Patterson, esteemed leading knight-elect, is an attorney with offices in Los Angeles, whose residence is at 288 South Coronado boulevard.

Gerald A. Dockeray, esteemed loyal knight, is with the Moreland Truck company of Los Angeles, but lives in Glendale at 723 South Louise street.

James F. McBryde, esteemed lecturing knight-elect, is a local attorney, whose residence is at 108 East California avenue.

Popular Secretary

Willis M. Kimball, secretary, has held this position in the Glendale lodge for a number of years.

dale lodge for a number of terms, residing at 339 West Lexington drive.

Jesse W. Headlee, tyler, secretary of the Grand View cemetery, resides at 723 South Louise street.

Herman Nelson, treasurer, is manager of the Glendale avenue branch of the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings bank, and resides at 641 East Harvard street.

Irving H. Oliver, trustee, is business manager of the Glendale Union High school and resides at 615 North Jackson street.

Daniel Kelty, Jr., trustee, is a member of the hardware firm of Cornwell & Kelty and lives on North Highland avenue.

Joseph E. Wimmer, trustee, lives at 122 West Chestnut street.

Appointive Officers
In addition to the elective officers, the following appointive officers were duly placed in office at the installation of last April: William Hunter, chaplain, reappointed, proprietor of the Glendale Paint & Paper company; and Walter W. Jones, from inner guard to esquire, and G. H. Pulliam, inner guard.

Following the impressive installation came speeches from the various officers newly installed.

This was followed by a sextet of Chinese musicians, furnished by Ray L. Galvin, chairman of the Elks committee. This novel entertainment proved very popular, the stringed instruments upon which these Orientals played giving forth most melodious strains.

Presentations were then presented by the Glendale lodge to Arthur H. Dibbern, retiring exalted ruler. One of these presents was a beautiful and costly cabinet phonograph, with Past Exalted Ruler Dibbern's name on a solid gold plate across the front. The other present tendered the retiring ruler by his lodge was a solid gold, engraved card case, in which to carry his Elks' membership card.

Following this, the entire company of Elks present retired to the grillroom of the lodge, where a delightful buffet supper was served.

Community Service Enters Second Year of Activity With Enlarged Program

By R. E. TUCKER

Director of Community Service

Community Service and the Municipal Recreation Department of the city of Glendale are now entering the second year of activity. During the space of one short year this new movement has won its place and established itself permanently as one of the leading factors in building up the community.

The scientific basis of organization is the form that several hundred cities throughout the country are finding the most satisfactory. It is the linking up of the municipal recreation resources with the larger field of community activities by having a strictly municipal commission working hand in hand with a non-official group such as Community Service.

With the new election results recorded, we find A. L. Baird as the new president for the coming year. He is very ably taking up and carrying on the splendid work which V. M. Hollister has inaugurated during one short year.

The following officers and members in addition to Mr. Baird, make up the Executive Board which will carry out the program this year: Mrs. J. R. Case, vice-president; J. D. Fraser, vice-president; George U. Moyse, vice-president; Dr. Jessie A. Russell, secretary; C. C. Cooper, treasurer; V. M. Hollister, L. T. Rowley, Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, R. D. White, Mrs. Max L. Green, Rev. C. M. Caldwelwood.

Official Link

The official link of the movement with the city government is the Park and Recreation Commission, made up of the following members: L. T. Rowley, president; Dr. Jessie A. Russell, secretary; V. M. Hollister, Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, Rev. C. M. Caldwelwood, Lloyd H. Wilson. Under the ordinance passed by the City Council, this commission is to have charge of all parks and recreation centers and playgrounds. The commission has some big plans for the coming year in the field of municipal recreation.

The Director of Community Service, R. E. Tucker, is also the superintendent of recreation under the Park and Recreation Commission and works under its supervision.

With such leaders as these board and commission members, backed up by the large Community Service board of directors, this organization is in a position to assume leadership in any of the big recreation undertakings of the city. Through the courtesy of the Chamber of Commerce, the headquarters are located with that organization, which makes it accessible to all the people.

R. D. White, superintendent of the city schools, is the chairman of the general program committee. He is endeavoring to make the organization give even a greater scope of service during the coming year than was possible last year.

Music Organizations

In assuming the chairmanship of the music committee, V. M. Hollister will find two very efficient music organizations at hand to help carry out community music activities. The Glendale Choral Club is a group of splendid singers that made its initial appearance at the Christmas program. Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, the president of this club, deserves great credit for her organizing work. The director, J. Arthur Myers, through his pleasing personality and efficient leadership is drawing members from the best singers of the city. With Mrs. Gertrude Chapman Erb at the piano and such music as Coleridge Taylor's "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast" to work on, the members are having a real treat. Other officers of the Choral Club are Marie Oliver, secretary; Elizabeth Mottern, librarian; Mrs. Virginia Freeman, Mrs. W. Q. Widdows.

The Community Band is the other music organization. This group of men and boys is being sponsored by the Exchange Club, who presented them to the public at their community meeting in November. Mr. Arthur Balue, the director, is developing them into a music organization that is a credit to Glendale.

It is the plan of the Music Committee to start the regular community sings early in January. These meetings will afford an opportunity to many to come together and sing the old songs that are always refreshing.

Social Recreation

Mrs. J. R. Case, who organized and led the social recreation department during the past year, has consented to carry on this work again. Many social dances, swimming parties, and outings brought pleasure to many hundreds of young people. These events will be continued and other get-acquainted features will be organized. The organization is deeply indebted to the Tuesday afternoon Club for the use of the club house in the many social functions.

Officers and Directors

The keynote of Community Service is "Co-operative Community Effort." The majority of events conducted by the organization during the past year have been carried out jointly with one or more of our existing organizations. New groups and committees are formed only when the need is demonstrated. The aim is to serve as an initiative agency and to function with others.

There is practically no organization in the city but what we are indebted to for assistance in one form or another. When some celebration, function, or program can be handled through some of our organized groups, Community Service stands ready to assist that group. The luncheon clubs, schools, P. T. A., churches, improvement associations, fraternal orders and many others have had a prominent part in making the community activities a success.

Community Service officers and board of directors follow:

Officers—A. L. Baird, president; J. D. Fraser, vice-president; George U. Moyse, vice-president; Dr. Jessie A. Russell, secretary; C. C. Cooper, treasurer.
Board of Directors—A. R. Eastman, Dr. John Anderson, Frank C. Ayars, Mrs. A. A. Barton, Mrs. F. A. Beach, Mrs. L. W. Bosser-

Grass Scarce, Reduce Rail Rates on Sheep

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 1.—Reduction of rates about 15 per cent below normal has been granted to the Southern Pacific, Atchison Topeka & Santa Fe, Western Pacific and Central California Traction companies on feeder sheep shipped from Stockton, Galt, Arno, Byron, Oakdale, Iodi, Sheldon, Kingdom and Thornton, to points in the vicinity of Bakersfield and Loken, by the state railroad commission.

Feed in San Joaquin and Stanislaus has become scarce, owing to lack of rain. The reduced rate will be in effect only for a limited time.

CITY IS HEALTHY SETS HIGH MARK

One of Best in Whole of Southwest; Modern Ways To Fight Disease

Separated from the other municipal offices on East Broadway, the city health department, located at Brand boulevard and Los Feliz road, is apt to be overlooked in tabulating the various branches of the city's activities.

But a visit to this office, with its staff of four under City Health Officer Dr. G. Kaemmerling, will convince even the most skeptical that here work is undertaken that is worthy of Glendale's hearty support. All the latest discoveries in the world of science are brought into play here to safeguard the health of the city. Special attention is given to school children, as indicated in the announcement several days ago that boys and girls attending school would be given the Schick test, with subsequent immunizing from diphtheria, at cost, if they so desired. This is in keeping with the steady advance in the manner of conducting the affairs of this office. Recently the city clinic was established, where operations are performed twice weekly; a dentist is in attendance every day, and specialists respond to calls from the city offices.

Aids in Work
Associated with Dr. Kaemmerling in the work is Mrs. E. J. Sinclair, city nurse; Mrs. O. DeHaven, city bacteriologist; Mrs. C. Dunham, in charge of the office, and F. H. Sweet, sanitary inspector.

Here are kept the records of births and deaths in the city, as well as the reports of all contagious diseases. During the past year there have been 455 deaths and 688 births recorded. In 1922 births numbered 476 and deaths 409. It will be seen that there were only forty-six more deaths in 1923 than in 1922, while births increased 212. Fully 75 per cent of the deaths recorded are of persons who have resided in Glendale for only a few months, coming here for their health. As to age, they were divided as follows: Under 1 year, seventeen; from 1 to 5, five; from 6 to 15, fifteen; from 16 to 24, fourteen; from 25 to 45, fifty-four; from 46 to 65, ninety-four; over 66, 256.

Make Many Tests
In the laboratory over 1,500 samples of milk, water and blood have been tested, in addition to other work of an experimental nature. All firms obtaining licenses to distribute milk or other dairy products in the city must have a sample of their product tested before the permit is granted.

"Glendale is an exceptionally healthy place," said Dr. Kaemmerling yesterday. "We have at the present time only eight cases of contagious diseases in the entire city—three diphtheria, one typhoid fever, two scarlet fever and two measles. This is a wonderful record, for a city of 50,000. We have received the splendid cooperation of the school board in the matter of looking after the health of the children. There being no school physician, this work naturally falls on this department. Every day the spirit of co-operation among the citizens is evident, and it assures the success of this branch of the city activity. We are here to protect the health of the citizens, not to place unreasonable restrictions on them, and the record for 1923 shows that we have been very successful."

Hayward & M'Cartney Construct Many Houses, Sell Much Property

HAVE PRIDE IN GROWTH OF FIRM

Second Anniversary Comes With Remarkable Record Of Success Here

Besides selling many millions of dollars' worth of listed property in the past two years, the firm of Hayward & McCartney, whose main office is at 142 South Brand boulevard, have disposed of six subdivisions in that period, and consequently regard the occasion of their second anniversary with much pride.

Another office of the firm, maintained at 1310 South Brand boulevard, in charge of John D. Rathbun, attests the enterprise of Messrs E. P. Hayward and Harry E. McCartney, partners in the organization that bears their name.

Mr. Hayward came to Glendale after the war, in which he served a year at the front, attaining the rank of captain in July of 1918. Following he decided that the real estate business showed favorable prospects and was fortunate in joining the organization of Edwards & Wilsey company in Los Angeles. Three months later, re-opening their Glendale office which had been closed during the war, Mr. Hayward soon identified himself with the community to which he was proud to own allegiance, taking an active part from the first in civic affairs.

As one of the founders of the Glendale Realty Board, he was one of its staunchest supporters during the first two years of its existence, and has served as secretary for three years. He is now serving his second term as director of the California Real Estate association. He is also a member of the American Legion, the Kiwanis club and the Elks.

Moves to Glendale

Mr. McCartney has been a resident of Glendale for eight years, having come to Southern California nearly thirteen years ago, settling first in San Bernardino. When Mr. McCartney seized an opportunity to make an advantageous business connection with Blake Moffitt & Towne of Los Angeles, he quite naturally selected Glendale for his place of residence. Being ever alert and abreast of the times, he was one of the first to enter into the feverish real estate activity of that epoch-making period following the world war. It was through that means he became acquainted with Mr. Hayward, then manager of the Glendale branch of the Edwards & Wilsey company. It was quite natural he explained, that two such hustlers with their progressive ideas and energetic personalities, should become attracted to each other, resulting in their association as joint managers of the Edwards & Wilsey company. This gave birth a year later to the firm of Hayward & McCartney, whose constant aim, states Mr. Hayward, has been to lend every assistance to the elevation of the real estate profession, which has made such vast strides during the last few years.

Great Development
Not only the real estate department but the construction department of Hayward & McCartney as well has enjoyed a phenomenal growth. Under the exclusive charge of Mr. McCartney, this department developed until at the present time a superintendent of construction and two general foremen are maintained, John C. Wight and his assistants, August Fredland and F. N. Diegaard, and in addition a first class designer, Robert Gutekunst, whose sketches are said to possess decided originality.

The following construction is under way at the present time: a fine old English hillside home in Eagle Rock; for Fred R. Paragellis; an eight room double bungalow on the corner of Columbus Avenue and Lexington Drive, for W. L. Yarø, a retired contractor; a six room stucco bungalow at 602 West California, for Arthur H. Haak, an employee of the City of Glendale; a Spanish home of five rooms at 1348 Irving avenue, for George H. Murphy; another Spanish bungalow on West Dryden street, for E. C. Nickel; an old English home for George W. Reeves at 321 East Dryden street; a double bungalow of Spanish design for Mrs. Helen Trump, on the southeast corner of Pacific and Stocker streets; two Spanish stucco homes for W. D. and Kara S. Root, at 1344 and 1348 East Maple street; homes of English design for C. C. Kohler, at 1260 Oakridge drive and for E. C. Blodgett in South Pasadena, a Spanish home of six rooms for Colonel H. M. Morton, on southwest corner of Dixon and Lafayette streets.

Many Other Homes

Plans are also being prepared for many other homes, reports Mr. McCartney, while many have been completed during the year just past, establishing a host of admirers of "Hayward & McCartney-Built Homes."

The following personnel of the Hayward & McCartney organization, states Mr. Hayward, has been in no small degree responsible for the decided growth of the organization: C. F. Waechter, known to many as "Shorty," a pal of Mr. Hayward during the war, also a captain, both having seen service overseas, and a man who has made many friends in Glendale. Previous to 1921, he was sales manager for Burke & Farrar, large subdividers in Seattle, Wash., and was a salesman for R. G. Kleeman of San Antonio, Tex. Back farther, he was an Alaskan "sourdough," for eight years, prospecting far up into the Arctic Circle, but states that the shining gold fields can't hold a candle to Glendale, "the fastest growing city in America."

Holds High Mark

Charlie Young, with sales for 1923 approaching the $500,000 mark, holds the enviable position of high man for the firm. He came to Glendale with an Elks convention in 1909—and stuck. He operates from the Hayward & McCartney branch office at 1310 South Brand boulevard.

L. J. Dannel, a promising member of the firm, suffered a serious automobile accident recently and will be incapacitated for a long period. His selling experience of ten years made him a valuable asset to the organization.

Fred L. Kile, who joined the Hayward & McCartney forces in April of 1922, is one of the organizers and charter members of the Beloit, Wis., Real Estate board, and one of its past presidents. He picked Glendale as "the ideal home city," after seeing a good deal of the United States.

John D. Rathbun was manager of the Eagle Rock branch maintained by the firm for some time. South Brand boulevard branch. He is now manager of the 1310 South Brand boulevard branch.

members of the firm, was attracted to Glendale from Long Beach, as the result of one or two motor trips through the city. "Your values are still very young," he says. He is specializing on business properties.

Mrs. Louise E. Krog, another comparatively recent acquisition, comes to Glendale from Chicago, where she has had many years of sales experience.

Walter J. Horstman, another member of the branch office establishment, was for five years connected with the Board of Fire Underwriters, which he forsook for the real estate business.

George A. Mudgett, still another member of the branch office force, has lived in Glendale for the past twelve years, and is thoroughly familiar with every inch of it.

Office Manager

Gus A. Levison, office manager of the main office, came to Glendale three years ago, from Memphis, Tenn., a graduate of the La Salle university, and a graduate in higher accountancy. He had war accountancy work and managed the accounting departments of two Ford Motor company dealers. He selected the real estate business in the belief that it shows the greatest possibilities for future development.

Miss Gladys V. Brecher, the efficient clerk and stenographer, came here from Peoria, Ill., one year ago, having previously been connected with one firm for four and one-half years, as a stenographer.

With the above group as a nucleus, Mr. Hayward feels that the real estate department of Hayward & McCartney should be able to triple its service to old and new clients during the year 1924.

Burbank Home Tract Lots Limited; Sale Starts Today; Brooks Miller, Subdivider

There are only 100 lots in the Burbank Home tract, but they are large and sightly, according to Brooks E. Miller, subdivider, with offices in Shop No. 8, Mercantile Place, 211 East Broadway, Glendale.

The sale starts today, January 1, with only 100 opportunities for 100 homeseekers, homesteads located near the new civic center of Burbank, close to the manufacturing district, high school, grade schools and stores.

The Burbank Home tract represents a wonderful opportunity at nominal prices due to Mr. Miller's foresight in purchasing this desirable tract some time ago. The lots are all level, the soil is fine for gardening, and $3500 restrictions, paved streets, sidewalks, curbs, water and electricity all paid make it a most desirable proposition, he advises.

W. M. Winger is Mr. Miller's sales manager and a tract office will be maintained at Grismer and Dayton streets, Burbank. As an investment these homesteads are of unquestioned desirability, according to those who have been familiar with Burbank property values.

CHORAL CLUB IS IN SECOND YEAR

Has Membership of Twenty-Five; Composed of City School Teachers

The City Teachers Choral club, comprised of a number of members of the City Teachers' club, is entering upon the second year of activity, and has a membership of twenty-five. They have provided numbers on the program of entertainment on different occasions and are a delightful addition to the parent club.

Officers are Miss Alice Lookabaugh, president; Miss Helen Reynolds, secretary; Miss Ethel Land, treasurer. Miss Elsa Brennaman, supervisor of music in the city schools, directs the singing. Meetings are held for practice, bi-monthly, with each alternate meeting semi-social in nature.

A horse may develop twenty-one horsepower, according to a testing apparatus.

NEEDY CASES IN CITY ARE AIDED

Welfare Council and Bureau
Does Charitable Work
In Various Lines

Praiseworthy philanthropic work in Glendale is carried on by the Glendale Welfare Council and Bureau, the first sponsored by a group of local organizations and the latter by the city council.

The Welfare Council was organized November 18, 1919, with Mrs. E. D. Yard as president, and she has occupied this position ever since.

Other officers are C. E. Kimball, vice-president; Mrs. L. T. Rowley, secretary; Mrs. L. W. Sinclair, treasurer; Mrs. F. S. Card, chairman of local relief of the Tuesday Afternoon club, organization director.

Meet Twice Monthly
Both the Council and Bureau are under the same treasurer, Mrs. L. W. Sinclair, who has an office in the city hall.

Meetings are held the second Tuesday of each month, when a conference is held and reports made on the work accomplished. Various worthy causes are assisted by the Council and people in need brought to attention are helped. The Bureau handles all cases coming to the city council for aid and the council gives a certain donation each year, most of which is used for groceries for needy families.

A. FERBER COMPANY IN NEW HOME IN THE BURN-DAVIS BUILDING

Department Business Recently Established In Glendale Rapidly Outgrows First Quarters

Coker & Taylor, Plumbers, Erect Big Business Block; Fifty on Average. Payroll

Great have been the accomplishments of Coker & Taylor, plumbers, at 209 South Brand boulevard, during the year 1923. They have just completed a $10,000 addition to their modern two story structure, the entire main floor of which is occupied by their display rooms. This improvement will better house their workshop and stockroom.

A new warehouse on Los Angeles street near San Fernando road also was built this year by Coker & Taylor to handle car lots of plumbing fixtures, as their volume of business is such that great savings may be effected by the wholesale handling of supplies.

Thirty-five to sixty-five plumbers are regularly employed by Coker & Taylor, whose average payroll includes fifty people. During the year this firm has plumbed most of the large buildings constructed here as well as hundreds of houses and store buildings. They operate throughout the San Fernando valley.

Particularly interesting is the fact that the Coker & Taylor business represents the outgrowth of ten years' endeavor to serve Glendale with only the best sanitary plumbing, for it was recognized that the public health problem confronted Glendale as well as any other city.

To promote better health every residence should have bathing and toilet equipment complete to the point of convenience, according to Coker & Taylor's policy. Large households should have two or more bathrooms, as American standards for sanitation require such for the safeguarding of health.

Coker & Taylor's service includes fixtures, plumbing, gas fitting, stoves, heaters, etc., and their showrooms are a revelation in what a modern plumber can do in erecting "temples" of cleanliness.

Among Glendale's flourishing department stores is the Ferber store, recently moved into fine new quarters in the Burn-Davis building, located at East Broadway and Maryland avenue. The building was erected especially for the A. Ferber company, Inc., of Los Angeles and elsewhere for a ten-year lease.

Although established in Glendale a comparatively short time ago the original Ferber store very rapidly outgrew its quarters in Brand boulevard.

In the new building ample space allowed the addition of new departments and new lines and an increase in service that spells continued success for this popular store.

HORSESHOE CLUB LURES PITCHERS

Experts Meet at Playground on W. Broadway With Congenial Spirits

Glendale has a quaint playground over on West Broadway, quite near Central avenue, that is a recreational center for the Glendale Horseshoe club, an organization of 230 men that began in 1911, when a group of friends of J. D. Porter, of 108 North Central avenue, met in the alley back of the Porter home to toss horseshoes.

Today the Glendale club is one of twenty clubs in the California association of horseshoe clubs, an association that is duplicated in twenty states in the union.

A special honor enjoyed by the Glendale club is that the president, George E. Paine, is also president of the state association, and W. H. Nicoles, secretary and treasurer of the local club, is treasurer for the state organization.

Directors of the Glendale club are J. D. Porter, president; A. A. Gingrich and Samuel Dick.

Recalls Old Days
Going back over the development of the club, Mr. Nicoles reminisces: "From the alley back of J. D. Porter's home the club moved to a vacant lot at the corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway, where the new six-story bank building is now nearing completion. Mr. Porter was the first president and Ed Lee the first secretary."

"In a short time the club grounds were moved to the corner of Brand and Broadway, now occupied by the bank and the Roberts & Echols drug store, and in 1912 moved again to a vacant lot on South Maryland avenue, now occupied by the Glendale Florist company. At that time there were about fifty members and a four-pound shoe, made by a local smith, was used."

"Crack pitchers were J. D. Porter, Ira Gould, G. L. Head, S. E. Blatchly, J. E. Pettitt, Tom Hutchinson, G. E. Paine and others, many of whom are still members of the club."

Crowded Out Again
"About this time the city of Glendale got started on its present expansion and the club had to move again, this time to the corner of Broadway and Orange street. With seventy-five members in less than a year, the club moved shortly after this time to the present quarters on Broadway, near Central."

"Some three years ago the club added croquet to its activities, and now has three good courts. Another feature is the forty-foot shed with table, where checkers, chess and dominoes are played. The Glendale club participates in the annual contest held by the state association and during the past year Glendale won the championship at Santa Monica, represented by A. W. Anstey and Glen R. Porter."

"The club is conducted in a clean, moral way and games are in progress every day in the week except Sunday."

Convincing testimony of satisfactory business conditions in Glendale during the past year is given by S. Rosenblum, proprietor of the Paris Shoppe at 225 North Brand boulevard.

In anticipation of the arrival of the extensive lines of spring stock, Mr. Rosenblum has announced a big clearance sale for January.

Mrs. Rosenblum is to leave January 5 for New York, where she will remain during the shopping season to secure stock for Glendale patrons.

GLENDALE RANKS HIGH IN CITY SCHOOLS

WORK NEARS COMPLETION ON EDUCATIONAL PROJECT

Buildings and Land for New High School Valued at Three-Quarter Million Dollars;
2500 Students Will Be Accommodated

The new home of the Glendale Union High school on East Broadway is the equal, if not the superior, of any institution in any city of corresponding size in the entire United States.

The entire investment, including site, buildings and equipment, will represent an outlay of nearly three-quarters of a million dollars, and is one of the best appointed educational units in California.

On December 29, 1921, the citizens of Glendale voted $85,000 in bonds for the purchase of the site, which lies just east of Verdugo road on Broadway. It comprises slightly in excess of twenty acres.

May 2, 1922, a further bond issue of $600,000 for the construction of the building itself was authorized. An architect was called into consultation, and it was planned to have the new building contain an auditorium with a seating capacity of 2,500. He informed the board that this could not be done with the funds available if a gymnasium, mechanical shops, etc. were to be embodied in the plans, and a further bond issue of $350,000 was asked for. At the subsequent election this was turned down. Consequently the plans were modified to include the auditorium but excluding some of the other features.

Ready For Occupancy
Under the plans as submitted by John C. Austin and Frederick M. Ashley, of Los Angeles, who were associated with George M. Lindsey of Glendale, as architects for the board, ground was broken for the building on February 5, 1923. Work was rushed along until today it is completed, ready for occupancy, and the move into the new quarters, which will be some time in January, is delayed only by the delayed shipment of a carload of equipment for the science building.

The actual construction was awarded to the Northern Pacific Construction company, who in turn awarded the heating and plumbing work to Munger and Munger, the electrical and wiring work for clocks and telephones to Hall & Son of Pomona, and the installation of the clock system to the International Time Recording company.

Of Spanish Design
As it was the desire of the board to obtain a dollar's worth of usefulness for every dollar expended, the building is very plain in design. There is absolutely no exterior ornamentation with the exception of the entrances. The architecture is of the Spanish renaissance design.

The architects, collaborating with the board of trustees, desired to get away from the stereotyped style of school buildings, yet at the same time conform in general with the plans found most useful in other institutions.

The main building, fronting on Broadway, and containing the auditorium, is in the shape of the letter U, with the open end on Broadway. Straight ahead as you enter is the mammoth auditorium, seating 2100, while on either side flanking the entrance on the first floor are the business, executive and student body offices.

Extending to the right from the rear of the auditorium is what is known as the class room wing, where recitations are heard. Again a right angle turn and we have the practical arts building, facing on Verdugo road.

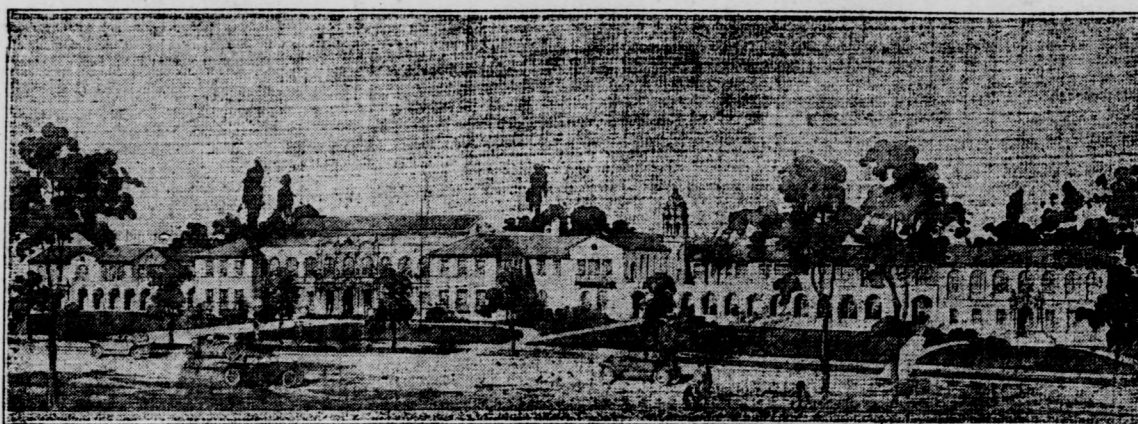

Detached from the main building, and standing to the left of the main structure is the science building.

Two Story Construction
All the structures are two stories in height, and the class room wing has a basement which contains the cafeteria and lunch room. A building line is being kept open along both Broadway and Verdugo road to allow the erection of further buildings with the same set-back as the demand may arise. The different wings are connected with wide patios of Spanish design, which are beautiful in their simplicity.

The athletic field is in the rear and to the left of the main building. Contracts have already been

Superb Plant Built Here for G. U. H. S.

A very interesting chapter in Glendale's history is furnished by a resume of the activity and growth of the Glendale Union High school. As an organization supported by the taxpayers, it is unique in that it has at its helm a man who has been identified with, and in no small measure responsible for its expansion, practically since its inception. George Ulysses Moyse has, as principal of the high school, kept abreast of the advancing courses of study, and has always succeeded in placing the local school well up in the list of scholastic institutions in southern California.

During the month of January the high school will move into the magnificent new building on East Broadway. When plans were drawn for the auditorium, the seating capacity was fixed at 2100. Today there are 1943 students registered at the high school, with over 200 more to come in at the beginning of the next semester in February. Glendale's new auditorium, one of the largest and finest in the southern part of the state, will just accommodate the student body. The board is already groping for a solution of the crowded condition which will undoubtedly exist when the 1924-25 fall term opens.

The Glendale Union high school district was organized in 1901 by the union of Crescenta, Burbank, Glendale, Eagle Rock, Irwindale, Tropic and West Glendale grammar school districts. Seven of these districts have either dropped out or been absorbed by Glendale proper. The first sessions were held in the building now occupied by the Glendale sanitarium. During the Christmas vacation the following year, or 1902, the school moved into a building at the corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway where the Security Trust & Savings bank is now situated.

Here they remained until 1909, when the school was again moved to the present location on Harvard street, east of Brand. Mr. Moyse recalls that when the time came to finance the new building, it was decided to vote bonds to the value of $60,000 and realize $15,000 from the sale of the site at the corner of Brand and Broadway. The board owned at this time slightly more than half of what is now the block bounded by Brand boulevard, Broadway, Maryland avenue and Harvard street. When they advertised this sale to help finance the new building, they had a hard time to get bids on it. It was finally sold for $13,500.

In 1914 the city abandoned Maryland avenue between Harvard and Colorado streets and the board erected six bungalows to the west of the main high school building, which provided 10 additional classrooms and the girls' gymnasium.

Enrollment Figures

When organized in 1901 there were three teachers in addition to the principal, with 28 students. The following year, 1902, the enrollment increased 50. A bulletin issued during the year 1909-1910 says: "The total enrollment for the past year was 147, a gain, notwithstanding the withdrawal of Burbank, of 20 per cent over that of the preceding year." The staff at that time was composed of Mr. Moyse as principal and ten teachers.

Mr. Moyse has as his assistants his wife, Ethel Hume Flood Moyse and A. L. Ferguson, as vice principals.

Irving H. Oliver, as business agent looks after the details of this vast organization. Ninety teachers are in charge of the instructions of the 1943 pupils. Normal Hayhurst, head coach, with his assistants, Howard L. Butterfield and Eugene Wolfe, have charge of the athletics.

All subjects generally recognized in high school work are covered. Glendale High is an accredited institution with all universities and colleges on the west coast.

COLUMBUS P. T. A. GLENDALE ASSET

Growth of Organization Is Splendid Example of Civic Enterprise

At the time the Columbus Parent-Teachers association was organized, Mrs. Alexander Mitchell was elected the president with seventy-five members enrolled. Mrs. Mitchell held the office of chief executive for the next three years, helping the association to increase its membership and to become recognized as an organization of real benefit to the community and to the city of Glendale.

The present membership of the association has reached 310 and is rapidly increasing. The following are the officers for this year: Mrs. C. P. Tedford, president; Mrs. C. H. Lyons, vice-president; Mrs. C. W. Taylor, secretary; Mrs. A. L. Kniffler, treasurer; Mrs. M. E. Canfield, auditor, and Miss Bigelow, historian.

The association meets regularly on the third Thursday afternoon of each month at the school house.

Mission Workers Are Captured by Bandits

PEKING, Dec. 31.—Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hoff, American missionaries, were wounded and captured and two other missionaries, both women, were captured near Tsao Yang by bandits, according to reports here. The Hoffs were reported seriously wounded while resisting capture at the hands of the bandits.

One of the captured women was reported to be Mrs. J. Klien. The American legation at once dispatched a note to the foreign office, requesting the release of the captives and urging strong measures be taken against the bandits.

TEACHERS ENJOY VARIED ACTIVITY

Club Includes Majority of Faculty Members of Glendale Schools

The Glendale City Teachers club is enjoying a year of business and social activity under the leadership of Mrs. Mary Ogden Ryan, who was elected president at the last annual meeting. Of the 150 teachers of the city school system, 147 are enrolled as members of the club. Mrs. Ryan and Miss Carol Duncan were delegates from the organization at the last annual convention of the National Educational Association. Prominent social affairs of the autumn were a banquet at the Sunset Canyon Country club and a Christmas luncheon in Los Angeles.

Incumbents in office at present are Mrs. Mary Ogden Ryan, president; Miss Lorraine Mitchell, vice-president; Mrs. Malcolm McLennan, recording secretary; Miss Vera Sinclair, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Fannie Stone, treasurer.

MORE THAN 5000 PUPILS ATTENDING TWELVE GRADED INSTITUTIONS HERE

Local Enrollment for Elementary Education Increases So Rapidly Board of Education Finds Difficulty in Housing Children, Superintendent Richardson D. White Reveals

By AL DIX
Of The Evening News Staff.

The enrollment in Glendale's elementary, or grade schools on December 1, 1923, was 5,089, lacking but five of being three times that of September 1, 1918, when 1,698 pupils started the fall term. In the short space of five years the city's school population has tripled. This growth has been more rapid in the last three years, as the following table will indicate. The figures represent the opening day enrollment:

September, 1918	1,698
September, 1919	1,725
September, 1920	2,169
September, 1921	2,850
September, 1922	3,476
September, 1923	4,304

Fast Growth Seen

A gain of 785 pupils has been registered in the three months between September and December, or an increase of 260 per month. In the face of such an influx as this, it has been found impossible to pursue any building program that would furnish accommodations for the number of pupils enrolled.

The call for assistance was sent out in 1921, and as a result of the appeal, bonds to the amount of $260,000 were voted for the purpose of enlarging the school organization. With the money thus available the board built two new schools, the Glendale avenue school with eight class rooms, and manual training, cooking and sewing rooms; and the Grandview school with four class rooms. Besides these the board built a four room addition to the Acacia avenue school, and constructed the first unit of four rooms of what will ultimately be the permanent building on the Columbus avenue site. A sum of $80,000 was expended for sites and additions to sites.

Keep Crowding In

In spite of these new schools and the addition to the old schools, when school opened for the 1923-1924 term almost every school in the district was crowded beyond its normal capacity, and the only relief in sight was the building of more class rooms. In view of this congested condition, the residents of the district voted a bond issue of $500,000 on March 15, 1923, and the building program provided by that issue is practically completed.

This amount has been expended in buying two new school sites, increasing the size of four of the old school sites and in building forty new class rooms, in addition to such auxiliary rooms as auditoriums, cooking rooms, sewing rooms and manual training rooms. At the time this program was planned the citizens' committee and the board of education felt that it would cover the needs of the city for grammar schools for two years, but, owing to the fact the increase in enrollment during the past year has been almost 30 per cent, the greatest in the history of Glendale, it appears at the present time that all of the new class rooms will be filled to overflowing before the end of the current school year and that the board will be forced to build temporary or portable buildings to accommodate the overflow. Additional room will no doubt be required at the beginning of the spring semester in February.

Glendale's board of education has under its charge twelve schools, with enrollment as follows: Wilson avenue, 626; Glendale avenue, 426; Acacia avenue, 505; Broadway, 511; Central avenue, 420; Cerritos avenue, 215; Colorado street, 322; Columbus

The personnel of the board of education is David J. Hibben, president; Mrs. Arthur C. Brown, secretary; Mrs. A. A. Barton, Eugene H. Learned and Harry W. Chase.

Richardson D. White, city superintendent, has been a resident of Glendale for thirteen years, and during that time has always been actively engaged in school affairs. He confesses that the phenomenal, although constant growth of the city is a problem without parallel in this country, and has taxed the ingenuity of the board members to the limit. The board employs 170 teachers, heads of departments and principals, in addition to a large staff of artisans and other employees.

TEACHER GETS FORTUNE

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 1.—Elizabeth Wurthmann, 21-year-old school teacher, has just learned that Louis L. Lehmyer, 96-year-old hermit, who died last week in a New York City pauper's ward on Welfare Island, left her $500,000 in his will. The news was overwhelming—so unexpected that it left Miss Wurthmann and her parents a bit breathless.

Outdoes Aladdin's Lamp

Turn the Bright RED WHEEL and the Ever Ready LORAIN Is Summoned

Aladdin and Lorain

—One but a dream of a past that could but dream; Lorain, a fairy of science, is serving daily thousands and thousands of American housewives.

LORAIN

Pays for the

with the gas that's saved. Leaking and wasting through the burners of your old range is more gas than Lorain uses to cook a whole meal.

—When Lorain bakes bread, the meter only runs about 20 minutes out of the hour.

—Genius, too, has for you: no bottom in oven, to save more fuel, prevent rust, pies boiling over, etc.

—Which will you choose, a cooking device of the past or the magic discoveries of the present?

No Oven-Watching, No Bad Luck, No Failures

Every cook knows what it means to have to stand watch over her oven. Every cook, even the best cook, knows the meaning of "unlucky" results. Every cook knows how hard it is to duplicate each time the best bread or cake or pie she ever baked, or the best dinner she ever served.

Fancy, then, owning a magic wheel that forever ends gas oven-watching, forever banishes "unlucky" days from the kitchen, and gives you such accuracy in cooking that you equal your very best results every time—perhaps even excel them.

The magic wheel does all this—the magic red wheel whose name is Lorain.

Good Cooking Made Easy

Lorain measures and controls gas oven heats. All you do is to put food into the gas oven and then when it is deliciously ready to serve, take it out. Bread, cake, pie—or an entire meal of meat, vegetables and dessert at one time—even canning of fruits and vegetables—all these are easy successes for the Lorain. And you need never look into your oven a single time while the food is cooking.

Wonderful—Yet Simple

Cooking experts praise Lorain as the greatest cooking discovery in many years, yet Lorain does not take an expert to use it. Anybody who cooks can understand a Lorain in two minutes.

But the time and the work Lorain saves and the joy it brings in better food and happier homes, why, that takes a book to tell the facts. We want you to have a copy of the book about this magic red wheel. It's here waiting for you.

PACKARD CAR TO BE IN NEW HOME

Glendale Territory Agency
To Be Housed On South
Brand Boulevard

Among the newest business structures being erected in Glendale is the future home of the Packard automobile agency, ground for which already has been broken at the northwest corner of Palmer street and South Brand boulevard. This building is to be occupied by the Dixie Packard company, now located at 510 East Broadway. W. H. Daniel is president and manager of this firm.

The 1924 Packard car, both in the single six and straight-eight, according to Mr. Daniel, will be equipped with the latest and most modern design of four-wheel brakes, assuring perfect control and absolute accuracy of brake application at all times.

Added to this, Mr. Daniel says, will be several other improvements, including heavier artillery wheels, increased weight, smoother crankshaft, dash gasoline and other minor changes.

Mr. Daniel is very enthusiastic over the changes announced and is exceedingly optimistic over the business outlook for 1924. The new location, he says, will give his firm a decided advantage over the old quarters, affording a much larger display room, which will be 50x140 feet. This will give ample room for showing the various models of the Packard and Gray cars.

The finish of this building will be tile and stucco, while two large plate-glass windows facing on Brand and two on Palmer street will afford unusually good lighting effects. The Dixie Packard company probably will be in its new home by March 1, Mr. Daniel says.

Horse Learns How To Operate Pump

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Jan. 1. An example of superior "horse sense" on the part of an 8-year-old Hamiltonian named "Ted" has been reported on the farm of John Fry of Ina. Local Red Cross Chapter Is Ever Ready to Assist In Any Worthy Movement

Glendale Red Cross chapter had a strong foundation in the enthusiasm and desire to assist in the great national cause during war times in 1917 and during the years since it has continued to function as a vital part of the community life.

Some of the outstanding events recorded in the chapter history during the past year are collections of clothing for Near East relief in November and December 1922; making of forty layettes for overseas work; sponsoring the "Learn To Swim Week;" collection of clothing, jellies and jams for the Sawtelle hospital; making and equipping of fifty comfort bags sent this Christmas to United States service men in the Hawaiian islands; paying $600 towards the expenses of the city nurse; making of fifty warm kimonos for Japanese relief; and collection of over $3800 for Japanese relief.

For five years Mrs. H. E. Bartlett and Mrs. John Robert White have served as chairman and secretary of the chapter, and at the recent annual meeting it was most fitting that Mrs. White should be chosen to succeed Mrs. Bartlett.

Both women have served faithfully and efficiently and much of the success achieved by the chapter is due to their untiring efforts.

Other officers of the chapter are Mrs. W. W. Worley, vice chairman; Mrs. S. C. Packer, recording secretary; Miss Neva Veysey, treasurer; Mesdames H. E. Bartlett, L. E. Dow and E. W. W. Hayward, members of the executive committee.

List of Directors
Directors are Mesdames H. E. Bartlett, John Robert White, W. W. Worley, E. W. W. Hayward, C. L. Peckham, J. G. Huntley, R. F. Jodon, J. H. Daugherty, R. A. Blackburn, S. C. Packer, Daniel McLean, E. Frozen Engine Stalls Minister's Motor Car

WINNEMUCA, Jan. 1.—With the radiator and engine of his machine frozen on the desert outside this city, Rev. F. M. Clay, newly-arrived Baptist minister, had a narrow escape from death a few nights ago.

The minister had been holding services at Inlay and was returning when the machine stalled. After much difficulty the minister managed to thaw out the engine sufficiently to proceed and reached home at 4 a. m.

Reverend Dr. Clay said he was not aware of the perils of the desert in winter until his harrowing experience. He announces abandonment of such trips until spring.

eral pieces of business property, the most recent acquisition being the corner of Fourteenth and Washington streets, Oakland, where an Owl store has been operated for many years.

A ninety-nine-year lease has been taken on the corner of Franklin and Fifteenth streets, Oakland. This property, as well as the corner of Sixteenth and Telegraph, purchased early in the year, will be improved in the near future.

New Haberdashery Looks For Greater Success During Present Year

Although in business here only four months, the Glendale Haberdashery, 134 South Brand boulevard, has enjoyed the greatest of prosperity during this brief period, according to I. D. Burgard, manager. The store, which is owned by A. N. Fox, offers a complete line of gents' furnishings of the highest grade.

"We were favored with a splendid business during the pre-Christmas season," said Mr. Burgard, "and from all appearances now we are going to have even better trade during 1924. Our location is ideal, and we carry just the kind of merchandise that appeals to the man with a taste for neat dress."

"When opening here in September we were uncertain as to exact demands of the Glendale trade, but have learned through careful study since that time just what lines are most popular, and it is with such merchandise that our store is now stocked."

BUILDING Glendale greater is the accomplishment of the real estate and construction firms who have found here a field of activity that has proved unparalleled. In 1923 activity in real estate set new high records, both in the profitable turn-over of developed property and the subdivision of available acreage.

Great groves of oranges, hillslopes basking in the sun, vineyards where wine grapes once grew, vegetable gardens and fields of hay and grain have given way to street after street of homes where happiness and contentment are found. It has been the real estate man, the builder, with vision and capital and courage, who have put Glendale over.

Of course, there is no denying but what Glendale is the most accessible of all Los Angeles' suburbs, and it is only logical that it should grow with southern California, but it took faith and work on the part of honest traders in land titles. They had to create demand, purchase large parcels of property, build streets, pay for improvements and make inducements to builders in order to meet the competition of less favored centers.

And they have done all of this. The builders of Glendale are men of conviction. They are "boosters," not boomers, for Glendale has lacked oil and movies and tourist hotels. It is simply a good place in which to live.

Los Angeles flatdwellers found this out. People from the east appreciated an all-American city in which to retire. Health seekers learned of its desirability. And the green Verdugo hills have lured and won them forever and aye.

Glendale is "made" now. It is not a city existing in the minds of advertising men. Neither is it without rhyme or reason.

Besides being "the fastest growing city in America," it is—

Glendale, the best place in which to live.

We thank our clients for the success which they have made possible for us in the past year, and we take this opportunity of wishing them a

HOME PRODUCTION TO RECEIVE HELP

Department of Commerce
Makes Plans to Aid
Farmers, Merchants

For International News Service.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Intensive prosecution during the new year of the Department of Commerce drive to eliminate foreign monopoly of raw material sources is indicated by the statement of Dr. Julius Klein, director of foreign commerce, pointing out the necessity of American control of such production or the provision of substitutes.
Next year the department hopes to make the most of a fund set aside by Congress for raw material surveys during the year ending June 30, 1924. Rubber, nitrates, sisal, tin, lead and other products are included.
Bureau of Standard scientists are working on substitutes for some of these raw materials virtually controlled by foreign monopoly. Synthetic processes of production are under the eye of the bureau of standards experts. Already good progress has been made, it was learned.
Aside from this raw material fund, probably will be a fund of $3,500,000, which the Sixty-eighth Congress has asked by Secretary of Commerce Hoover to appropriate for the ten-year agricultural census.

Aid for Farmers
While this fund is for the specific purpose of obtaining agricultural statistics it is believed the census will reveal the losses incurred by American agriculturists and manufacturers, through foreign control of raw materials.
Department of Commerce officials believe some assistance may be given to the farmers in their present financial dilemma if the department of agriculture and the bureau of standards are able to point out to them crops which may be raised and used for production of raw materials now under European control.
Dr. Klein said the full extent of this burden has never been fully appreciated by the American public, and he urged co-operation as a remedy.
Among the most vital of raw materials which it is believed should be developed domestically is crude rubber. Of 3,000,000 acres of rubber-producing territory only 2 per cent is controlled by American capital, according to Department of Commerce officials.

Scientific Data
The department survey is expected to cover fifteen separate political units where physical conditions seem favorable to the production of raw rubber. Scientific data which can be utilized in the

JEWEL PLUMBING ENJOYS SUCCESS

Expect Business For 1924
To Be Double That of Year Just Closed

Starting a little more than a year ago under the name of the Jewel City Plumbing company, this firm, which is located at 526 East Broadway, has grown to be one of the largest of its kind in Glendale, employing a force of twenty-five thoroughly experienced men.
The proprietors are F. R. Bruner, G. L. Berryman and L. A. Richards, all engaged in business in Glendale before forming the present partnership.
"We attribute our wonderful success," said Mr. Bruner "to the fact that we handle only dependable merchandise and that we combine value with our service, which we strive to keep to the highest standard. While we had a splendid business during 1923, we are looking forward to a continued increase that will double that enjoyed during the past year. The future development of Glendale, however, depends largely upon the outcome of the sewer bond election. It must not fail."

The well known line of Pacific fixtures is handled exclusively by this firm, according to Mr. Bruner, because they are the best obtainable. He points out that these fixtures are guaranteed forever against any defect in workmanship or material. They handle exclusively also the famous Mueller faucets and brass accessories, which are guaranteed to last as long as the building they are installed in. While they cost a little more, Mr. Bruner said, they are worth it because of their high quality.
The Jewel City Plumbing company is licensed to operate in Glendale, Burbank, Eagle Rock and Los Angeles. They are the local agents for the Ward gas floor heater. Their display rooms are as complete as that of any to be found in this city or elsewhere in the San Fernando valley, according to Mr. Bruner.

development of new fields are already in sight.
In the nitrate probe sources of supply, control of the industry and costs of production will first be investigated. Synthetic processes to give the foreign monopolies a keen competition are under study.

Some protective legislation may be necessary to assist new industries producing these raw materials. Officials pointed out that it is foolish for American consumers to pay tariff tolls on import of raw materials when they may be produced in the United States.

Success has attended the C. & S. Cafeteria ever since it was established in Glendale, and this success has been greatly augmented during the past year and a half. The cafeteria has been located in the new building at 222 North Brand boulevard.

Recognizing the favor in which Americans hold the cafeteria, J. T. Stewart has striven to provide Glendaleans with a satisfactory eating place of the self-service type, where courteous and trained employees provide the best of food and render every service possible.

Beginning as a little cafeteria serving "home cooking" the C. & S. Cafeteria has become a modern eating place, equipped to accommodate more than 100 people. The cafeteria is cool and clean in truth and effect with sand finished grey blue stenciled walls, and enameled tables and chairs. First-class equipment in the kitchen facilities quick service in preparing meals that are always a pleasure to the diners.

DORIC NOTE IN CHURCH EDIFICE
Christian Congregation Has Room In Building For Varied Activities

The Central Christian church is another Glendale church edifice designed by Robert H. Orr, architect. The new Glendale Presbyterian church, just opened, at the corner of South Louise and East Harvard streets, is also the work of Mr. Orr.
Pure Doric in its architecture, the Christian church building, dedicated July 2, 1922, is a happy combination of dignity and beauty.
To meet the requirements of the departmental plan of the church organization, the church building has six auditoriums for the various departments.
It is possible to accommodate 1,000 people in the social hall of the basement, completely equipped with modern kitchen facilities.
Other features of the building are the comfortable parlors, the bridal room with its beautiful altar, and the main auditorium.
The exterior of the building is plastered with a cement finish; within, the tinted walls are relieved with enameled woodwork, and the stained glass windows modulate the California sunshine. Rev. Clifford A. Cole is pastor.

RESEARCH PLANT

Hospital Is Fitted Up With Modern Laboratories,
X-Ray Equipment
Among this city's widely known institutions is the Glendale Research hospital, located in Piedmont park, north of Lexington drive. It is a locally owned and operated plant with fireproof building, well furnished, research laboratories, modern operating equipment, including X-ray department, and a nurses' home.
In addition to an ideal location, the Glendale Research hospital benefits from the climatic conditions prevalent here, which are most beneficial for the health-seeker. Highly competent physicians of the city, as well as specialists of Southern California, practice at the Research hospital.
Through its conduct and scientific methods the institution has reached a high degree of eminence.

COUNTERFEITING PLANT Found in Reformatory
OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 1.—A Federal secret service man posing as a prisoner in the Oklahoma State Reformatory at Granville unearthed a counterfeiting ring operating in the institution.
For months prisoners of the reformatory had been making and circulating silver coins in denominations up to a dollar. Spoons, knives and cooling utensils were melted down and made into coins. The counterfeiting plant was made of metal stolen from the boiler room.

Real Estate Dealer Occupies New Office
J. W. Davis, real estate dealer, formerly located at 209 West Broadway, has removed his offices to 102 East Cypress street. He has been located at the old address for several months, coming here from San Francisco where he conducted a similar business for five years. He was in Seattle two years before that in the same line of work.

Local Scouts Hike
There were sixty-two Glendale Boy Scouts and scoutmaster of the Verdugo Hills council, who enjoyed a two-day mountain outing Friday and Saturday of last week.
The party left Glendale by motor, traveling as far as the Arroyo Seco, where they left the cars and hiked twelve miles to Switzer's camp. They were most royally entertained by the camp management with trips to the falls and to the new church, being built of stone on a mountain site. Friday evening there was a wonderful dinner, followed by a rousing campfire meeting in the well-known "Rock Room" of the camp. There were yells, songs and stories by the boys, and Scoutmaster Payne gave an interesting account of an overseas experience, and Scoutmaster Cheesman told a thrilling ghost story.
For over-night each boy has a small cabin, and after a good night's rest they were up early and started on the hike to the upper Arroyo and on to the divide to the west fork for the San Gabriel Peak pass, 6,000 feet high. Coming down from this mountain country they passed Alpine Tavern, stopping at Camp Huntington, the Pasadena Boy Scouts' camp, for a powwow around the big fireplace in the clubhouse.
Frank C. Ayers, chairman of camping for the Verdugo Hills Council, had charge of arranging the outing, and he and Leon F. Collins of Burbank, Scoutmaster of Tujunga, A. C. Cox of La Crescenta, Scoutmaster Payne, H. R. Cheesman and Mr. Burroughs accompanied the boys.
Pleasure was combined with education on the trip, for the boys gathered at certain points en route for interesting field lessons on history, geography and science.

SNOW CLAD HILLS ATTRACT SCOUTS
Boys Hike to Mountains For Week-end Trips With Council Leaders

Boy Scout friends of H. Benjamin Robison, formerly scoutmaster of Glendale Troop No. 2, and now Eagle scoutmaster of Troop No. 1 of Avalon, Catalina Island, will be interested to know of a trip he just took with a group of Scouts to Camp Baldy and on up Mount Baldy.

Mr. Robison and the boys left the Robison home, Los Robles Verdes at La Crescenta, early last Thursday morning, motoring to Camp Baldy. After a day in the snow they started the climb up Old Baldy on Friday, going up over the Devil's Backbone. The climb was very difficult due to the deep snow and ice, which will make the trail impassable within a few days.

Finally they reached an altitude of 10,000 feet above sea level, of silvery clouds. The only land that could be seen was the snow-capped peak of San Geronimo in the distance. Gradually the clouds lifted, revealing a beautiful mirage on the Mojave desert. The Scouts returned by Bear canyon, reaching the Robison home Saturday night.

The Scouts making the trip were Malcolm Renton, Theodore Sinks, John Shields, Arthur Goulding, Charles De Soto and Romer Zane Grey.
Mr. Robison has had charge of the Scout work at Avalon for eight months.

That the said grantee and its assigns shall, during the life of the said franchise, pay to the City of Glendale in lawful money of the United States, two per cent of the gross annual receipts of said grantee and its assigns, arising from the use, operation or possession of said franchise. No percent of the gross receipts of said grantee and its assigns shall be payable for the first five years succeeding the date of the franchise, but thereafter such percentage shall be payable annually, and said franchise is to be forfeited by a failure to make the payments provided for, and it shall be the duty of the grantee of said franchise, and its assigns to file with the City Clerk of the City of Glendale at the expiration of six years from the date of granting said franchise, and at the expiration of each and every year thereafter, a statement verified by the oath of the said grantee, or its assigns, or by the oath of the manager or presiding officer of said grantee or its assigns, showing the total gross receipts and gross earnings collected or received by the said grantee or its assigns during the preceding twelve months, and within ten days after the time for filing such statement it shall be the duty of said grantee or its assigns to pay to the City Treasurer of said City of Glendale the aggregate sum of said percentage arising from the gross annual receipts arising from the use, operation or possession of said franchise.

That all poles used in the construction and operation of said electric road shall be placed within the curb line of the streets designated as officially established by the City Council of the City of Glendale, and that the poles shall in all cases be set as near the inner edge of the curb as practicable, when not otherwise directed by said City Council, and the wires suspended from said poles shall not at any point be less than twenty-two (22) feet above the top of the rail. All poles shall be of a size and kind such as are ordinarily used for similar purposes by the State of California, and shall at all times be kept free from rust and painted in a uniform color; that whenever said railway is double tracked, then the tracks shall be placed thirteen (13) feet from the center line to center line, and in case of a single track shall be located along a line six and one-half (6½) feet easterly from and parallel to the center line of the above described strip of land.

That any neglect, failure or refusal to comply with any of the conditions of said franchise, after thirty days' notice given by the City Council of the City of Glendale, shall thereupon immediately operate to effect a forfeiture thereof, and the City Council, by its City Clerk, may thereupon declare said franchise forfeited, and may exclude said grantee or its assigns from further use of the streets of said City under said franchise, and said grantee or its assigns shall

Mrs. C. H. Whitney Happy Choice for Leadership of High School Body

Mrs. C. H. Whitney was a happy choice for president of the Glendale Union High School Parent-Teachers' association, through her earnest efforts the organization has grown in membership and this year has been featured by larger attendance than in any previous year.

One of the clever schemes to bring out the parents and teachers is a $25 check offered to the class having the largest representation present at the meetings beginning in October. This reward is to be given at the next meeting, which will probably be with the teachers.

Officers are Mrs. C. H. Whitney, president; Mrs. Pierson Hanning, vice-president; Mrs. J. I. Wenne, secretary; Mrs. R. C. Horner, treasurer; Mrs. W. A. Kulp.

Works with P-T-A.

That the association is co-operating in every way with the district and state outlines of Parent-Teacher Association activities is seen in the following list of standing committees:

Mrs. C. H. Thompson, chairman; Mrs. P. O. Lucas, membership; Mrs. Pierson Hanning, finance; Mrs. W. A. Saylor, patriotism; Mrs. C. H. Ambrosch, education; Mrs. William Wichert, visiting and hospitality; Mrs. John Fox, courtesy; Paul E. Webb, publicity; Mrs. Reed Heustis, emblems and magazines; Normal Hayhurst, playgrounds; Mrs. F. L. Martinez, legislation; Miss Hanson, thrift; Mrs. B. L. Fine, scholarship; Mrs. E. B. Moore, philanthropy and hygiene.

let for the construction of the first unit of the bleachers, which will contain the dressing rooms and lockers. These will be built of concrete and steel and will form the nucleus of a large grandstand which will undoubtedly some day extend along this side of the field. The contract for the grading of the field has also been awarded.

The construction of this building has required much of the time and attention of the board of trustees, composed of H. W. Yarrick, president; Dr. Harry V. Brown, Albert D. Pearce, A. W. Tower and T. D. Watson.

There is accommodation for 2500 students in the class rooms, and the design is such that should the occasion arise, more room can be made available without destroying the proportion of the ensemble.

500 Fake Dentists Found in New York

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 1.—New York City's search for quacks took a new turn when Deputy Attorney General Dwyer trained his guns on some 500 fraudulent dentists alleged to be practicing in this city.

In connection with the dental investigation Mr. Dwyer said twenty convictions already had been obtained and the campaign would be pressed vigorously. Many unlicensed dentists, he said, were found to be working with licensed members of the profession. Most of them, he added, were without even elementary knowledge of dentistry, and many turned out to be barbers or tailors who only recently had come to this country.

Sophie Gives Entertainment For Twenty Employees At Sunset Club

The Sophie Real Estate firm located at 219 East Broadway held its first annual banquet last Friday night at the Sunset Canyon Country club, with Sophie Stratton, head of the company, acting as hostess for her twenty employees.

After a thirty-pound turkey and its numerous accessories had been "put in escrow," as "Sophie" expressed it, Mr. Green, head of the exchange and income department, gave an address on "Greater Glendale." This was followed by talks by heads of the various other departments and branch offices. Announcement was made by "Sophie" of the opening of a new branch office at San Fernando road and Raymond avenue.

Following the speeches, the evening was devoted to a social program, including dancing and cards.

Dollar Bill Misses Church and Theatre

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Jan. 1.—The Waukegan Chamber of Commerce, which desired to find out just what sort of an experience a dollar bill would have in making the rounds of the commercial circles of the city, started a crisp new dollar bill out and attached a circular, requesting each person handling the bill to make a notation on the circular.

The dollar was spent thirty-one times in the course of fourteen days, but did not get into a church or theatre and was not used for amusements. When the bill got back it was pretty much wrinkled and frazzled and told the following tale:

It was used five times for salary, five times for tobacco, five times for cigarettes, three times for candy, twice for men's furnishing goods, once for collar buttons, three times for meals, once for automobile accessories, once for bacon, once for garters, twice for shaves and once for toothpaste.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 1.—Minerals extracted from the earth in Greenland antedating the Garden of Eden by 50,000,000 years are on exhibition at the Academy of Natural Science here. They were discovered by Dr. Samuel G. Gordon of the academy, who has just returned from exploring the Arctic country.

Whether the minerals which were found in large quantities, could be made of any commercial value was problematical, Dr. Gordon said, owing to the inaccessibility of Greenland.

The minerals are imbedded in quartz and will be analyzed by the academy.
